Budget's in focus

Barcaldine Regional Council adopted its 2023 budget at the general meeting held on Tuesday 14 June 2022 with a general rate increase of 4.95 per cent.

Mayor Sean Dillon said Council has continued its systematic approach to budget repair in the face of extremely uncertain economic conditions with clear headwinds in terms of price increases across the board and massive pressure from an employment attraction and retention perspective.

“Capital Works items have once again been limited to those funded from external sources and focused on improving internal service delivery and asset condition,” he said.

“Plant replacement has also been constrained for the second consecutive year, although some key items of the plant have been identified for an upgrade, with an intention to deliver operational efficiencies.

“This year will see a review of the plant replacement program, firstly from a needs/required jobs basis and then from a term of life perspective to ensure that the future replacement is undertaken with the best interests of future budgets and project requirements.”

Cr Dillon said completion of a substantial package of Flood Damage Reconstruction has seen a serious adjustment to the council's cash.

“In previous budget statements and Annual Reports, I have written about the artificial and inflated cash position of council due to the receipt of Flood Damage payments in advance of the reconstruction work being undertaken,” he said.

“We have now predominantly completed the value of the prepayment, presenting our council's cash position as relatively unrestricted with the exception of Staff Leave Entitlements.

“The forward projections contained within these budget documents present a significantly enhanced positive trajectory for our cash balances.”

Cr Dillon said debt also continues to be paid down, with council on track now to be completely free of debt by 2030.

The editor's desk

Unfortunately due to the awkward timing of this publication, we were unable to include the Outback Writers' Fest until next week.

I would like to commend the hard effort that must go into organising such a festival.

Writers are already naturally shy, let alone writers who live remotely.

The selection this year was outstanding, and I deeply hope it continues to be run into the future.

I'll be up in Winton twice this week for the Writers Festival and the Film Festival - in one week Winton has truly proved arts in the west are alive and well.

Art is hair-raising

Longreach-born and raised 27-year-old Louise Graham, now of Brisbane's Hey Hair salon, has taken out the 'crown' as one of Australia's brightest hairstylist stars for her award-winning hair collection - filled with hair crowns while challenging our views on power.

Announced at the annual Australian Hair Industry Award's Creative 2022 gala awards last Monday, Louise and her artistic talents will join the top Australian up-and-coming stars in the HOTSHOTS team - top young stylists.

It's off the back of recognition of her 'powerful' collection: "Power Play", prompting us to question the perception of power and powerful individuals.

"The collection's a portrait commentary on the highly posed imagery we constantly get presented with on social media and in magazines of people in power. What is going on behind the carefully posed and presented facade?" Louise said.

The HOTSHOTS team for 2022 shines a spotlight on the industry's most exciting next-gen talent and provides the chance for these 31 and under superstars to take their careers to a whole new level.

Louise was a finalist last year, but now, it's the first time she's made the illustrious team.

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime career highlight - the chance to learn from the best in the business," Louise said.

Launched in 2012 by esteemed trade visionaries Mocha Publishing, the AHIA's are celebrating their 10th year as the trusted national award platform which provides a benchmark of excellence—and an evening of 800 of the most talented hairdressers and their salon teams.

Judges look for hairdressers who excel in the areas of cutting, styling, editorial and colour work, and have a unique style, unparalleled passion and a clear vision of the future.

This crew were judged by familiar faces including Dee Parker-Attwood, Jayne Wild,

Examples of Louise Graham's entries in the Australian Hair Industry Award's Creative 2022 gala awards.

Benni Tognini, Stevie English, Kobi Bokshish, Sharon Blain and Brad Ngata.

Owner/Publisher Linda Woodhead was thrilled to recognise Louise's achievement; "Queensland should be so proud of the amazing Louise Graham of Hey Hair," she said.

She has firmly proven herself as one of the industry's most exciting up-and-coming talents and I can't wait to see where winning this award will take her."

Rates hiked by 5pc

By Barcaldine Regional Council

Barcaldine Regional Council adopted its 2023 budget at the general meeting held on Tuesday 14 June 2022 with a general rate increase of 4.95 per cent.

Mayor Sean Dillon said Council has continued its systematic approach to budget repair in the face of extremely uncertain economic conditions with clear headwinds in terms of price increases across the board and massive pressure from an employment attraction and retention perspective.

"Capital Works items have once again been limited to those funded from external sources and focused on improving internal service delivery and asset condition," he said.

"Plant replacement has also been constrained for the second consecutive year, although some key items of the plant have been identified for an upgrade, with an intention to deliver operational efficiencies.

"This year will see a review of the plant replacement program, firstly from a needs/required jobs basis and then from a term of life perspective to ensure that the future replacement is undertaken with the best interests of future budgets and project requirements."

Cr Dillon said completion of a substantial package of Flood Damage Reconstruction has seen a serious adjustment to the council's cash.

"In previous budget statements and Annual Reports, I have written about the artificial and inflated cash position of council due to the receipt of Flood Damage payments in advance of the reconstruction work being undertaken," he said.

"We have now predominantly completed the value of the prepayment, presenting our council's cash position as relatively unrestricted with the exception of Staff Leave Entitlements.

"The forward projections contained within these budget documents present a significantly enhanced positive trajectory for our cash balances."

Cr Dillon said debt also continues to be paid down, with council on track now to be completely free of debt by 2030.

"That will return each massive sums of cash to our budget annually," he said.

"Based on this year's repayment figure of $610 000 and the total debt balance outstanding, this will see council then return over $3.3 million dollars over eight years in debt repayments; all of which are budgeted for.

"Logically this then will provide for a reduction in constrained revenue annually and either provide an enhanced cash position or free cash for necessary expenditure on improving asset conditions and dealing with emergent needs."

Cr Dillon said this all draws a line under the initial, strong steps undertaken by this council in undertaking an overhaul of fiscal strategy. "Consecutive, substantial General Rate increases along with increases to utility charges have been matched by considerable increases to our Federal Assistant Grant payments as a result of the Methodology Review," he said.

"Implementing practical and prudent Asset

Management Plans will now form the focus for this council as the underpinning financial viability has been improved in a manner to facilitate this.

"Council has entered into a 10-year contract for the provision of urban waste collection in all five towns.

"Part of this process identified several dated collection bins. Council has endorsed a one-off 50 per cent discount for a new bin/s to assist both residents and the contractor in the seamless integration of this utility service within council's operations."

Cr Dillon said pensioner and early payment discounts have been retained.

"Council has introduced a very small charge for our community facilities, predominantly to offset a portion of the electricity costs which continue to place significant upward pressure on our operational expenses in this field," he said.

"These charges are substantially smaller than those presented during community consultation, in part due to feedback received. "Council also recognises the vital role our community groups play in not only hosting community events but in providing a contribution or seed capital towards asset upgrades across a whole range of community facilities.

"The funding allocation for community events and special celebrations has been maintained, albeit with a slightly different application process and council's stated position of preferring to resource events directly as well as ensuring our funds are used to support the groups with most direct need."

Focus on rail projects

The State Government has claimed its "rail revolution" is on track, with this year's budget delivering a $3.5 billion pipeline of new rail projects.

Treasurer and Minister for Trade and Investment Cameron Dick said the government's rail revolution will support more than 5000 jobs and deliver better services for Queenslanders.

"Investing in rail gets Queenslanders to work sooner, and it gets them back home to their family sooner as well," the Treasurer said.

"But by making trains here in Queensland, it also supports traditional manufacturing, and skilled jobs in the many small and medium businesses that are part of the supply chain.

"We want to see more of these skilled jobs here in Queensland, which is one of the reasons we recently finalised the purchase of the Rockhampton Railyards.

"That will enable us to encourage suppliers into the rail manufacturing supply chain to relocate to Queensland."

Union protests Qantas cuts

The Transport Workers Union has hit out against Qantas after failing to reinstate "illegally sacked" staff, many of whom are still struggling without a permanent job, according to a recent TWU survey of over 1,100 outsourced workers.

The findings come as understaffing causes chaos, delays, cancellations, and lost luggage.

Of the 47 per cent of workers now unemployed or underemployed, well over half had more than 10 years' experience and 71 per cent worked in the baggage room or on the ramp loading luggage and cargo onto planes, according to the TWU survey.

Although being found twice by the Federal Court to have illegally sacked nearly 2000 ground crew, Qantas management has refused to reinstate them and has instead relied on untrained office staff to volunteer in the baggage room as passengers suffer long delays and lost luggage.

Veterans are heard

The Royal Commission into Defence and Veteran Suicide has begun a public hearing in Townsville, where the city's most senior serving ADF member, Brigadier Kahli Fegan will give evidence about training, alcohol use, domestic violence and mental health assessments at the nation's largest Army base.

The Commission heard Brigadier Fegan from Lavarack Barracks will also be asked how the base engages with families and support organisations during and after deployment.

