MP dives in to splash the cash around

The Member for Maranoa David Littleproud visited Winton with three significant announcements to make.

Firstly the Minister announced a significant increase in the rate of Child Care Subsidy (CCS) for Maranoa families with multiple children aged five or under in child care.

Secondly Mr Littleproud announced a $16.2 million make improvements to the Winton-Jundah Road, a road of significance for primary industries and tourism in Winton. Finally, there was the announcement of $120,000 in monsoon trough recovery funding for Winton.

Health spotlight

By Michael R Williams

An inquiry was held in Longreach into the provision of primary, allied and private health care, aged care and NDIS care services and its impact on the Queensland public health system.

There were many notable speakers who spoke on issues including doctor shortages, distance travelled by patients and the quality and availability of mental health care.

Gregory MP Lachlan Millar, who was a part of the inquiry for the Rockhampton and Longreach hearings, said this was a timely inquiry, specifically regarding how patients are treated after they leave the hospital.

"We do have difficulties out here in getting people the care they need when they leave here and go to Rockhampton," he said.

"I think the health and hospital service here does an excellent job, but when they fly them out, we need a discharge plan. Patients may go to Rockhampton for essential care, but not have a way back, they may not have family there or money for the train."

Minister Millar said rural health works differently to inner city health and should be treated differently.

MP secures extra funds for childcare

By Michael R Williams

Member for Maranoa David Littleproud has welcomed a significant increase in the rate of Child Care Subsidy (CCS) for Maranoa families with multiple children aged five or under in child care.

Mr Littleproud said the Australian Government had lifted the rate of CCS by 30 per cent for the second child aged five or under and any younger children in child care, up to a maximum rate of 95 per cent.

The higher subsidy will boost support for working families and follows the removal of the annual CCS cap of $10,655 for families earning over $190,015 (in 2021-22 terms) from 10 December 2021 – and beyond.

“These measures will ease the cost of child care for 740 Maranoa families, who on average will be around $2,260 a year better off,” Mr Littleproud said.

“For a family who are charged a typical fee and earns $120,000 a year with two children in child care for five days per week, the saving will be $144 per week compared to current settings.”

The Coalition Government fast-tracked the increased subsidy, bringing it forward from 1 July 2022 to being available now.

Mr Littleproud was today on the ground at Winton Council's Little Swaggies Child Care, one of the 74 Child Care Services in his electorate, to hear firsthand how the changes will affect local families.

“Families do not have to do anything to receive the increased subsidy - it will flow to families automatically, with no need to apply to Services Australia,” Mr Littleproud said.

“But families keen to know their benefits can go to the new StartingBlocks.gov.au website and use the simple family estimator.”

Mr Littleproud said the Australian Government measures would make a significant contribution to easing the pressure on the cost of living for many families with young children.

“For local families with more than one child aged five or under in child care, today's increase in the CCS, means more money in your pocket each week.

“This is good news for eligible families who will benefit from reduced out-of-pocket child care costs, which also provides an incentive to consider either returning to work or working additional hours.

Maranoa MP Littleproud made the announcement at Little Swaggies in Winton this week.

“Local families know that the cost of child care, particularly for families with more than one child in care can be a barrier to pursuing employment or working additional hours.

“This is especially so for local mums who may be able to use this to get back into the workforce or to increase their hours in their current job.”

Mr Littleproud said that currently about one million Australian families are being supported by record levels of child care funding - in Maranoa, 5,500 children are being supported under CCS by almost $35 million.

“Childcare changes lives - it removes barriers and provides opportunities to those who need it most. The Government's increased investment in childcare, around $10.3 billion this financial year alone, means that around one million families will benefit.

“It's all about empowerment, not dependence. Unlike Labor's free childcare for millionaires, the Coalition Government is targeting our childcare spend to make sure carers, overwhelmingly women, get the choices and chances they expect and deserve.”

Winton Mayor Gavin Baskett welcomed the funding saying it would be beneficial to working families across Australia, not just the west.

“This is very important, the last thing you want is people not being able to afford childcare when they're working which leads to the employment issue we're having,” he said.

“We need people to be able to access affordable childcare.”

Cr Baskett said it was always good to see the Member for Maranoa visit Winton.

“David's always been a great supporter of Winton and he's supported quite a lot of projects here,” he said.

Winton roads set for a major upgrade

The Australian Government and Winton Shire Council will deliver a $16.2 million major road upgrade of the Winton-Jundah Road, to increase road safety while supporting quicker and more reliable trips year-round for commuters and freight.

The project will be funded on an 80:20 split between the Australian Government, under its almost $5 billion Roads of Strategic Importance (ROSI) initiative, and the Winton Shire Council.

Federal Member for Maranoa David Littleproud said the upgrade of around 37 kilometres of the Winton-Jundah Road complements other road safety upgrades currently underway in the region.

“Not only is this road key for local primary industries to get their produce and other goods to local and international markets, but it is a vital access point for visitors coming through and seeing what this part of Central Queensland has to offer,” he said.

“This is yet another example of the Australian Government investing in the road infrastructure regional Queenslanders need and deserve to stay well-connected to each other and to opportunities such as jobs, for businesses to seamlessly get their goods to markets, and to keep all drivers safe on our roads.

“This project is coming to life thanks to the Australian Government's over $1 billion commitment to upgrading key road corridors in Queensland under ROSI.”

Minister David Littleproud and Mayor Gavin Baskett announcing funding for the Winton-Jundah Road.

Assistant Minister for Road Safety and Freight Transport Scott Buchholz said the project would ensure the road is safer and more resilient to wet weather, reducing the need to take lengthy detours and putting valuable time back into motorists' days.

“Whether you are a truckie with a load of spoilable goods, or en route to a nearby job opportunity, having a wider or sealed road that is more resilient to flooding will give road users greater peace of mind that they'll be able to safely pass through without disruptive detours,” he said.

“We are delivering a record $110 billion in infrastructure funding across the nation to deliver projects just like this, to get Australians home sooner and safer and underpin a stronger national economy.”

Mayor of Winton Shire Council Gavin Baskett said the Winton-Jundah Road upgrade will improve access to the world-famous Dinosaur Stampede National Monument at Lark Quarry.

“The Winton-Jundah Road project will increase accessibility and safety during wet weather events and help ensure year-round connectivity for tourists, freight and locals alike,” he said.

“Investing in road upgrades equals jobs, more cash flowing across local businesses, and a route that will better allow freight and tourist to come through and stop by our towns and attractions.”

CW health in the spotlight

An inquiry was held in Longreach into the provision of primary, allied and private health care, aged care and NDIS care services and its impact on the Queensland public health system.

There were many notable speakers who spoke on issues including doctor shortages, distance travelled by patients and the quality and availability of mental health care.

Gregory MP Lachlan Millar, who was a part of the inquiry for the Rockhampton and Longreach hearings, said this was a timely inquiry, specifically regarding how patients are treated after they leave the hospital.

"We do have difficulties out here in getting people the care they need when they leave here and go to Rockhampton," he said.

"I think the health and hospital service here does an excellent job, but when they fly them out, we need a discharge plan.

"Patients may go to Rockhampton for essential care, but not have a way back, they may not have family there or money for the train."

Minister Millar said rural health works differently to inner city health and should be treated differently.

"If someone has an accident in Jundah, and then is driven here, and then is transported out - they need a discharge plan," he said.

"Or if they come to Longreach, we've got to understand we've got to get them home."

Minister Millar said the retaining of staff in the west was also an issue.

"Especially in those outlying areas, I think that's important," he said.

"I think there has to be an emphasis not only in keeping doctors here, but nurses and allied health practitioners here when it comes to providing health care plans to people."

Mr Millar said with an aging population in the west, looking into health care is vital to saving lives.

"More and more people are getting to the stage where they need health plans or advice," he said.

"We've got to make sure the people who live out here are able to get the same quality services out here.

"Sure if they need surgeries and high end surgeries, they will still need to go to Brisbane and Rockhampton, but we've got to make sure people out here, the services are continued."

Mr Millar commended the Central West Hospital and Health Service stating "they punch well above their weight".

Councils unveil a plan to tackle regional connectivity

Recent recommendations from the 2021 Regional Telecommunications Independent Review Committee have affirmed the position held by Western Queensland Councils.

The Western Queensland Alliance of Councils (WQAC) welcomed the findings which validates the key concerns and proposed solutions detailed in the WQAC's 2021 Digital Connectivity Blueprint.