Erin Longbottom QC, assisting the Commission, said the concentration of serving and ex-serving members in Townsville provided an important opportunity to examine the systemic issues and risk factors that contribute to suicide in the Defence and veteran community.

"Amongst the matters that will be a particular focus of inquiry over the next two weeks are the possible contributions of deployment, transition, separation and post-service issues to suicide and suicidality," Ms Longbottom said.

Flight Scientists land in Longreach

By Flying Scientists

More than 35 Longreach locals visited Joseph Edgely Memorial Hall to hear from three leading Queensland scientists at "The science of tiny things: bugs, bacteria and corals" Flying Scientists event.

Dr Alka Jaggesar from QUT spoke about her work as a medical engineer using the structure of insect wings to make tiny materials used to fend off bacteria.

Attendees also heard from two University of Queensland researchers Abigail Shaughnessy and Matthew Kenna.

Matthew's research is about how the brain regulates and uses memory to fear one experience and not another such as seeing a spider versus a small bird.

As a marine biologist, Abigail is interested in coral reef fish and how they are impacted by changes to their environment.

All three scientists said they received lots of interesting questions about their research which made their visit all the more worthwhile.

Local scientist Ben Galea from Desert Channels Queensland set up a display stand at the event to showcase his projects and get more people volunteering as citizen scientists.

As well as the community event, the three scientists visited about 220 students at St Joseph's Catholic Primary School, Barcaldine State School and Longreach State High School.

The Flying Scientists program is provided by Wonder of Science in partnership with the Office of the Queensland Chief Scientist.

The Flying Scientists visit regional locations to inspire student and community interest in science.

Sorting out post options

By Longreach Regional Council

Longreach Regional Council will test the market, by inviting expressions of interest, before considering any sale of the Ilfracombe Post Office business.

Council is examining the future of the post office business alongside the ongoing preparation of its 2022-23 Budget.

The licenced post office currently costs Council money, but it says there's a possibility the business could be made profitable if a commercial operator took over.

Acting CEO Scott Mason said a commercial operator could expand the business and offer a better service to the Ilfracombe community.

"Local Government is bound by competitive neutrality, making it hard for us to expand the business into other services" he explained.

"But we think there's a commercial need in Ilfracombe which could be met by someone coming in and purchasing the business."

Council was considering starting a tender process to sell the business, including the building and land, however, at the Council meeting on Thursday, it agreed to test the market by inviting expressions of interest first.

Mayor Tony Rayner said it was important for Council to understand the nature of any proposed development or investment by the private sector, and its impacts on the community, prior to making any further decisions.

"We think there's an opportunity for a better outcome for the Ilfracombe community, but it's important to test that before we make any decision," he said.

"Most importantly, we want to make sure that the current level of services in the community is maintained and improved by any proposed development."

He said Council had never considered closing the Post Office.

"At no point have we considered closing any services, shutting anything down, or generally doing anything to disadvantage the community."

"In fact, the opposite is true.

"What we've said today is we want to see the details up front to make sure any proposal will achieve a better outcome for Ilfracombe.

"By inviting expressions of interest, we can test the market and consider each proposal against the community's best interests."

Mr Mason said Council had received interest in the facility from prospective buyers over a number of years.

"At various times we've received informal offers, which we can't entertain," he said.

"Under the Local Government Regulation 2012, we can only dispose of assets via a public process. So by inviting expressions of interest, we can complete a lot of due diligence prior to any tender process."

As a result of today's decision Council will invite expressions of interest, and form a panel to evaluate the submissions, before making a recommendation for a future meeting.

The decision also affirmed the Council's desire to maintain the current level of Council and Postal services, and update the Ilfracombe community prior to any further decisions being made.

Nerve-racking decision on post office

By Michael R Williams

With the Longreach Regional Council's recent decision to test the Ilfracombe Post Office on the market many locals have described feeling uneasy—fearing it may leave the vital infrastructure vulnerable to neglect.

President of the Ilfracombe Progress Association Kate Wright said while she hopes she's wrong, she feels the recommendations put forward by Council were only to "take the heat away from the councillors of the situation."

This is the second time historically the selling of the post office has been a hotly discussed agenda item for the council.

"It's not just a post office for us," Ms Wright said.

"It's our local library, it's our internet hub, it's a banking facility.

"A lot of banks close at lunchtime in Longreach; this is a bank that is open 9 to 5; we've got that guaranteed."

The Ilfracombe Post Office had been previously privately owned when the now-defunct Ilfracombe Shire Council purchased it saving it from possible dilapidation.

"We're concerned about its potential privatisation," Ms Wright said.

"Because we've seen it happen with the Wellshot Hotel and the store—if times get difficult they close.

"If we lost this post office it could be devastating."

The post office also has historical significance as it was home to the first-ever motorised mail service from Ilfracombe to Isisford.

"We've gone through Covid the last two years and drought the years before that," Ms Wright said.

Longreach and Ilfracombe locals protest against the possible sale of the Ilfracombe Post Office.

"But we'll fight this.

"It's probably a losing battle, however."

The Ilfracombe Progress Association will soon be hosting a town meeting, where Ms Wright hopes council members will come along and provide more information.

"It will be interesting to see what applications have been received and what potential developers have in store for this particular site," she said.

"I feel if we lost our post office we could become a ghost town, our school is losing numbers, and the council chambers have limited staff.

"We could just become a town with a pub."

Ms Wright said she hopes she is wrong that a developer does come in and build something on the site that improves the quality of life for Ilfracombe residents.

"But we do have concerns," she said.

"I would prefer council to have more communication with us in Ilfracombe.

"We [Ilfracombe Progress Association] were called into a meeting unannounced, we didn't know what the agenda was.

"I was in shock for three days after they told me; I think we could come together with the council and make this [the current post office] a profitable business if it's just to do with the loss it's making each year."

Due to legal constraints, Council can only sell certain items from the post office meaning suggestions to make changes to the operations of the post office challenging from a legal standpoint.

However, Council has promised the Ilfracombe community will retain a postal service in some form whether the building is sold or not.

Council has responded to the allegation it had not given the Ilfracombe District Association proper notice about a meeting by stating it did arrange, with the help of the IDPA, an informal meeting with the Mayor, Acting CEO, and relevant Council officers, to discuss the matter, but it's not usual practice to prepare an agenda for a casual discussion, although Council did explain that the meeting was to discuss a report Council would be considering.

Ilfracombe District Progress Association president Kate Wright by a monument to the first-ever motor vehicle delivery service for mail in Australia.

"At the meeting Council clearly explained what it was considering, why it was considering it, and why it wanted to give IDPA the opportunity to discuss the matter," the spokesperson said.

"It was a constructive discussion, and the meeting finished with the IDPA expressing its gratitude for the way in which Council had engaged with them.

"Council values its relationship with the IDPA and the opportunity to discuss such matters informally."

Rural life caught in a snap

By Rural Aid

Australia's most trusted rural charity has congratulated the twelve winners of its Spirit of the Bush photography competition.

More than 1100 photographic entries were received from farms right across the country, a record for the Spirit of the Bush competition.

Rural Aid CEO John Warlters said it was heartening to see so many quality captures.

"The Spirit of the Bush competition attracts photos from every corner of the country and reflects every part of life on the land," Mr Warlters said.

"It's mesmerizing to see the highs and lows of farm life reflected in action shots, sweeping horizons and moments of quiet reflection.

"It's great to see a theme of hope emerge from our images this year.

"The winning photos tell a story of both work and play.

"Events like harvest and planting are featured, as well as moments of rest, relaxation, and recreation.

"It's fantastic to see so many jaw-dropping entries from West Australia in particular.

Queensland and New South Wales' snaps also feature heavily in the winner's circle.

"A huge congratulations to our talented winners who will now have their photos used in Rural Aid's 2023 calendar," Mr Warlters said.

Mr Warlters also reflected on the huge jump in entries from last year.

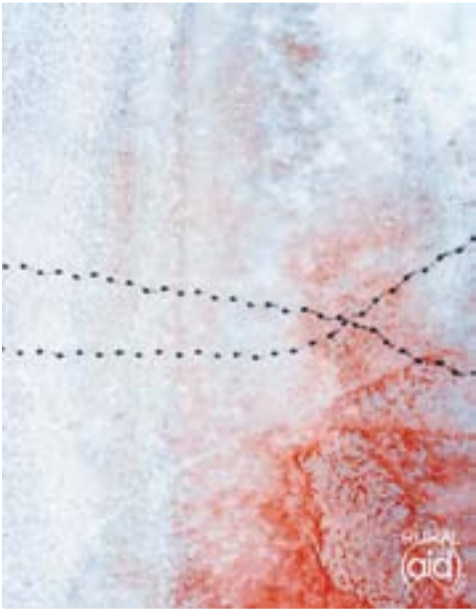

"It gets harder to pick the winners every year," Mr Warlters said.

"Last year, Rural Aid received 720 entries. This year, more than 1100 were submitted!"

The Rural Aid 2023 calendar will be available for purchase and pre-order later this year.

Supporters are encouraged to keep an eye on the Rural Aid social media pages for more information.

Proceeds will directly support Rural Aid's range of programs to help farmers and their families.

One year in at ‘the local’

By Michael R Williams

Chris and Irene Moore have now owned one of Winton's most iconic pubs for over a year.

Irene was born into the famous Elliott family who was responsible for the world-renowned Australian Age of Dinosaurs Museum, and now she is part-owner of another piece of essential Winton infrastructure.

The pair met in Townsville where they worked in retail for the Reject Shop, but on a brief visit to Winton for the opening of the Australian Age of Dinosaurs, Mrs Moore began to develop tears in her eyes—missing the town she grew up in.

“We then made the decision to move out to Winton to help out with the museum,” Mr Moore said.

“We then decided we wanted to go out on our own and we decided to move to Longreach.”

He and Irene would go on to manage the Target Country Store - which has since closed - and then spend a short stint at Prices Plus before eventually moving back to Winton to take on the North Gregory Hotel.

“We felt like we needed to make a name for ourselves,” Mr Moore said.

“My wife ended up working for Outback Aussie Tours with Smithy, and I spent a bit of time at the IGA and the Motor Inn and finished my tenure at Target.

“I said when I finished my time at Target, I didn't want to work for anyone else after this, and I wanted to own my own business.”

The North Gregory fit perfectly with both of their needs.

“We were still a little bit teary-eyed because we were working so much in Longreach, and we didn't really get a chance to come over to Winton as much as we'd like—and that was the idea behind coming out this way.”

Mr Moore said he and Irene's extensive history in retail have been essential to their approach to running the North Gregory.

“I've always had a dream to own my own pub,” he said.

“Most of what I've done over the years, I did for a reason—I asked a lot of questions of people who I knew who were very business savvy and used their information.

“And built of who I would like to see how things go.”

Mr Moore was a trolley pusher when he was at the age of 17 and has since built his way up to become a store manager and now a business owner.

“I had a knack for turning bad things into good things,” he said.

“I started to think, where can I start to make myself some money rather than making everyone else money.”

Mr Moore said they want it to be a family-friendly pub.

“There's a beautiful little beer garden out the back, you've got the stage and the little cafe,” Mr Moore said.

“The foyer still has an art deco style, there's just so much potential.

“We're hoping to provide more entertainment for locals.”

The North Gregory is draped in history, and Mr Moore hopes he and his wife have been able to capture that in its aesthetics.

“Waltzing Matilda was performed for the first time in the building,” he said.

“There were secret board meetings from Qantas—there's just so much to know, we're learning every day there's bits and pieces of the building.”

Meanwhile, Irene Moore had grown up with the North Gregory as a part of her community.

She said it was surreal to now be owning the pub she used to know so well.

“And if we can make it good, then we'll know we've done all right,” she said.

Moving back to normal, though Covid's not done yet

By Central West Hospital and Health Service chief executive Christopher Sullivan

Allowing for cases discharged after completing isolation, the total number of active cases currently in the region is 18.

All active cases are receiving care in the Virtual Ward.

There are currently no Covid-19-related hospitalisations.

No further details will be provided due to confidentiality.

To date, accounting for those who have been discharged from quarantine, the Central West HHS has recorded 870 cases of Covid-19 since the first case on 22 December.

Our health service currently has among the highest Covid-19 vaccination rates in the state and fewer people are requiring vaccination.

As a result, our centralised Covid-19 vaccination booking call centre on 1800 953 703 will cease to function from 4 July as staff begin returning to normal duties.

However, as Covid-19 remains present in our communities and throughout Queensland, we are continuing to offer vaccinations to all who need them, and bookings can continue to be made through your local hospital or primary healthcare centre from 4 July.

A full list of telephone numbers for our health facilities is available at: health.qld.gov.au/centralwest/menu/locations-and-services/nearestfacility

For the Blackall, Winton and Longreach general practices, which are also providing COVID-19 and influenza vaccinations.

Following national recommendations, a third booster dose of Pfizer has now been approved for young people aged 12-15 years who are immuno-compromised, have disabilities with significant health needs or who have complex conditions that put them at severe risk of Covid.

The fourth dose of Covid-19 vaccine - either Pfizer or Moderna - already is recommended nationally to increase protection for adults aged 65 years and older, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people aged 50 years and older, residents of aged care or disability care facilities, and people aged 16 years and older who are severely immuno-compromised or have complex medical conditions that put them at severe risk of Covid.

This also includes people who need medication to manage their diabetes and other chronic health conditions.

Everyone aged 5 years and over can get vaccinated at:

- Muttaborra PHC 21 June

- Jericho Clinic 22 June

Remember, the Covid-19 vaccination does not protect you against the flu.

You need to have the separate seasonal influenza vaccination as well.

Influenza vaccination is recommended for all people aged six months or older and can be administered at the same time as the Covid-19 vaccine if you are aged five years or older.

You can have your influenza vaccine straight after recovering from Covid-19 but must wait 12 weeks after recovery before receiving any further Covid vaccination.

Our laboratory-confirmed influenza case numbers so far this year in the Central West is 42, with three cases requiring hospitalisation in the past week and a total of four cases having required hospitalisation so far this year.

Concerns at coal mine

By Cheryl Goodenough; AAP

Lawyers for opponents of a massive coal mine proposed for Queensland say the project would have an economic benefit but also bring about “very profound harm”.

Opponents of a massive coal mine planned for central Queensland have argued the project’s approval would mean a world with no Great Barrier Reef while taking a swipe at businessman Clive Palmer.

Youth Verdict and the 8000-hectare Bimblebox Nature Refuge, represented by the Environmental Defenders Office, are objecting to the mining lease and environmental approval for Waratah Coal’s proposed Galilee Coal Project.

Oral submissions to the Queensland Land Court sitting in Brisbane on Thursday are bringing an end to hearings that started six weeks ago.

They included a legal first with evidence given in line with Indigenous protocols in the Torres Strait and in Cairns.

Traditional owner Jiritju Fourmile gave cultural evidence and testified about climate change impacts.

“To approve this mine is to decide that the world is going to be one where we have no Great Barrier Reef,” the opponent’s barrister, Saul Holt QC, told Land Court president Fleur Kingham on Thursday.

Mr Holt said under a smaller revised plan the project would still be more than twice the size of the next biggest thermal coal mine in Australia.

“Total carbon dioxide from this mine alone represents one per cent of the global carbon budget to limit global warming to 1.7 degrees,” he added.

“That release of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere will occur over the very decades ... that are critical to limiting the most horrendous aspects of climate change.”

The mine would have an economic benefit, primarily in royalties, but would also bring “a very profound harm”, Mr Holt said.

“The question here is whether the harm caused by the mine, the price to be paid for it by the community, a price that will not be paid by the ultimate shareholder of Waratah Coal ... is worth that economic benefit,” he added.

Mr Holt said Waratah Coal sat within Clive Palmer’s Mineralogy group and its past performance was concerning.

“Given how little (Waratah Coal) has done on this proposed project over the last 12 years it is astonishing that it is nonetheless managed to commit two criminal offences of breach of its environmental authority, it’s been the subject to an environmental protection order, it’s failed at the most simple of regulatory tasks ... indeed it’s very difficult to find anything in fact that it’s done well,” he told the court.

Mr Holt raised concerns about the longevity of the project saying the demand for thermal coal was dropping and likely price reductions could bring an early end to the mine and related royalties.

Waratah Coal is due to make oral submissions on July 21, but in opening submissions the company’s lawyer Peter Ambrose QC argued that while coal is being phased out, there will still be demand during the life of the project.

Many countries are moving toward reducing emissions, but there could be “pockets of future growth” in fast developing areas in the Indo-Pacific, he said.

The coal to be extracted could displace lower quality coal from other sources, meaning less has to be burnt for the same energy output, Mr Ambrose argued.

Behold, the single galah

I first became acquainted with galahs when they migrated into the Central West en masse after the 1994 floods.

They seemed to be everywhere.

Heading out to LSOE in the morning, or coming home in the late afternoon, there would be a mob of galahs hanging out on the powerlines, often lining the entire route into town.

I went on a bus trip into the Blue Mountains during the Easter break that year, when the bus pulled over on the side of the highway, so everyone could pile out and see galahs.

There was an enthusiastic rush for the doors while I sat and waited, figuring the first of the rush would scare off any birds.

Except there was no mad flight.

I glanced out of the bus, saw what was causing all the commotion, and headed back to my seat, shaking my head over all the fuss.