The report directly references the WQAC submission which highlights a core issue for regional digital communications specifically that there's plenty of digital investment in the regions, but it continues to deliver a 'patchwork quilt' of connectivity:

"[The] ongoing investment by all levels of government to bridge the digital gap. This activity, while with the best intentions, has taken place in an uncoordinated manner, resulting in what has become defined as a 'patchwork quilt' of connectivity in the region."

Page 22 - 2021 Regional Telecommunications Review, Western Queensland Alliance of Councils submission.

The Alliance acknowledges all three levels of government have strived to improve the connectivity within remote Australia.

Across Western Queensland, many grants, and initiatives (public and private) have incrementally bridged the digital gap.

While welcomed, these have created a 'patchwork quilt' of connectivity that now requires a refreshed approach.

The Committee's report and the WQAC Blueprint have identified a refreshed approach and we urge the Australian Government to grasp this opportunity to achieve its objective of Australia being a digital world leader by 2030. The WQAC stands ready to be part of the solution and provide the future state model for regional Australia.

Cr Tony Rayner, Mayor of Longreach Regional Council and Chair of the Remote Area Planning and Development Board said:

"The Australian Government's Digital Economy Strategy 2030 seeks to make Australia a digital leader and has been welcomed by industry and community groups.

"For this to be achieved, closer collaboration across all levels of government and industry is vital to ensuring fair and equitable digital connectivity to every Australian."

Runners celebrate women

By Michael R Williams

As a part of celebrating International Women's Day and participating in the Women of the World Festival in Longreach, locals dressed up in all kinds of whacky outfits to celebrate at this week's Park Run.

Co-coordinator Anthony West said Park Run was a great, free, weekly timed event.

"This week across the whole of Australia we decided to make it a women's themed event," he said.

"It's all about participation, it's not a race – it's about coming along and doing something healthy for yourself."

Mr West said locals had embraced the theme of the event.

"They've done really well, we don't normally have a lot of pink at these events," he said.

"It's usually orange – the volunteer colour."

"We've seen a lot of new faces today, as well, which is great."

The Thomson River Lions Club was in attendance to support the event and provide a free sausage sizzle to runners.

They often turn up to support Park Run's more elaborate events.

"At Anzac Day last year they came along, and one of their members played the Last Post," he said.

"Afterwards we sat around and chatted."

Wowing women out west

By Michael R Williams

Visitors far and wide came to Longreach with the express purpose of celebrating the achievements of women and discussing the issues they face currently as a part of the Women of the World Festival.

Organiser Cathy Hunt said the event went extremely well.

"We've just had the most amazing, positive feedback from everybody who participated," she said.

"The way we measure events is on the impact on the people who attended, what it meant to them, and what they took away from the event.

"It will be a few days before we get all the feedback, but from the conversations we've had there have been very positive responses."

In the opening event, speakers from the community visited the Longreach State High School to speed mentor the female students.

Ms Hunt said the teachers and students gave great feedback on this as an enriching event.

On the Friday night, Red Ridge held a fashion parade.

"It was a remarkable performance to celebate Red Ridge's Canvas to Catwalk collection," she said.

"It was great to see art by local women and local women walking down the catwalk for the first time.

"All that set up the tone – weekend where you can do and say almost anything you want to, it was a very safe space where people were supported in what they do.

"The energy in the space was remarkable."

Ms Hunt said she was impressed particularly by the panel discussion on climate change.

"I know it's hard to discuss climate change in rural areas – so we looked at it from the perspective of mother nature," she said.

"Everyone know what mother nature is and what it can do to us.

"Let's challenge it from that perspective like Jodie Brown and her regenerative farming practices."

The even has gone on to inform other works done by the organising committee, including a rural women photo collage project that will feature in Brisbane's Powerhouse Museum.

Ms Hunt said it would come down to certain factors whether the festival would return, but she hopes it will.

A discussion panel on the importance of home featuring Heather Hale.

Finding her happy place

By Michael R Williams

As an organiser and presenter at the Women of the World Festival, Heather Hale was deeply enthusiastic about the event.

She spoke at the festival on the theme of home and what that means for women.

First moving to Longreach in 1981, Heather says that, despite possibly being aesthetically a misfit, she managed to find a welcoming community at the Arts and Culture Association.

She is now the president of that association and is also a producer/presenter of Saturday morning radio at the ABC.

"I met my husband in Victoria, he came from here, and I met him at a factory where we were both working and a friend of mine managed," she said.

"We lived in Melbourne – the attraction was obvious; we liked each other.

"Then there was a 7/11 store being built on the corner near our house – it was one of the first in Melbourne and we were mortified; John said 'let's go to Longreach', and so we did."

They would get married after moving to Longreach, and move into cabins near the airport.

Ms Hale was "a bit of a hippy and a biker", yet she was welcomed in by the Arts and Culture Association when she arrived.

"I came within a month of arriving to the Arts and Crafts Centre, and they were very open arms," she said.

"I'm a greeny at heart, I really feel sad as humans we're destroying the earth.

"I've always felt that – I used to go for walks with my father every morning with the dog, I used to look at the big trees on the island where we lived and think I wish I was a tree then I wouldn't have to be human anymore."

Ms Hale said she is enjoying getting older, and the opportunity to get older.

"I am currently learning to be a better creative, I'm learning to do pottery, spinning, weaving.

"I am doing a course in Arts at Uni, which I may or may not finish – does it matter? Not really.

"And I love living in Longreach, the people are fabulous."

She said she thought the Women of the World Festival was fabulous.

"There's no denying that," she said.

"It was phenomenal; Cathy and Leigh and Faiza – it was a great vision to bring this festival regionally.

"It will have made an impact on many women's lives because there were so many phenomenal stories that women told.

"Stories they may not normally tell."

Ms Hale said to young women getting started to just have a go, "just do things."

"Follow your gut feeling.

"Be less judgemental, more accepting, listen to people's stories, and be open to surprises, make noise."

The Canvas to Catwalk event was a spectacle to behold.

Reflecting on beautiful journey from Birdsville

By Michael R Williams

Now internationally recognised fashion designers, both sisters Jean-Barr Aulpunda Crombie and Joyce Anpanuwa Crombie started their lives in the desert channels before moving to Birdsville when they reached school age.

They are at the heart of the success of Red Ridge the Label.

Jean Barr still lives in Birdsville and Joyce now lives in Longreach.

Joyce said she took to art growing up in Birdsville as a youngster but didn't begin making her own fashion until 2000.

"We didn't start working with Red Ridge, either, until 2012," she said.

"We did sculpture up around the Diamantina, and our artworks are hanging up around Birdsville."

Jean-Barr started getting involved shortly after Joyce, we've been working together ever since.

"This is when we started our project, 'Two sisters talking' and working with Red Ridge," she said.

"We've been working together for quite a while now, we're still going strong."

The pair are not only known for their art and fashion work, but they have also authored children's books, and are working on an indigenous language dictionary.

Their children's books feature the language of their ancestors.

"It will have the meanings behind our language; they're just enjoyable bedtime stories with pictures and happy families," she said.

"We just want to share what knowledge with have with people.

"The younger generation, it's important for us to keep pushing it to them so they can learn."

Jean-Barr said she had always wanted to paint, and it wasn't until Joyce and a friend got her started that she mustered up the courage to do so.

"I've always wanted to put my designs on material – it was a dream for me to do so," she said.

"Doing it now, there's no looking back for us.

"We're just going to keep on doing what we're doing."

Jean-Barr said she loved the arts when she was in school.

"I didn't have the time to carry on with it, and I just left it when I got married and had kids," she said.

"Then Joyce started doing her stuff."

Joyce said art was inherent in her, but it wouldn't be until later in life that she realised it.

"It was more or less our mother, actually, that got in and pushed us to learn language as well as teaching us – so when my sister and I started this, we decided to take what she taught us and put it to art," she said.

"When it's just us out there doing all this, I find we need to get it out.

"For not only our kids, everyone."

Both Joyce and Jean-Barr said no one could guess how proud they are of their work.

"Even our family, even the kids having our paintings and keeping them at home – it makes us proud," Joyce said.

"Being with Red Ridge – Louise has pushed us to our limits.

"Helping us establish our, Canvas to Catwalk – and now it's gone international, I'm really really pleased about this.

"It's something we were never taught we could achieve."