It turned out to be a galah, singular, one lone bird lingering boldly at the side of the road.

The tourists made more noise than it did, showing no fear of the horde, probably because it had come to associate them with food.

The tour guide asked why I wasn’t out taking photos, as I’d been doing most of the time, so he’d figured out I was a bit of a nature nut.

‘When you’ve seen hundreds of galahs, one just doesn’t seem terribly impressive,’ I told him.

He asked me where I’d seen so many and when I told him, he became the ‘tourist’, asking me all sorts of questions about Longreach and how I’d managed to end up there.

Turns out he was thinking about heading west and getting into the tourist industry there.

I encouraged him to give it a go since I’d seen far more impressive examples of nature out west than anything in the Blue Mountains, glorious though they were.

I still enjoy the sight of galahs, though haven’t seen them in such magnificent numbers for quite some time.

One morning I heard this God-awful sound coming from the tree that signals the halfway point in my morning constitutional.

It sounded like a buzz saw with a particularly unpleasant pitch.

Sure enough, when I investigated, a galah came shooting out of the branches, where it had been concealed.

I reckon nature decided galahs were too pretty to strike fear into the heart of a predator, so they were endowed with the nastiest sounding call to deter all comers.

We now have a small mob of galahs hanging around after the shower of rain we received, right after becoming the poster property for drought.

I usually encounter them sans camera, sadly, or after the setting sun, where they look more grey than pink in the dwindling twilight.

Even so, galahs continue to be one of my favourites.

Though you may want to don ear muffs if you encounter a mob of them.

Western churches help out

By Michael R Williams

The Western Queensland Drought Committee is going into its eighth year and would like to remind people to take advantage of the offering of its connected, Western Queensland Drought Appeal offerings even if it seems the worst of the drought has subsided.

President Jenny Coombes said funding for the appeal goes back 12 months, meaning many LGAs are still eligible despite having their drought status revoked.

“We’ve been funded to help 14 LGAs across western Queensland,” she said.

“This will take us some time, but starting in July, we will be sending out letters across all 14 LGAs, hopefully, by Christmas.”

The committee is accepting donations, but most of the funding has come from the State Government through its Drought Communities Programme.

“It takes a long time to get over a drought—the fact that we’ve had some rain and some green herbage on the ground, some places actually have grass, it doesn’t mean we’re through this; it takes a long time to get over drought,” Ms Coombes said.

“The government recognises that, so if they were in drought 12 months ago, they have met the first eligibility rung.

“We ask if they have been impacted financially, psychologically, or physically by drought, and the answer is yes, and they are living on the land or in small business in western Queensland, then they are eligible.”

The Western Queensland Drought Committee does ask that successful applicants use the funds for personal items, and as far as possible, locally.

“We are encouraging people for donations, but this is much more about getting the money out,” she said.

The committee are currently looking for volunteers.

More needs to be done

More than double the people surveyed said they were unaware or believed more needed to be done to improve mental health services in the central west region.

While many were proud of the efforts of local services, and what they were able to accomplish on shoestring budgets and resources, just as many said they had impoverished experiences with local mental health services.

It is important to note that local services do work tirelessly to do as much as they can; however, more could be done from a governmental standpoint.

Local Kaleb Seaman said he found local social services were decent but not extensive, but when it came to mental health emergencies services were close to non-existent, finding he could not get an appointment even when in hospital for a mental health crisis.

Lorraine Dicinoski wished to tell people if they are aware of someone who is showing signs of mental illness, it is best to let their family be aware to ask for help from a professional.

Kym Webb said she was satisfied with local offerings, specifically the RFDS, but could use improvements in consistency and transience.

Q&A

How did you end up in Longreach?

This was late 2016. I was living in Hobart and had no plans of leaving Tasmania for the next decade (was happy with my life and job there).

One of my close friends from Hobart took up a job in Longreach.

She knew I was searching for Health Informatics jobs at that time.

Just after she started, there was a job opening in Health Informatics and she sent an FB message (I was on vacation in Sri Lanka).

I had two days to write up the application and apply.

Did the interview and the rest is history.

Here I am after 5 ½ Years, and two jobs later.

What is the best advice you've ever received?

Quite a few. Probably the best is: 'Jobs, positions, and status are temporary. Treat everyone with dignity and respect.'

What is something you do in your spare time?

I am an amateur photographer and love to take advantage of the amazing skies here.

I am particularly fond of photographing the stars, nebulae, distant galaxies and the Milky Way.

What is your favourite place in the Central West?

I have a few: closer to home, Starlight's and Lilly Lagoon.

Love Birdsville and flying over channel country as well.

What would you consider your greatest achievement?

Personal: My two sons. They are two totally different characters with unique talents - my wife and I love them dearly.

Professional: Versatility: Worked in different sectors and different levels – was able to excel in most.

What's your top movie?

Apryl Hoad said Alice in Wonderland (1951) is her favourite film, and she's been watching it since she was a kid.

Penny Anderson said her favourite film was Pretty Woman because she loves Julia Roberts and Richard Gere. Meanwhile, Vilhelmiina Saraneva said her favourite film is Cloud Atlas as she is inspired by the six interconnected narratives.

Rising star Ngali Shaw brings a personal touch to his role in Foxtel's legal drama The Twelve

*Do you have an event coming up?
We want to know!*

Send the details to editorial@leadertoday.com.au and we'll publish it in our weekly Events Calendar.

Brush with the law

The jury's definitely not out on Foxtel's new courtroom drama The Twelve. Ngali Shaw, who plays Jarrod, a juror in a murder trial, tells Siobhan Duck what to expect from the eye-opening series Ngali Shaw made a point of not reading the entire script before filming began on The Twelve. The rising star says remaining in the dark about whodunnit in the gripping new Foxtel courtroom drama had helped ensure his reactions to the plot twists were as authentic as possible.

"I wanted them to get my first and natural reaction on camera," he explains.

"So, I didn't find out whether she [the accused murderer played by Kate Mulvany] was guilty or not until the very last day.

"Because I didn't know what the outcome was, I actually spent a bit of time trying to figure it out myself."

Loosely based on the 2019 Belgian series of the same name, The Twelve explores the lives, loves and conflicts of the 12 jurors deliberating a high-profile murder trial.

While in the original series, the case involved a mother charged with stabbing her young daughter, the Australian version instead has an artist (Mulvany) standing trial for killing her teenage niece.

Shaw plays a character not featured in the original series; a university student named Jarrod who finds himself struggling to keep up with the demands of his scholarship after being summonsed to sit on the jury.

"He [the character] is Aboriginal so you are not going to find that anywhere else in the world," he says, before quickly adding that he hadn't watched the Belgian version.

"See, I am really bad with subtitles," he laughs.

"I watched the first episode, but I couldn't keep up."

Shaw also admits he isn't a huge fan of crime dramas and wasn't familiar with what a jury did, before The Twelve.

Even still, the Dubbo-raised actor says he didn't have to do much research to understand the character he was playing. In fact, some of the character's story arc could have been drawn from Shaw's own life.

"Jarrod is like 90 per cent similar to me," he explains.

"It's insane. Like, he's been through troubles with his family. He goes through police stuff. He has troubles at school. I had troubles at school. So basically, I didn't have to change myself too much to get into character. I just had to bring out me."

Playing a character so similar to himself also meant Shaw had to revisit some difficult experiences from his own life on screen.

"There was one scene that was based around my real life," he says.

"And to film that felt pretty real. But it didn't hit me emotionally or mentally. I was able to snap out of it pretty good. I handled it pretty well."

Shaw believes the series will open many viewers' eyes to what it is like to walk in someone else's shoes.

The 12 characters on the jury all come from very different socio-economic and cultural backgrounds and prove that you cannot judge a book by its cover.

"It's got some great actors and it's very entertaining, but I think people are really going to get some truth out of it," he says.

"They are going to get a lot of truth about what happens in Aboriginal lives and other diverse lives. You see the character of Farrad (The Hunting's Hazem Shammas), who is from Iraq, and understand what people have to go through with immigration and stuff like that.

"People from all different backgrounds will see real stuff that happens [to others]."

Shaw knows better than most what it's like to have people make assumptions about who he is based purely on his appearance.

"There's always going to be people out there that are ignorant [about ingrained racism]," he says.

"Like, they just they just live in disbelief that this happens. I am just like: 'Man, if you were in my body, and you went through the things I went through, you would know it [persecution] happens.'

"Because my brother, he doesn't look like me. Well, he does in his features, but the skin [colour] is different.

"My brother has never been harassed or anything by cops. And he knows that's because of his skin, because he looks white. So, they don't see him as a threat."

A gifted dancer and footballer, Shaw never dreamed of becoming an actor until fate intervened. Encouraged by his mum to send an audition tape to a casting agency,

Shaw quickly scored a guest role on the Channel 7 drama RFDS, which paved the way to co-starring with some of the biggest names in Australian entertainment on The Twelve.