Red Ridge have been behind a number of projects that help empower women, including the Women Walking in Harmony project.

Joyce is now out teaching other women how to paint and encouraging young women to chase their goals.

What’s on

Set for big arts weekend

By Michael R Williams

Locals can get excited as Griffith University is bringing an array of different artistic projects for those who are interested to sink their teeth into.

Notably, one event will be the first time Luminescent Longreach combines with the Queensland Symphony Orchestra and the Queensland Conservatorium for a magical night of visuals and music.

Associate Professor and Deputy Director of Engagement Peter Morris said the Orchestra performs often in regional centres, and this year they will be kicking off the season with an inaugural event in Longreach.

“There’s a lot of exciting extras to it,” he said.

“Because the weekend hosts an education program in both visual art, film, and music - we have 100 students involved this weekend.

Mr Morris said the Luminescent show on Thursday will be spectacular with the orchestras playing along with the light show.

“That’s really cool,” he said.

“For anyone who’s seen the Luminescent show, it will be amazing.

“The idea is that it’s not a stuffy concert by any means.”

On Friday, the education program begins.

Mr Morris said the students would be people from Longreach and people from all over the State.

“On the Friday night, we’re doing a music social for anyone in town,” he said.

“We have the town band on board and students from the high school and we’re just going to play music that’s fun.

Winton secures monsoon funding

Two Winton projects have secured $124,000 under this round of the Coalition Government's North Queensland Recovery and Resilience Grants (Stream 2) because of severe impacts from the 2019 Monsoon Trough.

Member for Maranoa David Littleproud said that three years after this catastrophic event it remains a priority for the Government to support the region and build resilience.

"As part of the North Queensland Recovery and Resilience Grants (Stream 2), $124,000 in funding has been awarded to Winton projects for flood mitigation measures to stop run off on an applicant's and neighbouring properties and controlling invasive weeds to minimise spread into Werna and Wokingham Creeks," Mr Littleproud said.

"This funding will directly support locally led initiatives to improve land conditions through increased biodiversity, improve management of natural resources and ultimately increase the sustainability and viability of the region.

"Both projects are the result of extensive consultation with individuals, business owners, local government and the working groups established to support the implementation of the region's long-term recovery strategy." Round two ($7.4 million) of the North Queensland Recovery and Resilience Grants (Stream 2) is now open with co-contribution grants of between $10,000 and $200,000 available on a competitive basis. Applications close on 29 April 2022.

New health chief

Hospitals across the Central West will be welcoming a new chief executive as of 14 March.

Central West Health executive director of finance, infrastructure and support services Chris Sullivan will take over from Anthony West going forward, and Central West Hospital and Health Board Chair Ms Jane Williams thanked Mr West for his leadership during the past few months as the health service managed the wide-spread transmission of Covid-19 in our communities.

“His steady hand, strong focus and commitment have seen us through some critical times. Mr West will return to his normal position as General Manager Primary Health,” she said.

“Mr Sullivan will take over as acting chief executive until such time as the future of the Health System Covid Response Team headed by Ms Hancock is reviewed by Queensland Health.

“Mr Sullivan brings a wealth of experience to the chief executive position.”

Mr Sullivan joined Central West Health in December 2020 from Mater Health Services, where he held an executive management position.

“Prior to his time with Mater Health Services, Mr Sullivan had an extensive career with PwC Consulting and has a professional passion for improving health services through the development of innovative and sustainable models of care,” Ms Williams said.

“He holds a Master of Business Administration and a Bachelor of Business majoring in Professional Accounting.

“He is also an Associate Fellow of the Australian College of Health Services Management, a Member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants Australia, and a Graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors.

“I am sure the Central West community will join me in congratulating Mr Sullivan on his interim appointment and thanking Mr West for his dedication during his time as Acting Chief Executive.”

As of 14 March, Chris Sullivan will be the new Chief Executive of Central West Hospital and Health Service.

Wellshot pick of Nomads

The famous Wellshot Hotel has been named the winner of the 2021 Best Grey Nomad Pub Stay.

The Grey Nomad Awards shine a light on regional Australia by showcasing the very best places to stay and play, while supporting positive aging through soft adventure and social inclusion.

With rigorous judging by mature-age tourism professionals, some of whom have experienced the grey nomad lifestyle personally, plus second-tier auditing and due diligence, the Wellshot Hotel's win has the credence of the tourism sector.

The judges said “Grey nomads are critically important to the economy of most regional communities. In ensuring the success of this hotel as a must-stay for grey nomads, the Wellshot Hotel is supporting every business in and around Longreach while encouraging senior travellers to stay longer in this unique pocket of Australia”.

In commenting on the success of the Wellshot Hotel Ilfracombe, the judges said, “Tracey and her team clearly embrace their personal and professional mantras of “doing what we love - loving what we do”.

“They showed us how proud they were of winning the Gold Award for the Best Grey Nomad Pub Stay last year by raising the bar to double their winnings,” they said. “That included fundraising thousands of dollars for Black Dog Institute to assist individuals who have required support during the pandemic, and evolving to become more than a pub with the coffee hatch, a local support program where any visitor who spends $25 at another local Ilfracombe business gets a free coffee, new merchandise and a new brand.

“Grey Nomads are not looking for 5-star accommodation with all the bells and whistles, but rather an authentic experience where they can camp comfortably and safely while enjoying the local area. The Wellshot Hotel Ilfracombe delivers that in spades.”

OPINION LeaderToday.com.au

Show our heritage

The main reason for the closing of Longreach's Star Cinema seems to be the high rental cost of modern films.

Some of us believe other films rarely seen by the present generation are even better films than the modern ones, and could be cheaper to rent or even free to show.

Winton has made a success with the showing of old films.

Surely Longreach is capable of matching Winton in showing our heritage to people.

Festival brought out a WoW factor

Good to back with after another busy fortnight. I'd like to start by congratulating everyone involved in the fantastic WoW Festival held in Longreach last weekend.

The Women of the World Festival was really well received by a strong crowd of locals and visitors from across the central west and beyond.

The festival aligned with celebrations for Queensland Women's Week and International Women's Day.

One of the strengths of the WoW festival is its integration of locals and their stories.

Alongside the visiting speakers and presenters were conversations with local women, celebrating and sharing their own regionally significant experiences.

The vibrant marketplace showcased local wares from all over the outback, and the conversations over the weekend were punctuated by live music, dance and cabaret.

It's a major festival and we were very lucky to have it here in our region.

A big thank you to the many locals, including the Deputy Mayor and members of our RADF committee, who partnered with WoW to make the festival happen in such a relevant and meaningful way for our region.

I chaired a bi-annual meeting of the Longreach Disaster Management Group last week.

These meetings bring together all of the partners in Disaster Management, including Council, and state agencies such as Police, Health, Fire and Emergency Services, and other stakeholders.

The recent events in southeast Queensland and northern New South Wales are a timely reminder of the importance of Prevention, Planning, and Preparation in Disaster Management.

Our region is in good shape, and during the meeting, we adopted a number of revised sub-plans to help guide future responses.

I also attended the District Disaster Management Group, chaired by Inspector Julia Cook, and gave an update on developments at the local level.

Councillors had an initial meeting with senior staff last week to discuss the preparation of our 2022-23 Budget.

Budget oversight is a duty my colleagues and I take very seriously.

Fiscal responsibility is always a high priority for rural and remote local governments, and there will be many more of these meetings and workshops over the next several months as we work towards the adoption of the next Budget.

Financial sustainability will be high on the agenda when the Deputy Mayor, our Economic Development Officer, and I attend the Western Queensland Alliance of Councils Annual Assembly in Charleville this week.

Housing, digital connectivity, and road network planning are the other key strategic areas for the alliance.

There will also be a strong focus on the upcoming federal election, and we'll be hearing from both the major parties about what they have in store for local government if they win.

The 22 Councils of the Western Queensland Alliance share many challenges, and the assembly is recognised by state and federal governments as being a significant voice for rural and remote Australia.

I'm pleased to report that the weir that was damaged during the last run in the Thomson River has now been fully repaired.

Can I just say a big thank you to our engineers and crews who got in quickly and decisively to get the job done.

Before I go, please note that Council issued rates notices last Friday.

If you don't receive your rates notice within ten days, please get in touch with us.

As always, there are payment plans available – get in touch with Council directly for more information.

I'll be back with another column in two weeks.

Until then, you can find direct emails and phone numbers for me and each of my fellow Councillors at longreach.qld.gov.au/elected-members.

If you want to know anything at all, reach out to one of us – or contact Council directly on (07) 4658 4111 (24hrs), or via email to assist@longreach.qld.gov.au.

"Despite its minimal flaws, Peacemaker is a superhero show that can be enjoyed by diehards or "tired ofs"; a rare commodity to be sure."

Cena brings peace, love, and laughs

The success of director James Gunn has been nothing short of powerful; his rise from a small-time film creator into one of Hollywood's most beloved directors was a joy to witness.

Last year saw Gunn release The Suicide Squad, a superhero phenomenon that would see many characters such as Peacemaker become loved by fans, resulting in this series of the same name which many are calling just as good if not better.

James Gunn has always been a master of writing combative characters that still maintain a measure of humility and charm, with not only Peacemaker, but the rest of the cast being no different.

The cast is held together by a compelling story that may not hold together at the best of times but makes you root for their often over-bearing egos when it counts.

Peacemaker takes a bit to get going, with the first few episodes dragging along as the lucrative number of jokes and expositions leaves little for viewers to become truly invested in, but by the time episode five comes around, that's when the show cranks it up another gear to become something unforgettable in all the right ways.

The best comedies mix amusing, ludicrous humour with earnest, substantial emotion, creating a wealth of character advancement which allows them to become people with actual character rather than uninteresting, tedious archetypes utilised in every bland piece of media.

Peacemaker is no different, blending the iconic wit that is James Gunn's writing with his equally as impressive vision for mawkish, impassioned moments of emotion that all feel well-deserved because of the performances given by all involved.

Many comic book adaptations rely on viewers being well-versed in the complete history of their characters, but Peacemaker manages to be genuinely funny, emotional, and interesting without any prior commitment to the property.

The show may take a while to get going, but the ever-eccentric Gunn brings punk to this series, as well as a poignant statement and ending which has left fans, such as myself, wanting more.

Despite its minimal flaws, Peacemaker is a superhero show that can be enjoyed by diehards or "tired ofs"; a rare commodity to be sure.

VOX POP WE TAKE IT TO THE STREETS

Lucy Senior said her female idol was her mum because she's a top sheila.

Avril Fazel said she could not narrow down one female idol.

"That would be reductionist," she said.

"Pretty much - any woman who is out there still trying to work on making the world a better place for other women and bringing other people up with them."

Adele Pentland said her idol was Pat Rich for her achievements. "She's been honoured with Order of Australia," she said.

"She's done work on early fossil life and she found important dinosaurs in Victoria."

Who is your female idol?

The Four Canines of the Apocalypse

Mustering is one of the 'fun jobs' on a property. At least, it is for us.

Usually, it's all hands—and paws—on deck. We brought a mob of sheep in the other day for a bit of stock work.

I had Jess and the youngest in the back of my ute, while Pop had the lads.

We got to that point in the muster where the cunning old ewes were eyeing off an escape route so they could sneak off with their lambs, while the rest of the mob propped when they reached the shade of one of the few trees scattered across the rolling downs. Then the Four Canines of the Apocalypse descended from the vehicles and sprang into action, livening things up.

All the while the strains of 'Chevaliers de Sangreal' from the Da Vinci Code soundtrack played in the background (the bit when they reach that monstrosity of a pyramid at the Louvre).

The music built in intensity when Major came running at the sight of water and splashed through it in arcs that were in synch with the strings.

While the music rose to a crescendo, Buddy came bounding across the paddock, strength, and grace in motion, as he swept behind the tail to get the mob moving again, showing the younger ones how it's done, with all the assurance of a seasoned veteran.

When things are going smoothly, we run like a well-oiled machine, every cog in place, every person (and dog) where needed.

Vehicles move back and forth in coordinated tracks, ensuring the mob keeps together.

Dogs do their bit, keeping the mob moving in the right direction.

On a good day, like this one, the whole muster seems to go like clockwork.

It's truly a sight to behold.

As you may have guessed, not all days are 'good days'.

Occasionally everything is discombobulated when an over-enthusiastic pup splits the mob or a kangaroo unexpectedly bounces up in front of the mob.

Or a snake.

Being a little off the main road, we rarely have a vehicle disrupt a muster, though it has been known to happen.

Gates are always fun.

No one seems to want to be the first through.

The entire mob can simply stand and stare at the open gateway.

Once they start moving, though, they all go nuts, charging as one and trying to get through the gate at the same time.

They dash, leap and push until mission accomplished.

When we finally reach the yards, dogs curl up in a spot of shade and humans reach for the thermos and enjoy a much-needed break.

Then the next job begins.

Keys to freedom

Wentworth standout Danielle Cormack tells Siobhan Duck about Life on the Outside, the new SBS documentary series which asks the question: would you let an ex-prisoner stay in your home?

Danielle Cormack is a big believer in second chances. It's for this reason that Cormack – best known for playing Bea Smith in Foxtel's prison drama Wentworth – wouldn't hesitate to share her home with a former inmate to give them a better chance at a fresh start.

It may seem like an unorthodox idea, but Cormack says research shows the biggest reasons people reoffend is the lack of housing and support they receive once they're out.

Cormack wonders: could things be different if, upon release, instead of leaving jail for an unknown future, someone went to live with in a stable and loving home?

This groundbreaking approach to rehabilitation is explored in Life on the Outside. Cormack hosts this riveting three-part SBS series where released prisoners stay with Australian families for 100 days. The hope is the experience will better equip them to leave the prison system for good.

Long before Wentworth, Cormack had already spent years trying to better understand what causes people to offend and how to better support them.

"I was approached by the producers to do this because of the work I have been doing in New Zealand with an organisation that supports at risk youth and women who have been incarcerated and often the at-risk youth have also been part of the criminal justice system," Cormack explains.

"We work to help upskill them and educate them about communication and getting back into the workplace to help break those cycles that they or their families have been part of."

"It seemed to me that there was something very similar about the themes and the subject matter of this show that I felt comfortable aligning myself with because having been inside those workshops and talking to people who have been in the system its clear that something needs to change. And this is a show that highlights the potential to do things differently."

Of course, its not all smooth sailing. And Cormack understands that it's not an approach that works for all parolees.

But for participants like Sierra and Jeremy, whose struggles with addiction have led them to the commit crimes which have landed them in jail, this program could be a game-changer.

Yes, on paper, it may sound like a risky proposition. And Cormack assures all participants were vetted before taking part and they all have access to 24-hour case workers.

"It may not work for everyone but if you can help just one person well,

Helping hand:
Empty-nester Amanda, left, agreed to house Sierra, who spent 13 months in police custody.

that's a pretty good start," she says.

"When you look at some statistics, one out of four people will reoffend within that first three months of being released. That shouldn't be happening so clearly there's a big crack in the system that needs to be fixed. This show certainly doesn't purport to have all the answers, but it is promising to ask the question of what other support networks can we put in place to help people that have experienced probably a lot of traumas in their life?"

"That have had no support for most of their life. And in the end, they are suffering because they're in a vulnerable situation and it's also costing the taxpayer a lot of money."

Cormack says it costs roughly $110,000 a year to house a prisoner. And there are currently 40,000 people in Australian jails. When you also factor in that 50 per cent of prisoners end up back behind bars within two years of their release it becomes a costly enterprise not to mention a vicious cycle for those trapped within it.

Put simply, Cormack believes the prison system is failing us all. And to simply lock someone up and throw away the key, isn't fixing anything.

Instead, Cormack advocates empathy and an open mind.

"Often these are people who have just had a really challenging start to life, and there was not really a lot of hope to them," she says.

"I'm privileged to have had an education and a supportive family but there but for the grace of God, I could have been in that situation and ended up in a place like that to be labelled a criminal for the rest of my life."

"I really think we need to review how we stigmatise people who are doing it tough. An initiative like this, the very essence of it is that to give people a second chance, you might be able to change someone's life course."

Wentworth has already gone some way to shifting misconceptions about inmates. With its OTT storylines and heightened drama Wentworth was certainly not intended as a realistic portrayal of prison life but it did spotlight some frightening home truths.

In fact, many former inmates and their families have contacted Cormack to say how grateful they were for the way that Wentworth humanised prisoner experiences.

Cormack's character, Bea – loosely based on the iconic character portrayed by Val Lehman in the 1970s series Prisoner – was a victim of domestic violence who snapped.