Joining Shaw and Shammas on the jury are Brooke Satchwell (Mr Inbetween) and Brendan Cowell (The End). Sam Neill plays the accused killer's defence barrister and Marta Dusseldorp (Wentworth) is the prosecutor.

While Neill has a decades-long career with movies such as the Oscar-winning film The Piano and the Jurassic Park franchise under his belt, Shaw says that acting alongside the Hollywood heavyweight hadn't given him any bragging rights with his mates.

"Not many people in my age group know who Sam Neill is," he laughs.

"I'm like: 'Come on? Jurassic Park?'"

"It [working on the series] was like one of the best moments of my life.

"There were so many different people who all brought different energies.

"The actors are all from different places and have different methods for doing stuff. But, it was so good because everyone on there was so supportive."

Shaw feels excited to be embarking on his career at a time when Indigenous actors and stories are finally getting more attention on both the small and big screens.

Now, with two acclaimed Aussie dramas under his belt, Shaw has Hollywood in his sights and says his dream role would be to play the biracial Marvel hero, Miles Morales.

"I never did [think that a movie career could be possible for me] but being in The Twelve has shown me what's possible," he says.

LITTLE WOMEN
Seven, 8.30pm, G (2019)

Director and screenwriter Greta Gerwig (Lady Bird) turns the seventh feature film adaptation of Louisa May Alcott's Civil War novel into a charming coming-of-age story. Saoirse Ronan stars as independent writer Jo, who returns home to Massachusetts to be with her sisters Meg, Amy and Beth (Emma Watson, Florence Pugh and Eliza Scanlen respectively) after one of them becomes ill. Flashbacks show happier memories of their sisterhood and sibling rivalry. Laura Dern as the girls' mother Marmee, Meryl Streep as their globetrotting Aunt March and Timothée Chalamet as childhood-friend-turned-love-interest Laurie complete the cast of classic characters. ★★★★★ sisters to life.

Family first:

PAN'S LABYRINTH
ABC TV Plus, Friday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2006)

Haunting, dark and beautiful, Pan's Labyrinth straddles the worlds of uncertain fantasy and brutal reality and will spook adults, not just children. Eleven-year-old dreamer Ofelia's (Ivana Baquero, pictured) reality is the remote hills of war-torn 1940 Spain, where her mother tells her she's getting too old for fairytales. Led by a fairy, Ofelia explores a crumbling labyrinth near her new home and encounters a faun (Doug Jones) who reveals that she is the Princess of the Underworld. ★★★★★

MINIONS
9Go!, Saturday, 7pm, PG (2015)

The yellow, banana-loving, jibberish-speaking assistants to evil get the spotlight here – you could argue they already stole it in the Despicable Me films – as they search for a new villain to serve. This film is set before the Minions served Gru and we learn about their history before Stuart, Kevin and Bob (all voiced by Pierre Coffin) try to win the favour of Scarlet Overkill (Sandra Bullock). John Hamm plays her blindly supportive husband Herb Overkill. Fun for the whole family. ★★★

POMS
10 Shake, Saturday, 7.30pm, PG (2019)

Calendar Girls meets Bring It On in this cheerful comedy about growing old disgracefully. Diane Keaton stars as Martha, a terminally ill woman who moves to an active retirement community, hoping to be left alone. She's out of luck – her exuberant neighbour Sheryl (Jacki Weaver, pictured, right, with Keaton) insists that they become best friends. When Martha comes out of her shell, the pair start a cheerleading squad and learn it's never too late to follow their dreams. ★★★★★

PRETTY WOMAN
Seven/Prime7, Sunday, 9pm, M (1990)

Along with this, Julia Roberts (pictured) has notched up a fair few popular feel-good romantic comedies in her career (My Best Friend's Wedding, Notting Hill), and the success of these movies is no fluke, as she possesses an amazing ability to turn corn into caviar. Playing Viv Ward, a "hooker with a heart of gold", Roberts manages to woo suave corporate client Edward Lewis (Richard Gere) in a modern-day fairytale that pushes so many right buttons, you can't help but adore it. ★★★★★

ATOMIC BLONDE
9Go!, Monday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2017)

An MI6 operative (Charlize Theron) is sent to Berlin at the end of the Cold War to investigate the murder of one of her peers and recover a missing list of double agents working on both sides of the conflict. Theron proves once again she is a commanding on-screen force, but with a prevailing emphasis on style over content, the film is just another superficial, albeit mildly entertaining, Hollywood exercise. Co-stars James McAvoy. ★★★

VANTAGE POINT
9Go!, Tuesday, 10.10pm, M (2008)

Approach this political thriller as a fusion of 24 and Groundhog Day. An anti-terror summit in Spain gets off to the worst possible start when the US president (William Hurt, pictured) is shot in a town square. The incident is shown from the perspectives of witnesses to chaotic scene, played by Sigourney Weaver, Zoe Saldana, Forest Whitaker, Dennis Quaid and Matthew Fox. Each witness holds answers to who's behind the sniper attack and the puzzle slowly comes together. ★★★★★

The Guide

SECRET DELICIOUS SBS Food, Friday, 8pm

You've got to hand it to whoever named this tantalising foodie series – who doesn't want all the deliciousness in the world that has somehow been kept a secret from us ordinary folk? Food writer Aun Koh (pictured) dedicates his existence to discovering, eating and understanding the most inspiring, delectable and underground dishes in Asia, chatting to the chefs and cooks who make the magic happen. In this premiere, Koh begins in his home town, Singapore, possibly one of the most food-obsessed places in the world.

MISS FISHER AND THE CRYPT OF TEARS ABC TV, Sunday, 8.30pm

The classy and captivating Miss Fisher (Essie Davis, pictured), our homegrown detective heroine who gives James Bond a run for his money, has returned after three beloved seasons with this fun and exotic feature film. Rather than present the movie in full, the ABC has split the globe-trotting adventure into two parts, with the final instalment airing tonight. After Phryne and Jack (Nathan Page) find the most important crypt treasure, the killer's identity is revealed in a furious fight.

BIG BROTHER Seven/Prime7, Monday, 7.30pm

You could say that Seven were taking a gamble on a Big Brother reboot starring contestants from almost 20 years ago. Would young viewers relate to the likes 2003 winner Reggie Bird (pictured) or 2006 third-placer, farmer

Dave? As it turns out, the soapie-esque drama and strategic gameplay have proven a gripping, guilty pleasure, with love stories and rivalries rearing their heads. As high-stakes week kicks off, just nine housemates remain. After an epic blindside of an eviction, several people are wondering who they can trust.

Retrospective: David Wenham and Ita Buttrose trawl through the ABC archive in The ABC Of.

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE ABC OF ABC TV, Tuesday, 8pm

"Strewth!", "Gosh" and "Where'd you get that?" are just some of the reactions in this significant series, premiering tonight. The ABC is commemorating 90 years of programming, and this joyful, introspective six-part special celebrates the fruits of the network's vast archives. The shindig is hosted by well-known actor David Wenham, who sits down for a chat and a visual trip down memory lane with a number of famous faces, beginning tonight with ABC chairperson and businesswoman Ita Buttrose. Future episodes include former Prime Minister John Howard, tennis legend Evonne Goolagong Cawley, stand-up comedian and TV host Wil Anderson and national treasure, actor Garry McDonald.

IDENTITY CRISIS

Streaming, from Friday,
Prime Video

A sharp social-media thriller created by Sex Education's Alice Seabright, this six-part series cuts to the heart of how unrealistic a perfectly curated profile can be.

The Crown's Princess Anne, Erin Doherty, shakes off the shackles of royal life as Becky Green, a Bristol woman with a fairly ordinary day-to-day. She spends her days working as a temp while caring part-time for her mother, who has early onset dementia. It's at night that Becky escapes, whether that be committing identity fraud to get into exclusive parties or obsessively scrolling through the idyllic social media presence of her childhood friend Chloe Fairbourne (Poppy Gilbert, inset).

When Chloe suddenly dies, Becky uses her skills of charm and deception to assume a new identity – international art guru Sasha Miles – and infiltrate the lives of those closest to her – Chloe's best friend Livia (Pippa Bennett-Warner) and widower Elliot (Billy Howle).

With several facets of Becky's personality at play, Chloe is a showcase for Doherty's considerable talents and provides a thrilling escape from reality. – Lauren Mitchell

Covert operation:
Erin Doherty goes incognito to solve her friend's death in Chloe.

GORDITA CHRONICLES
Streaming, Binge

Produced by Zoe Saldana and Eva Longoria, this uniquely funny coming-of-age series follows young Cucu 'Gordita' Castelli (Olivia Goncalves, pictured) as she says goodbye to her life in Santo Domingo and moves to America with her family. The culture clash the Castellis face in 1985 Miami is the backdrop for a colourful tale about defying the status quo.