While Wentworth's cast of prisoners has a huge fanbase who looked beyond the characters' crimes to the person themselves, that same empathy is not often afforded to those who are incarcerated in real life.

It is Cormack's hope that the participants of Life on the Outside will be met with similar understanding.

"I imagine this could be quite polarising for people," she says.

"But I'd like people to watch the show, rather than forming opinions about 'criminals' who are locked away and hopefully ask them to think more laterally, or broadly about this kind of experience."

Movie Guide

PICK OF THE WEEK

Friday
GREEN BOOK
Seven/Prime7, 8.30pm, M (2018)

SOUTHERN COMFORTS

Along for the ride:
Viggo Mortensen
and Mahershala Ali
in Green Book.

LOOKING FOR ERIC
ABC TV Plus, Friday, 10.25pm, MA15+ (2009)

INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE
Seven/Prime7, Saturday, 7.30pm, PG (1989)

It seems the dashing adventurer just can't get in enough trouble. In this third film, the scholarly Indy Sr (played with wonderful reserve by Sean Connery) is kidnapped by Nazis on the hunt for the Holy Grail and Indy Jr (Harrison Ford, pictured, right with Connery) must come to the rescue. With director Steven Spielberg at his inventive best and an early appearance from the late River Phoenix as the teenage Indiana, it's the most fun to be had since Raiders of the Lost Ark. ★★★★★

BOOKSMART
SBS World Movies, Saturday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2019)

First-time feature director Olivia Wilde changes the traditionally male-dominated raunchy teen comedy game with this good-girls-try-to-go-bad entry. After devoting their teenage years to achieving academic excellence, best friends Amy (Kaitlyn Dever) and Molly (Beanie Feldstein, pictured, left with Dever) can't believe their fun-loving classmates have futures just as bright as their own. The high achievers embark on a madcap mission to make up for four years' worth of missed parties. ★★★★★

ANOTHER ROUND
SBS World Movies, Sunday, 8.30pm, M (2020)

Winner of Best International Feature Film at the 2021 Academy Awards, this Danish comedy-drama stars the wonderful Mads Mikkelsen (pictured) in fine form as Martin, a teacher who, along with three of his colleagues, embarks on an experiment to test a theory of Norwegian psychiatrist Finn Skårderud by binge-drinking to see its everyday effects. The execution exceeds its premise as the film explores not only drinking culture, but astutely confronts existential themes. ★★★★★

THE DARK KNIGHT RISES
7mate, Monday, 8.30pm, M (2012)

Of all the superheroes, Batman arguably has the biggest cross to bear. Tormented as a child after seeing his parents killed, he spent his days trying to clean up the most dangerous city imaginable. But it all became too much after the events of The Dark Knight. After eight years of self-imposed exile, the Caped Crusader is enticed back to Gotham City to save it from the brutal Bane (Tom Hardy). This final instalment in director Christopher Nolan's trilogy is the darkest of the lot. ★★★

SICARIO: DAY OF THE SOLDADO
9Go!, Tuesday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2018)

This sequel to Denis Villeneuve's accomplished 2015 film misses some of its key players, but it does retain its grim intensity. As the drug war continues to escalate on the US-Mexico border, a CIA agent (Josh Brolin) enlists the help of a mysterious operative (Benicio del Toro) to kidnap the daughter (Isabela Moner, pictured with del Toro) of a crime boss. The film stylishly portrays the complexity of the border conflict, but be warned that it also does it in a ruthless and violent way. ★★★

ABC TV,
Friday, 8.30pm

Starring Sheridan Smith (Gavin & Stacey, pictured), there's more than a whiff of melodrama and cheesy dialogue in the four-part British drama. The Teacher is a wayward cocktail of inappropriate behaviour, jealous colleagues and backstabbing friends, which all sounds very promising until it gives you a headache. Is it the story of a popular teacher going off the rails, or a case of some bad decisions and nefarious students? Time will tell, if you choose to partake in this fizzy tale of a flawed female. It all begins to go pear-shaped as English teacher Jenna Garvey (Smith) is accused of sleeping with her pupil after a night out celebrating a promotion.

CELEBRITY LETTERS AND NUMBERS

SBS, Saturday, 7.30pm

Ordinary folk can turn out to be not so "ordinary" as they show off their impressive brain matter in this lighthearted and fun game show. But plunk a few celebrities into the mathematical and alphabetical flurry and the entertainment level goes up a few decibels. This week, host Michael Hing (pictured) is joined by comedians Benjamin Law, Concetta Caristo, Bob Downe and Carlo Ritchie in a test of their word and numerical resourcefulness.

COMPASS

ABC TV Plus, Sunday, 7.30pm

After more than 30 years of stories revolving around the intersection between religion and life, recently Compass has branched out with a series of "sacred space" episodes. This week, these insightful and intimate instalments return with journalist, podcaster and TV host Marc Fennell opening up his safe space: the kitchen. He chats with host Geraldine Doogue (pictured with Fennell) about his Pentecostal upbringing, multicultural family, complex relationship with food, as well as his hopes for Australia.

SCOTLAND: ESCAPE TO THE WILDERNESS

SBS, Monday, 7.30pm

The past couple of years have highlighted that escaping to some sort of wilderness is high on many peoples' wish lists. But we can't all just pack up and leave, which is where this charmingly therapeutic series punches above its weight. It features wildlife cameraman Hamza Yassin (pictured) adventuring with celebrities through Scotland's picturesque landscapes. This week, actor Martin Clunes (Doc Martin) joins Yassin in the Inner Hebrides and the Isle of Mull.

Fresh start: The cast of How I Met Your Father, from left: Suraj Sharma, Tom Ainsley, Francia Raisa, Hilary Duff, Chris Lowell and Tien Tran.

HEART TO HEART

HOW I MET YOUR FATHER
Streaming, Star on Disney+

Whether you call it a reboot, a reimagining or a revival – bringing any beloved TV sitcom back in a new format, with a new cast or a new country is fraught with danger.

Inspired by hit series How I Met Your Mother, which ended in 2014 after nine seasons, this stand-alone sequel is worth the risk.

It follows Sophie (Hilary Duff), a photographer living in New York City and looking for love. Her story is told by her future self (Kim Cattrall), and begins on the night she meets her son's father.

On her mission to find the one, beleaguered Sophie has already been on 87 Tinder dates in a year. How I Met Your Father picks up on the night of what 2050 Sophie calls "the best first date I'd ever been on".

There's plenty of nostalgia for fans of HIMYM that confirms the two shows share a world, and one very familiar apartment, but the format is slightly different. Unlike the original series, which seemed to introduce a new love interest and potential mother almost every episode, from the start it's clear that Sophie's big love is already in her life.

Not only in terms of romantic love, but her close-knit group of friends: roommate Valentina (Francia Raisa), endearingly naive Charlie (Tom Ainsley), doctor-turned-publican Sid (Suraj Sharma), aspiring musician Jesse (Chris Lowell) and his recently divorced sister Ellen (Tien Tran). Not a single one of them fits neatly into a character from the original series, and How I Met Your Father is all the stronger for it.

LUCY & DESI
Streaming, Prime Video

Hot on the heels of Aaron Sorkin's beguiling Oscar-nominated drama Being the Ricardos, this documentary from director Amy Poehler continues the Lucy love fest. Poehler explores the rise of her idol; comedy icon Lucille Ball, her relationship with Desi Arnaz (pictured with Ball), and how their groundbreaking sitcom I Love Lucy changed Hollywood forever.

THE FEED: TIME TO BUY
Streaming, SBS On Demand

Teaming with comedian Tom Cardy for this one-off all-singing, all-dancing fever dream of an episode, The Feed's comedy team have outdone themselves. It's a musical about the Australian housing market, complete with dodgy landlords and auction anxiety. Vic Zerbst and Montaigne (both pictured) play a millennial couple trying to buy their first home.

PIECES OF HER
Streaming, Netflix

When a mother and daughter are caught in a shooting at their local diner, Andy (Bella Heathcote) witnesses her seemingly ordinary mum Laura (Toni Collette, pictured with Omari Hardwick) eliminate the lethal threat with action-star ease. Desperate for answers, Andy goes on a dangerous journey across America to unravel the dark secrets of Laura's past.

OUTLANDER
Streaming, Foxtel On Demand

The "Droughtlander" is finally over! Season six of the wildly popular romantic drama is here, almost two years since we last saw the Fraser clan. Now that they've built a home in North Carolina, Jamie (Sam Heughan) and his time-travelling love Claire (Caitríona Balfe, pictured with Heughan) find themselves forced to defend their community.

SHOW ME THE MONEY
Streaming, Stan

The team behind Making Their Mark is at it again with this revealing docuseries that goes inside the AFL's trade period. Show Me the Money features four of the country's most prominent and influential player agencies as their agents (including Colin Young, pictured) negotiate on the behalf of star players, shaping futures, fortunes and the game of footy itself.

The time for Sweet Peas

Have you thought about planting a fragrant winter flowering wall of colour?

The Sweet Pea or Lathyrus odoratus could be the perfect plant.

Traditionally Sweet Peas should be planted around St. Patrick's Day but you can sow seed until Anzac Day and still be successful.

Locally, Sweet Peas have been grown in many Central Queensland gardens for more than 100 years.

Sweet Peas made excellent cut flowers as well as producing showy winter floral displays.

This plant could be used in a number of locations from covering a trellis or screens to being great for pots or hanging baskets.

These days there are a wide variety of flower colours for the gardener.

These colours range from white, blue, lavender, purple, and pink through to red.

If you are purchasing packets of Sweet Pea seed always check that the seed is Australian.

Sweet Peas are fairly hardy but a few handy hints for success should include Sweet Pea seed will rot in wet soil.

Ideally, it would be helpful if dolomite was added to the Sweet Pea garden last month.

When preparing the seed soak the Sweet Pea seed in water overnight to soften the seed coat.

Always water the soil where the seed is to be planted then water the garden after planting the seed.

But then don't water again until the seed has sprouted.

Grandmother Caladiums

Do you remember as a child your Grandmother's Bush House?

I remember my Grandmother's Bush House very well with all of its Terracotta Pots filled with wonderful plant specimens.

And of all the plants in her Bush House it was here collection of Caladiums.

Some had foliage of dark green with white, pink, and red speckles; some with dark red centres with wide green borders then there was one large plant with pink with red veins and pink-speckled green fringes on dark green foliage.

And my favourite Caladium with bright green foliage a creamy white centre with white veins

Caladiums are part of a group of plants known as Aroids.

Caladiums are clumping tuberous perennial plants grown for their long-lasting, colourful foliage.

Caladiums can be grown either as a potted plant or as a shade plant in the garden.

Foliage colours can range in various shades of red, pink, white, and green to yellow-greens.

There are two basic types of caladium cultivation: fancy and strap-leaved.

Sweet Peas Robinson's Garden.

Fancy leaved varieties have large, heart-shaped, or semi-heart-shaped leaves.

The strap varieties have smaller, narrower, elongated leaves giving the plants a more compact habit.

Strap-leaved caladiums produce more leaves per tuber than fancy-leaved caladiums.

Fancy leaved varieties range in height from 30 to 50cm while most strap leaved varieties are less than 30cm in height.

Caladiums grow best in the partial shade of open, high-branched trees.

They will need protection from full sun and also, they are not tolerant to both frost and drought conditions.

Some of the newer hybrids will tolerate exposure to full sun for a couple of hours a day.

Most pink-leaved caladiums can develop a brownish, scorched appearance when grown in sun.

They will perform quite well in full shade but the colour may not be as good.

In the garden, Caladiums will perform best in a well-drained position but must have ample moisture.

Caladiums are hungry plants and do require regular fertilising during the warmer months in order to produce good tubers for the next growing season.

Fertiliser containing slightly higher phosphorus and also with added potash should be applied every four to six weeks during the warmer months.

Never use high nitrogen fertiliser on Caladiums as it can cause the plant to produce more green leaves than the coloured ones.

Another important hint to know in growing Caladiums is not allowing the fertiliser to come in contact with the foliage.

It is always best to thoroughly water your Caladiums after applying the fertiliser to prevent fertiliser burn.

Caladiums are very worthy Bush House plants that could find a home in your Bush House.

Mrs Hughes's Store.

Clarke's Store.

Longreach's corner stores

By Longreach Archival And Historical Research Group

For those of us who are old enough, the mention of the words “corner store” can bring back a flood of wonderful memories.

In the “olden days”, most of the shopping was done close to home, even in a small town like Longreach.

Not everyone had a car, so people were less mobile back then.

There were a number of corner stores in Longreach, but they have now all but disappeared due mainly to the rise of the motor car and of supermarket chains such as Foodworks and IGA.

In most cases, each corner store was run by the family who owned the store with the family members working long but rewarding hours.

In some instances, the family lived at the rear of the shop, often toiling behind closed doors to restock shelves.

In some cases the owner lived close by, which could be a distinct disadvantage, as folk would call on them for service, even though information had been displayed regarding the trading hours.

One corner store which no longer stands was Conaghan's on the corner of Swan and Ibis Streets, diagonally across from the State School.

Prior to becoming a store owner, Mrs Conaghan conducted the horse-carrying business of her late husband.

Due to the fact, motor lorries were replacing horses, Mrs Conaghan made the prudent move to open a store on the site where a pioneering ice-making factory had previously operated.

Conaghan's store was stocked with groceries, produce, stationery, and soft drinks.

Mrs Conaghan must have been a remarkable woman, for as well as running the store, she conducted piano lessons.

She later sold the store to Les and Lurl Fraser who in turn sold to Bill Affoo.

The store was closed in the 1960s but later reopened as a hairdressers, then later a sign-writer conducted business from there.

Sadly the building was demolished and replaced by a residence.

Another former corner store with an interesting history is that of Mrs E. A. Hughes.

The store was situated in Crane Street, north Longreach.

Mrs Hughes was another enterprising lady.

She was the first female to be elected to the Longreach Shire Council (as it was then known), the Longreach Fire Brigade Board, and the Longreach Hospital Board.

She was also a staunch member of the Australian Labor Party, the Q.C.W.A., and the School of Arts.

The late Wally Crust ran the store for several years until its closure.

Unfortunately, both the shop and the house next door were burned down, and a new house was built.

For a number of years, the northern part of Longreach was also served by a corner store which was combined with a butcher's shop and a fish and chip shop.

Mr Len Pullinger owned a store in Falcon Street and the family lived in a house at the rear of the shop.

When Mr Pullinger passed away, the store was carried on under the management of Mrs D. Fraser.

There was a store on the corner of Quail and Falcon Streets which eventually became the Town Band Hall but at the present time is unused.

A popular shop owned by W and V Clarke was situated at 97 Cassowary Street.

Even though it wasn't actually on a corner, it was always referred to as a “corner” store.

This store sold almost everything and served the eastern and northern part of the town for many years.

It was built in the early 1950s and sold in the 1960s and pulled down.

Mr Jack Hurkett was another early store-keeper and built up a solid business on the corner of Crane and Duck Streets.

He sold groceries, confectionery, and all classes of electrical goods.

He also conducted a car hire business from his store, operated a Texaco petrol bowser and was the agent for Radiola and Tasma Wireless Receivers.

The store and the dwelling next door were destroyed by fire on Christmas Eve, 1935.

One of the unique occurrences among these corner stores was their unwritten policy where they borrowed items from each other.

If one store was short of potatoes, they would borrow from another store and pay them back when their own supplies arrived.

The present Foodworks has a long and interesting past.

The original building was moved from Galah Street where it was a paint shop.

It was moved by the bullock team and set up as a grocery store.

As the town expanded, so did the store.

Mr Louie Hong Hoc and family conducted the business until it was taken over by Mr Harold Ramage.

Harold's son David and his wife Pam eventually sold out and it became Foodworks.

Today it is a flourishing enterprise, giving employment to many people and offering great service to town and country folk.

The owners and their staff work long hours, which has always been the case with such businesses.

Best of the bricks

By Michael R Williams

Local lego creatives have revealed their best work, and now the judges have spoken.

The annual Barker's Newsagency Lego Competition was started Leanne Luck with the hope of filling her front window in between the Christmas and Back to School periods.

She said this year had the theme of "The Outback".

"I normally let it go and let the kids just do whatever they like," she said.

"But it had to be original.

"This year our judge, Jacen Carpenter - the local lego guru, he thought we should do a theme."

Locals took to the theme, entering pieces on animals, local stores, tourist destinations, and shearing sheds.