THE UMBRELLA ACADEMY
Streaming, Netflix

Convinced they have fixed the timeline once and for all, the Umbrella Academy return to the present, only to find things aren't as they left them. With an unidentified entity wreaking havoc, the Hargreeves contend with their father's new family – the Sparrow Academy – as they try to find a way back to their pre-apocalyptic lives.

WESTWORLD
Streaming from 11am,
Monday, Foxtel On Demand

Two years after the season three finale, this mind-melting dystopian sci-fi epic returns. West Side Story star and Oscar winner Ariana DeBose (pictured) joins the cast for a dark odyssey about the fate of all sentient life on Earth. Evan Rachel Wood and James Marsden return in cryptic new roles.

LOOT
Streaming from Friday, Apple TV+

Betrayed by her husband of 20 years, billionaire Molly Novak (Maya Rudolph, pictured) embarks on a public spiral in this outrageous comedy. She's about to hit rock bottom when she gets a call from Sofia (Pose's Mj Rodriguez), the no-nonsense head of her charitable foundation, who's keen to stop the bad press by putting Molly to work.

THE REAL HOUSEWIVES ULTIMATE GIRLS TRIP EX-WIVES CLUB
Streaming from Friday, Hayu

A who's who of former Housewives populate this reality extravaganza. It's a trip down memory lane for Dorinda Medley, Jill Zarin, Phaedra Parks, Eva Marcille, Vicki Gunvalson, Tamra Judge, Brandi Glanville and Taylor Armstrong. If those names mean anything to you, tune in for the drama.

Gardening

Milky sap or Euphorbia

By Neil Fisher

A drive through the streets of any town in Western Queensland at the moment will reveal numerous gardens with splashes of bright red and white colours.

The plants that provide these colourful displays are members of the Euphorbiaceae family, the Euphorbia Snowflake and Euphorbia pulcherrima or Poinsettia.

The name Euphorbia refers to the milky sap that the plant has inside its stem.

A native of Mexico, Poinsettias were even cultivated by the Aztecs and called Cuetlayochitl.

In its natural state, it can grow to around three metres high.

Poinsettias are probably not planted as widely today as in previous years.

‘However, there are more than 100 hybrid varieties available worldwide, with dwarf forms now more popularly used for indoor decoration.

The red form has been available for several decades.

Now, there are other shades such as pink, salmon and lemon, which are probably the most spectacular flowering varieties.

The winter flowering displays of the Poinsettias are usually triggered by the season's shorter days.

While the Poinsettia is probably the best-known member of the Euphorbia family, there are other varieties that appear in many gardens, some showy plants and others as weeds.

Often both varieties are present.

The weeds can grow in garden beds or shrubberies and are easy to control.

The desirable, cultivated members of the Euphorbia family make a bright show, and with a few exceptions, are reliable.

In Western Queensland, the Euphorbia Snowflake has become a very successful garden plant.

It is a variety of Euphorbia leucocephala that makes densely branched plants if pruned a few times in summer.

The small white leaves around the globular true flower structures make the shrub prominent in a garden.

Careful placing around other plants is necessary.

The newer variety is called Euphorbia leucocephala Pink Finale.

Like the Euphorbia leucocephala Snowflake, the Pink Finale is a large spreading shrub with light green foliage.

Flowering begins with masses of small delicate white bracts in the autumn, and then graduates to pink during the winter months, giving it the appearance of coconut ice.

These flowers are slightly fragrant and attract Butterflies.

This is a very drought-tolerant shrub.

The Crown-of-Thorns or Euphorbia milii is a low-growing plant with thick stems clothed with masses of stout spines.

It bears tiny yellowish flowers amidst bright colourful bracts of pink, red or yellow.

This plant will flower for much of the year, most particularly in spring. Crown of Thorns will grow in most parts of Central Queensland and would be one of the water-wise plants grown.

This small spreading succulent plant comes from Madagascar and has been used in Australian gardens for many years.

It is slow-growing in most soils and will not torrent to buggy positions and frost.

In large tubs, Poinsettias can be turned into plants with up to 40 heads.

To produce the multi-headed plants, prune several times through the summer until March.

Usually, two or more shoots will arise from one pruned stem.

Out in the garden, the dwarf Poinsettia can grow to 60cm or more and, following summer pruning, they provide a bright spot throughout winter.

Growing Poinsettias of any kind in the garden has a couple of problems.

One is to locate the plants where light from the house or the street does not interfere with their requirement of long nights.

They like rich, well-drained soil and need protection from frost and strong winds.

One of the most asked questions about Poinsettias is what fertiliser should be used and when?

My recommendation is to apply a complete garden food around your plants through spring, summer and autumn and be sure to water it straight away, with a little Blood and Bone applied after rain.

In late April or early May, start fortnightly applications of a Potash-based fertiliser and stop this just before the Poinsettia starts to flower.

Poinsettias really love potash fertilisers, and this is the way to have wonderful winter flowering displays.

HANDY HINT

Poinsettias are very easy to propagate.

First, take stem cutting to a length of about 1 foot or 30cm long.

Then leave them to dry for a couple of weeks.

Remember, if the sap does not dry out, then the cuttings will rot and not grow.

Then, in a high-quality potting or seed-raising mix, bury half of the length of the stem cutting into the mix.

Make sure you keep the cutting moist but not too wet.

NOTE: The sap of the Poinsettia is an irritant, so always handle plants with care.

Wool market report

Rising costs

By Australian Wool Network

The Australian wool market has recorded another overall increase this series, again driven by strong demand on merino fleece types.

Fremantle returned this week, bolstering the national offering.

Nationally, there were 35,357 bales on offer, 4,260 more than the previous week.

Main buyer interest continued to focus on good style, low vegetable matter merino fleece lots.

Strong demand for these types was the catalyst for the overall gains in the market.

Across the country all merino fleece Micron Price Guides (MPGs) recorded increases for the week.

As Fremantle did not enjoy the gains felt in the East last week, the largest increases were recorded in the West, and the MPGs in Fremantle rose by between 70 and 125 cents.

Speciality non-mulesed types continue to be highly sought after by exporters, who are prepared to pay premiums of up to 250 cents above similar spec mulesed types, in an effort to secure these wools.

By the end of the series, the AWEX Eastern Market Indicator (EMI) had added 29 cents, closing the week at 1,467 cents.

Lacklustre performances in the other sectors prevented a larger increase in the EMI.

With merino fleece tracking upward and the crossbred sector losing ground, the gap between the two sectors continues to grow. This is best highlighted by looking at the difference between the 17.0 and 28.0 micron MPGs in the East.

The difference between the two MPGs has now grown to an average of 2,361.5 cents.

The last time the price differential was larger was back in June 2001, when the difference was 2,382 cents.

To put this into perspective, in 2015 this difference was only 499 cents.

The national offering reduces for the following series, due in part to Fremantle having another non-sale week.

Currently, there are expected to be 30,810 bales on offer with only Sydney and Melbourne in operation.

By Queensland Farmers' Federation

The release of the Queensland Competition Authority (QCA) final determination on 2022-23 regulated retail electricity prices for Queensland has raised concern for farmers and regional communities and rightly so.

Queensland Farmers' Federation (QFF) CEO Jo Sheppard said, "Rising wholesale electricity and gas prices are adding to the long list of escalating input costs for farmers."

"We have made no allowances in this state for the development of a secure, affordable domestic market.

"Gas is our country's natural resource and yet Queensland is at the mercy of high international prices for coal and gas which will likely remain high over the foreseeable future.

"It is disappointing that the final determination does not offer relief for highly seasonal farming businesses that need greater flexibility with tariffs that better match the seasonality of energy use.

"The substantial increases announced in both small and large business tariffs are also concerning for farmers across Queensland."

"Farmers need equitable pricing, with affordable tariffs being the main driver of sustainable business.

"An affordable tariff is one that has a ceiling of 8cents/kwh for the retail (R) component and a ceiling of 8c/kwh for the network (N) component."

Providing affordable tariffs, with competitive pricing will allow for stability and future growth for farm businesses who are currently unable to plan more than a year ahead of time, due to instability across the electricity network framework.

"It is critical that the government implement long-term, sustainable and cost-reflective tariff structures for agriculture and irrigation to support the future viability of Queensland farmers," Ms Sheppard said.

"Securing energy supply is essential but it is also important to continue energy efficiency initiatives like QFF's Energy Savers Program, to support farmers to achieve increased energy productivity on farm.

"We need to work together to address both supply and demand in relation to the energy crisis, including fast-tracking the development of large-scale renewables and transmission, however, assistance will also be needed to ensure business continuity and viability in the short term."

QFF will continue to work with all levels of government, industry and community stakeholders to find affordable electricity solutions and price certainty, the future of farming and regional Queensland depends upon it.

Mother-of-millions, Leucaena intruders

By Anna-Marie Moffat;
Central West Pest Management Group

Mother-of-millions is a native plant from Madagascar and came into Australia as an ornamental plant.

Because of Queensland's dry arid areas, Mother-of-Millions thrives prolifically when left alone.

This plant has been known to grow in thick Gidgea areas, but can also be found in open areas.

This plant is highly toxic to stock, especially during the flowering period or when feed is scarce.

You can find more information at:

Leucaena (River tamarind, jumbay, white leadtree, ipil-ipil, tan tan and white popinca) was introduced into Northern Australia in the 1890s to develop a legume forage system.

Like many of our Pest Plants that we have discussed over the past few months, Leucaena has the ability to invade any area when not in a controlled environment.

Even though it is not a prohibited or restricted plant under the Biosecurity Act 2014, everyone still has a biosecurity obligation to minimise the risk assisted with this plant.

Some strains of this plant are toxic to Goats, Cattle, Sheep and Horses, hence why

Concerns in ag sector hit mid-year producer confidence

By Rabobank

Concern about rising input costs and a possible softening in high commodity prices has seen confidence slip back in Queensland's agricultural sector in the second quarter of the year, the latest Rabobank Rural Confidence Survey has found.

However, the state's producers still have a healthy appetite for spending on their businesses, with investment intentions remaining at near-record levels reached last quarter and 93 per cent planning to increase or maintain current spending on their farm businesses in the coming 12 months.

The conflict in Ukraine was also found to be hanging over the sector, with 65 per cent of Queensland producers surveyed believing it would negatively impact agribusiness due, primarily, to higher prices for fuel and farm inputs.

The latest survey, completed last month, found that 28 per cent of the state's producers were expecting agribusiness conditions to improve in the coming 12 months.

This was down from 39 per cent with that view in the previous quarter.

However, more than half of those surveyed (51 per cent) were anticipating the current positive conditions would continue.

A total of 18 per cent were expecting business conditions to deteriorate in the year ahead, an increase on eight per cent last quarter.

Of those producers now expecting the agricultural economy to worsen, rising input costs were the leading concern (nominated by 60 per cent).

Producers were also apprehensive about a possible downward drift in commodity prices, with 34 per cent identifying this as a worry.

This quarter, participants were specifically asked their views about the impacts of the war in Ukraine on agribusiness, with only 14 per cent of Queensland producers believing there would be any positive market impacts.

These were primarily in the cotton, grain and dairy sectors.

The majority expected a negative (55 per cent) or very negative (10 per cent) impact—with the conflict impacting the cost and/or availability of vital farm inputs including fertiliser, fuel, freight and machinery and adding to broader inflationary pressures.

Rabobank regional manager for Southern Queensland and Northern New South Wales Brad James said while high input costs were undoubtedly causing margin pressures, the combination of good seasonal conditions and current strong commodity prices had sustained ag sector sentiment at still-positive levels. And this was providing the confidence for producers to continue investing in their businesses.

Mr James said seasonal conditions had been good across much of the state, however, the northwest remains dry and the southeast corner has "seen too much rain".

"We saw devastating flooding in southeast Queensland in February and more extreme rainfall events recently that created massive challenges for producers in the region – while many other areas of Queensland are enjoying one of their best seasons in years," he said.

The latest survey found across the commodities, beef producers were the most positive sector in the state, with 57 per cent expecting agribusiness conditions to remain stable and 27 per cent forecasting conditions to improve.

This is back slightly on last quarter.

Mr James said beef producers are mindful of the potentially devastating impacts of Lumpy Skin Disease and Foot and Mouth Disease which have recently been detected in neighbouring countries and are concerned about potential animal health and international trade implications for the Australian beef sector.

Overall in the market, "the demand for Queensland agricultural properties has not slowed down", Mr James said.

"There is a limited number of properties on the market and a lot of interested parties when they do come up for sale."

Over the coming 12 months, 24 per cent of those Queensland producers who intend to increase the investment spent on their business have indicated they plan to purchase property to expand their farming operation.

When it comes to investment intentions overall, the latest survey found 36 per cent of Queensland producers planned to spend more on their farm businesses in the coming year, while 57 per cent were looking to maintain investment at current levels.

Mr James said in addition to investing in more land, Queensland producers who intend to increase investment are planning to spend on farm infrastructure.

However, supply chain disruption and labour availability are providing challenges.

"Global supply chain delays and limited labour will be impacting producers' infrastructure development plans," Mr James said.

"Producers are being challenged by the cost of materials and machinery, the long wait times for deliveries and the ongoing challenge of finding labour."

Other investment dollars were planned to be spent on increasing livestock numbers (61 per cent of those planning increased investment) and new technologies (52 per cent).

A comprehensive monitor of outlook and sentiment in Australian rural industries, the Rabobank Rural Confidence Survey questions an average of 1000 primary producers across a wide range of commodities and geographical areas throughout Australia on a quarterly basis.

The most robust study of its type in Australia, the Rabobank Rural Confidence Survey has been conducted since 2000 by an independent research organisation. The next results are scheduled for release in September 2022.

Young tennis champions

By Ben Galea;
Longreach Tennis Club President

On Sunday morning our club hosted a mini-tournament for 15 of our junior coaching students, putting their practice into play over two hours of round-robin tennis matches.

Our coaches and parents have been impressed with the improvement in skills over the past couple of months, and so it was great to see the kids getting some rallies going and really having fun with it.

In the younger age group, Mia came away as the winner for getting the most hits over the net; while in the older age group it was Jacob who won the most games in their mixed doubles rotations with Will a close second.

Best and fairest was awarded to Lottie, Archie, and young Henry.

The coaches would like to thank the many parents who have given their kids this opportunity and especially those who came down to watch for the morning; the support certainly rubs off on the littlies.

Tuesday coaching will be on again this week but with a little more fun and fewer skills work after the weekend's mini battles.

We'll break for the school holidays and return in Term 3.

A larger tournament is planned for September, and we'll make that one a biggy, with a bbq for the parents and likely full-court games for those students who can manage it by that time.

Calm before storm: Social outing before championships

Well last Sunday we only had one competition game with so many bowlers away at the Australian Titles on the Gold Coast.

We did have two games of social and it was good to see the turnout again.

The competition game was a Men's Triples match-up between John Hawkes, Rodney Butt, and Bernie Gayler up against Bob Grant, Tony Forster, and Terry Harris who stepped in to sub for a player who was away.

Hawksey's team started like they had money on the game, shooting out to a 12-3 lead before Bob's team scored four shots to narrow the gap.

But Hawkes, Rodney and Bernie fired up again and got the score out to 17-7.

Then Bob's team scored six shots on the 13 end to trail 13-17.

Hawksey's team got away again and took it to 24-15 but Bob's team then scored five shots on the 19th end to be just four shots behind with two ends left.

Hawksey, Rodney, and Bernie had a mid-green chat and regained their concentration and scored two shots on the last two ends to finally take the game 26-20 in what was a very competitive game.

In social we saw Tony, Paul, and Amanda defeat Paula, Sharon, and visitor Coral by 17-12.

On another rink, we had Michelle, Baileigh, and Peter beat Patrick, Gail, and Ellen by 20-15.

This Sunday is an important day for the Men's Fours Championship as there are two games to be played to see who the 2022 champions are.

The first game starts at 10am, the second game will start at the normal 1pm time.

The reason we have to squeeze two games in is to allow the champions to have time to nominate for the district playoffs."

Benefits in the social side of backing a good cause

Remember when you would be at work and someone would bring up a form to ask you to sponsor their child to walk around the school or read a certain number of books; yeah that's how we did it in the old days.

It wasn't rare but they weren't as prevalent as they are today.

If you are on social media your "feed" will be constantly filled with people walking, running, riding, doing push-ups, shaving/growing facial hair and many other activities.

Locally you will be invited to attend fundraisers such as walks/rides or like the colour run we have down the river this weekend.

These events fundraise for local people in need, research, or people in Australia and abroad hit by disaster.

They are great and raise very important dollars.

But their real benefit is getting people out, exercising, taking part, mingling and talking.

I was talking to a friend and colleague this week about social prescription.

In England, your GP can prescribe you free dance lessons, a gym membership or art classes.

I don't want to pretend this is the answer to many of our mental health problems, but I feel it would be a good start.

Being part of a supportive social group - whatever it might be - is a great building block for a healthy lifestyle, so get out there and take part!

Our first-class of tennis kids for 2022 wrapped up this week.

It has been great to have the support of a fantastic group of young coaches, and I encourage anyone keen to help out to contact the Club.

Now not many of the kids will make it to the final of Wimbledon (they better remember to mention Mr Lloyd if they do!) but what I hope is that they are one-day playing tennis with their kids and enjoying the social side of the game.