Ms Luck said the judge was very technical - taking photos, videos and he conducts a rigorous scoring routine with various tiers of marking.

"The winners come from his scores," she said.

"I've noticed the kids have been moving towards dioramas, which is great, it makes it bigger and better."

One of the winning dioramas was made by Andy and Tom Gowing who recreated their property Glenaris.

Tom said he had come up with the idea of recreating their home.

"It's a scene where a family have gone on to this property, and set up a home," he said.

"My favourite part is the shed with all the vehicles.

"And I thought the water pond would be nice because every property has a dam on it."

Andy said his favourite was the dogs.

"I have also hidden an iguana," he said.

Tom said the pair had put in five to six hours labour into the project.

He said some days, the boys love to play with their lego after school.

Andy said he loves to be able to build whatever he likes.

Tom said he loves building anything, it doesn't matter what it is.

Andy and Tom Gowing were among the winners.

Bulloo blitzing dog divide

A unique program aimed at bridging the divide between council and landholders around wild dog management is winning kudos in local government circles for Bulloo Shire.

The LGA has taken a proactive nil-tenure approach to wild dog management with a dedicated team of three staff travelling thousands of kilometres to meet remote landholders face-to-face to help resolve issues.

A finalist in the Local Government Excellence Awards, Bulloo's Rural Services staff notched up 8000km last financial year talking to landholders about baiting coordination and training, chemical certificates/training, exclusion fencing, drought support, water agreement facilitation, invasive animal and plant management and providing wellbeing support.

Although wild dogs are front and centre for many of the landholders, the team has also facilitated training programs in property mapping, bovine pregnancy testing, creek repairs, farm safety and livestock supplementation.

Team members draw on resources from PestSmart, Feralscan, AgForce, Southern Queensland Landscapes and Department of Agriculture and Fisheries.

Rural Services manager Donna Hobbs developed the program from the ground up following a suggestion from Bulloo Mayor John Ferguson the disconnect between Council and landholders needed to be resolved.

“Council wanted to provide valuable services to the landholders,” Ms Hobbs said.

“Our Rural Lands Officer now has a liaison focus so he is not just spraying weeds or helping someone set a dog trap but is talking to landholders about their issues.

“We held wild dog trapping workshops and included mental health and wellbeing with Queensland Feral Pest Initiative funding.”

The funding has enabled a coordinated strategic aerial 1080 baiting program covering 795,557ha and wild dog trapping and monitoring assistance for three properties covering 178,200ha.

Two coordinated aerial 1080 baiting programs in November 2020 and May 2021 resulted in 11 wild dogs trapped, two shot, 34 scalps received, and 8962kg of bait meat distributed.

Wild dog fence near Wombula.

Council provides subsidised meat baits to encourage landholder participation in wild dog management.

Ms Hobbs said Rural Services works collaboratively with NSW Local Land Services, and neighbouring Quilpie and Paroo Shires on simultaneous and coordinated baiting campaigns.

She paid tribute to the groundwork undertaken by the Western Queensland DogWatch Committee funded by AgForce and Australian Wool Innovation.

“We aim to reduce ad hoc baiting and achieve a blanket approach from St George at the border to the north of the state,” she said.

“Three years ago, we did have quite a large wild dog problem but since everyone has been committed to the aerial and ground baiting and trapping programs the dog numbers have steadied up in the last 12 months.

“People are putting that down to continued effort but if we take our foot off the pedal it will creep back quickly.”

Mark and Tay Luckraft operate an earth-moving business and also help run the family-owned Yakara Station at Thargomindah.

They have received property visits from the Rural Services staff and attended training workshops.

Tay said isolated landholders appreciated the contact, especially to discuss their needs around drought support or mental well-being.

The couple take part in the aerial and ground baiting programs each May and November but concede it can be a struggle when absentee landholders do not bait.

“We have exclusion fencing with a neighbour and we also connect to the wild dog barrier fence on our boundary – on our sheep country we run two plain electric wires on a six wire fence,” Tay said.

She said the exclusion fencing and coordinated baiting programs resulted in a lamb marking of 110 per cent in their Dorper flock in 2021.

Tay paid tribute to former wild dog coordinator Skyela Kruger for her assistance to the region's landholders and organising trapping training workshops.

Large volumes and exchange rates impact wool market

Large volumes and foreign exchange rates conspired against wool prices this week at the Australian wool auctions.

Increases in wool value in all currencies were recorded, except for the most important for Australian woolgrowers - the AUD.

The most significant forex appreciation was seen on the Euro v AUD, as an almost three per cent gain on forex alone had the active European operators revaluing their buying levels. The one-millionth Australian bale of the season was sold this week compared to that figure being reached week 38 last season

In the dominant USD and CNY trading rates, a 1.5 per cent gain on both against the AUD saw opportunities for local gains evaporate. In all instances, if rates of exchange had remained similar, the market would have seen AUD levels better, indicative of the stronger demand that exporters are reporting.

As a result, the Eastern Market Indicator (EMI) finished 14ac lower this week to close selling at 1407ac/clean kg.

A higher passed in rate revealed the preparedness of grower sellers to hold if price expectations were not met.

The Western Market Indicator (WMI) dropped 15ac to 1444ac/clean kg and just 84.7 per cent cleared to the trade.

In USD terms the EMI gained 4usc or 0.4 per cent to round out the week at 1027 usc/clean kg.

Logistics issues continue to hamper the “normal” trading of wool with shipping delays and hence payment delays obstructing full operations of all participants each week.

In a positive, many key buyer exporters are commenting of how well the market has held on in their opinion, given those abnormal problems and the relentless 50,000 bale weekly offerings.

Over in South Africa, due to similar logistical problems, the wool industry decided to halt auction sales for a week back in mid February in an attempt to help recoup exporter finances and assist shipments, allowing auctions to be given some chance of shaking off those outside shipping and financial influences. 8,000 bales was due to be sold that week.

There is over 52,000 bales rostered to sell again next week with Wednesday and Thursday two days of auctions.

Beef industry figureheads celebrate role of women

The figureheads of the Australian beef industry are celebrating the critical role women play in the success of the industry as a part of International Women's Day.

Australian Beef Sustainability Steering Group (SSG) Member and Central Queensland beef producer, Melinee Leather, said sustainability not only included ecological health, but extended to important measures of diversity.

“Sustainability is often seen through the lens of the health of the natural environment and animal welfare however, a truly sustainable industry extends its definition far beyond that,” she said.

“Diversity, including female representation, is critical to bringing new ideas and a balanced perspective to the beef supply chain, and to ensure our industry has the right structure in place to meet the needs of our environment, animals, communities, and customers for generations to come.

“Women have a great capacity to connect families, communities, and ultimately nations, which is vital for a sustainable future.”

The ABSF was established in 2017 to help industry showcase its sustainability credentials and identify areas of improvement.

Recognising an opportunity for growth, industry selected “Diversity in the workplace”, including the representation of women, as one of the priorities used to track sustainability performance.

Data collected by the Framework in 2020 showed 39.6 per cent of the workforce on farms and in feedlots was female, while women made up 25.7 per cent in the processing sector.

“The data being collected through the ABSF is an important marker against which we can continually measure how we are progressing and identify pathways for ongoing improvement,” Mrs Leather said.

To celebrate International Women's Day, the ABSF spoke to three inspiring beef industry leaders (including Mrs Leather).

Sheep Producers Australia announces new CEO

Sheep Producers Australia is pleased to announce the appointment of Bonnie Skinner as the new Chief Executive Officer.

Ms Skinner has broad experience working within the agricultural sector and has been an integral part of Sheep Producers Australia's team having commenced working with the organisation in July 2018 as the Product Integrity Policy Manager to being appointed the Deputy CEO in 2021.

“Bonnie has been appointed after an extensive and thorough Australia-wide recruitment process. The Board and I are delighted that she has been successful and look forward to continuing to work with her on behalf of the industry.” Andrew Spencer SPA Chair.

“Bonnie has an extensive background in biosecurity and animal science, with a strong balance of practical experience and understanding of the political considerations associated with the red meat industry supply chain. Bonnie has been acting in the role of CEO since October 2021 and was the preferred candidate amongst a very strong field.

Ms Skinner said the Board and Policy Council have considerable knowledge and expertise.

“I am looking forward to continuing to work with the SPA team, our members, and producers to focus on delivering the many policy and advocacy opportunities the sheep industry has before it,” she said.

“Sheep meat production is a significant industry that supports nearly every region in southern Australia and has underpinned the prosperity of the country and employed generations of Australians.

“As CEO, I will continue to advocate on issues that affect sheep production businesses and to ensure a productive, profitable, and sustainable sheep industry. This is the time to embrace a culture of collaboration and innovation.”

Competitive games galore on greens

Two days of bowls last weekend with a total of 10 competition games.

First up we welcomed the ladies back on the green for some Championship singles action.

Reigning Champ Michelle McKewen took on Dorrie Delaney and proved too strong with a good win by 31-7.

On the rink next door, we had Gail Butt taking on Lorraine Barbeler.

It's been a while between games for Lorraine but it's so good to see her back playing, unfortunately she ran into a consistent Gail who took the win by 31-18.

The last of the ladies' singles was between Coral Williamson and Cerise Woodfield.

The ladies got their money's worth with the game taking 30 ends to find a winner.

Coral had a sizable gap on the 9th end at 13-6 and stretched it out to 20-10 before Cerise started closing in.

She caught Coral at 23 all after 24 ends, but then Coral lead 27-26 in the race to 31 shots.

At 28-27 on the 30th end Coral scored 3 shots to take the game 31-27.

In men's singles, we had Cisco Llewelyn against Wayne Lewis.

Wayne scored on the first 8 ends to be leading 15 zip before Cisco found some form and got on the board.

Unfortunately for him Wayne was well and truly on a roll (excuse the pun) and kept the gap to take the win 31-13.

We then had reigning champ Ray Harmsworth taking on George Kent to see who advances in the 'A' singles.

Ray was leading 11-6 on the 12th end but then George could only score 4 shots over the next 11 ends to be behind by 27-12.

With Ray being in great form there was no coming back for George and Ray took the win by 31-12 in a much-anticipated game.

On to Sunday's game and we started with a Championship Triples game that saw Patrick Casey, Andrew Watts, and Bob Cooper take on Darcy Browne, myself, and Peter Anderson.

In a very enjoyable game played in great spirits, Darcy's team took the win 32-8.

Now back to men's singles, we had Justin Hunt taking on Tony Barbeler in what was expected to be a real battle.

For the first 32 ends Tony held a nice lead with Justin not able to bridge the gap of between 8 to 13 shots during those ends.

Tony scored 3 shots on the 32nd end to be 30-20 in front needing 31 to win.

To Justin's credit, he never gave up and got it back to 30-27 before Tony scored the required shot to win the game by 31-27 in a great game.

We also had Tony Forster up against Ray

Penny in another game.

Tony lead for the first 13 ends until Ray found his line and length to pass Tony and lead 25-11.

You could be forgiven in thinking the game was over but to his credit Tony came back at Ray to be 26-23 down on the 31st end and well in the game.

The experience of Ray shone through and he went on to win the game 31-23 after 37 ends of play.

We then had Robbie Horsten up against John Hawkes.

Hawkesy was still on a high from his starring role in Shawn Ryan's team last weekend in Emerald, but Robbie started well until Hawkesy caught him on the 12th end at 8 all.

After a tight tussle in the middle stages, Hawkesy found his Emerald form again and took control of the game stretching it out to a 31-16 win.

On the next rink, we had Shawn Ryan against Dave Ramage.

This game had twists and turns early until the score reached 10-9 in Dave's favour.

He then got stuck on 10 shots for 7 ends in which time Shawn took his score out to 20.

Over the next 9 ends, Shawn scored on 6 of those ends to win the game by 31-15.

It was also good to welcome Ian Bodill back to the club after some time in the Territory.

This Sunday we have the final of the Ladies Fours Championship plus 4 other comp games and social as well.

Lloydy's Serve

Michael Lloyd

Warne's statue outside the MCG.

Fans pay tribute to the Spin King.

A sad time for cricket

It's been a sad time for sports fans, and a devastating week for cricket supporters.

First, we lost Rod Marsh to a heart attack. I started following cricket just after Iron Gloves Marsh had left the game, and what I witnessed was a decade or more of us trying to find his replacement.

I did however get to see what he did after cricket.

While he did some television commentary, I know him best for being the coach at the Australian Cricket Academy, helping the next generation of stars like Adam Gilchrist get their starts.

And after Australia dominated England through the nineties, with the Poms were looking at their lowest point, he went over and helped the old enemy start their own cricket academy.

You didn't see him often in the media over the last 15 years, but cricket followers like myself knew that Australia's first genuine wicketkeeper/batsman wasn't too far away from grassroots cricket, helping that next generation love the game as much as him.

Rod's death was a bit of a shock to the system, and while 74 years of age, you are never really ready for your heroes to die.

But the next tragedy was definitely unexpected.

My phone beeped a few times at about 3am one morning, I was half asleep so thought I would take a look and see who it was.

I read the words "Shane Warne is dead".

I couldn't believe it.

Fake news.

I'll grab a drink of water and open my eyes properly, surely it should read "Shane Warne is dead right about.....".

But sadly no, Shane Keith Warne was gone.

Warne did a lot for the game of cricket, yes a superstar and one of Wisden's five cricketers of the century, but he made it exciting and ever-changing.

Flippers, bowling blokes around their legs, sledging batsman as a spinner!

He inspired a generation.

I, like Stuart Magill, lived in Warne's shadow.

Bowling offspin Brisbane, my teammates would say, "why don't you bowl leggies like Warney?", and as an opening batsman who liked pace on the ball, I would have to face over after over of kids trying to replicate the great spinner.

So I would like to end by saying thank you to both Marsh and Warne for leaving their legacy behind, for as I am down at the nets with Lloydy Jr just starting his wicketkeeping and spin bowling career, I could think of no two better role models.

Birdcage continues winning form over Wellshot Hotel

By Michael Lloyd

The Birdcage continued their good end of season form by again defeating the Wellshot Hotel.

In a low-scoring match, the Birdcage bowlers were able to restrict a strong Wellshot batting lineup and eventually bowl them out. Birdcage player of the match went to Kody Hunt for his great bowling and fielding.

This Friday is between the Longreach RSL and the Birdcage Hotel for the Duck St Shield, the year's biggest grudge match, with the Grand Final on the 18th March between the Wellshot Hotel and the Birdcage Hotel.

The Wellshot team look on.

Both teams played well.

Looking for the stumps.

Road to Rodeo heroes

Meet Melissa Kirk, Tammy James, and Phoebe Ryder.

No, they won't be donning chaps and taking to the main arena on horses that turn on a 10-cent piece at speeds that would stun Superman.

Their work is done before the first rodeo fan walks through the gates and takes a seat.

They are the three Isa Rodeo Community Quest entrants and are right now raising funds for their chosen local charity.

They are the beating heart of the Mount Isa Mines Rodeo.

Youth engagement worker Melissa Kirk, 31, has a strong connection to rodeo, coming from a rodeo family with her children and husband competing all the year.

She is raising funds for the Paediatric Trust at the Mount Isa Hospital, something very close to her heart.

"This year instead of strapping on spurs, catching the horses and cheering from behind the chutes, I will be putting myself out into the community to raise needed funds for resources for the paediatric trust at Mount Isa Hospital," she said.

"Having kids in rodeo means I have used the paediatric ward at Mount Isa Hospital, and I believe this is my turn to give back to a place that has held me up so many times."

Passionate Mt Isa local and mother of three, Tammy James is supporting James Cancer

House Mount Isa.

"I have lived in Mount Isa for 25 years and have supported the Rodeo Quest for years from the sidelines through my position as CEO of the ADG Group," she said.

"Last year I decided that even though life is crazy now, I didn't want to support from the sidelines anymore – I wanted to get more involved!

"There are so many unsung heroes within the Cancer House who work tirelessly for this invaluable local charity, and I am here to help."

Growing up in Mount Isa, Phoebe Ryder said her favourite time of year was watching the Isa Rodeo Community Quest Entrants, formally known as the Queenquest, in the weeks leading to the rodeo.

"The entrants' involvement throughout the community and the events they would hold and their appearance at schools was, and still is, something I adore," she said.

"Now, being a Quest entrant, I can give back to our community and the charity I am supporting is the Mount Isa Ladies Auxiliary Club, which provides funds to support our hospital wards.

"In such a challenging time, I believe it is important to support our healthcare system and our community. I hope to make a difference in our community and show other young people that taking on big opportunities should happen more often."