Tennis is a game for ages 4-84, and while it isn't my number one sport, it has been a great ice breaker as I've moved around the country.

Every country town seems to have a tennis court, some are now neglected and in ruins, but others are the centre of the town's social scene such as Corfield and McKinlay.

So keep an eye out Central West, I'm looking to revive and encourage the game in a town near you, first stop your local tennis court, and last stop a life of enjoyment.

Junior Wallabies try out

By Prue Button; iButton Events

Last Thursday locals were treated to a fantastic Rugby Union Fun day at the Longreach Showgrounds to celebrate the Junior Wallabies being in town.

The junior Wallabies are the Australian under 20 Rugby Union players from all around – Perth, Brisbane, Melbourne, Sydney, Canberra and everywhere in between.

Some 31 players and nine staff travelled out to hold their training camp before their international Oceania Competition and were in the town for eight nights.

The afternoon started off with 7s games between Longreach State High School teams and Barcaldine State School.

For many of these players, it was their first game of rugby, yet many were impressed with the array of skills shown.

The Junior Wallabies formed a tunnel for local players to run through before the six games played.

Before the games, there was a rugby skills clinic run by the Junior Wallabies - about 90 kids came along to the clinic and the enthusiasm and energy from the Junior Wallabies was awesome.

At 5pm a mini touch competition kicked off.

Eight teams were nominated and each team was given three junior wallabies to add to their team.

Men, women and children made up the teams and got the chance to play with these elite sportsmen.

It was a knockout competition and Congratulations to Yippee Try Yay who won the grand final over Anytime Tryscorers.

A huge thank you to the Junior Wallabies for coming to Longreach and engaging in our community.

They had spent Tuesday at all four Longreach schools to run clinics.

Many of the boys from the Junior Wallabies said that the school visits and community afternoon were the highlight of their visit and enjoyed being part of our community.

Thank you to everyone who came along and supported it, as well as David Walker, Kailah Rogers and Courtney Horan for their reffing and assistance for the afternoon.

A Sunday at the races

By Rob Luck; Longreach Jockey Club

The Longreach Jockey Club conducted a successful race meeting on Sunday afternoon with the Birdcage Hotel race day which was transferred from two weeks ago due to the wet weather.

It proved to be a successful afternoon with 55 acceptances for the meeting and 12 jockeys on hand, with many jockeys riding at the Mckinlay or Cunnamulla races and then coming to the Longreach meeting.

It proved a bonus for the racing industry with participants being able to share in the prize money available rather than the meet being abandoned and that money lost to the industry.

The support of the jockeys suggests that when there are weekends with large numbers of meetings on Saturday, a Sunday alternative can be successful.

The weather was beautiful for the people who were on track for the six-event program, and the feature event was the Birdcage Hotel sprint Open Handicap.

It was taken out by the Clinton Austin-trained Burden, a place-getter in last year's Longreach Cup.

Burden is a quality open company horse now with 10 wins from 42 starts and 13 minor placings.

It was having its fifth start back from a spell, jockey Robbie Faehr was able to settle Burden in the centre after running wide most of the race.

The galloper was coming home strongly and Jarhead for Rodney Little and Emma Bell had darted up along the rails and gained what seemed to be a winning break.

However, Faehr was able to produce Burden down the centre with a very strong run that took it to a three-quarter length win and was moving away at the finish from Jarhead and Cozhecan can some three lengths away in third place.

It was a welcome return to form for Burden and now it seems on track for another tilt at the Longreach Cup in September this year.

Trainer Todd Austin continued his amazing run of success after a treble in Barcaldine last week, and the combination with jockey Ric McMahon - the current leader of the Longreach Jockey Premiership - took the Benchmark 65 Handicap with a much-improved horse in Halcyon House who has won all three runs for the stable.

The five-year-old gelding has proved dominant on the grass track at Barcaldine, and the dirt surface in Longreach proved no trouble for Halcyon House despite the 63-and-a-half.

As odds on favourite ran out a four-and-a-half length winner over Drayman and Heroism.

Halcyon House joins the other exceptional gallopers at the Todd Austin stable that are continuing to produce winning performances and is one to watch as it progresses to open company.

Moranbah-based trainer Billy Johnson and apprentice Tyler Leslight combined with Royo in the Class B Handicap over 1000 metres, with a strong performance that saw the galloper shoot clear with 100 to go and hold off the late challenge from an unlucky Pinnaroo who had tailed out early, swept around the outside at the home turn, and finish powerfully in the straight only to go down by half-a-length at the finish.

Evergreen-galloper Hot Chocolate ran an improved race into third.

The day, however, belonged to Ilfracombe trainer Rodney Little and Emma Bell with a double: firstly in the Gordon "Pop Eye" Saunders Memorial QTIS Maiden Plate over 1300 metres, when Osaka Sunset was able to hold on and beat Matagorda with Our Young Man in third place.

Osaka Sunset had improved from its recent run at Barcaldine and was able to sit just off the pace and jockey Emma Bell was able to gain the inside rails run on straightening - as she was doing all afternoon - and shoot through and gain the lead 100 metres from home.

The filly has improved with each run and has now won the QTIS prize money.

The second of Mr Little and Ms Bell's double came in the final event the Benchmark 60 Handicap over 1600 metres when Helmet Head - having its second run for the stable - again produced a similar run to Osaka Sun for Bell by snaring the inside run as they turned for home.

As other runners fanned wide in the straight, Bell shot up the rail to win by two-and-a-quarter lengths from Sizzle Sun and Mrs Senna, who had a good run for its first over 1600 metres albeit it some six lengths away.

Helmet Head has won over longer journeys and continues to improve for the Little Stable, and again is a galloper that could easily be headed for a Longreach Cup campaign.

Evergreen-galloper Amadeo for Barcaldine trainer Geoffrey Rafter and jockey John Rudd continued his love affair with the Longreach track.

After a strong run at Barcaldine last week that suggested he was back at his best form, this nine-year-old swept around the outside for jockey Rudd, continued strongly in the straight, and was able to hold off Sole Heir, who appeared to be the likely winner, until Amadeo continued with his strong run in the straight and managed to snatch victory by a long-neck, with one of the early leaders, Music Award holding on for third and co-leader Purple Trumpet only a length-and-a-quarter away in fourth.

It was an exciting finish for the Benchmark 55 Handicap over 1200 metres, and trainer Rafter was so impressed with the run of Amadeo last week at Barcaldine that he suggested if the horse could live up to that form in Longreach that he has won a Digger's Cup on in previous years, he expected he would be hard to beat even though he was considered an outsider of the field.

It was a great result for the Rafter/ Rudd combination and jockey Rudd has had a winning association with Amadeo in previous starts.

CQ stay third despite draw

By Liam Emerton

The Rockhampton Leagues Club Central Queensland Capras will remain embedded in the top three during the Origin break thanks to a come-from-behind draw with the Redcliffe Dolphins.

It all started perfectly for our Capras when a Jack Madden kick was knocked back by centre Jonus Pearson into the arms of fullback Blake Moore who scored untouched in the fourth minute.

Trey Browne slotted his conversion attempt to give the Capras a 6-0 lead but the Dolphins were quick to strike back through Edward Kosi, making the score 6-4.

The NZ Warriors' signed winger managed another try eight minutes later to put Redcliffe ahead 8-6.

On the 24th minute mark Curtis Dansey-Smaller crossed for his sixth try of the season, taking the Capras back into the lead with the scoreboard reading 10-8.

But with just 10 minutes left in the half the home side scored a long-distance try with the power of former New Zealand rugby union player and NRL Dolphins recruit Valynce Te Whare too much for the Central Queenslanders.

Another strong run by Te Whare set up the next scoring opportunity for the Capras where a sharp step from fullback Trai Fuller stumbled two Capras defenders and gave the Dolphins a healthy 18-10 lead at the break.

Needing another big lift at the half, the Central Queensland squad found the opening second-half try through Jedidiah Simbiken.

A quick switch from Madden to the short side saw a Moore grubber cause two Dolphins to collide which gave Simbiken the easiest put down of his career and brought the Capras to within an unconverted try of their opponents.

And it wouldn't be a Capras match without winger Brandon Roberts crossing for a meat pie.

A mid-air catch and pass from Dansey-Smaller set the high-flying winger free to score his 10th try of the season.

Roberts' try also tied the match at 18-18 with 18 minutes remaining in the contest.

But, despite the Capras' second half dominance, it was the Dolphins who struck late through Kosi.

Kosi's third try of the afternoon regained the Dolphins' lead in the 75th minute with a Daejarn Asi conversion making the score 24-18 with just minutes remaining.

But that Capras spirit, which has been so evident in every match this season, was brought to the forefront again.

The Capras will hold on to their third place during the State of Origin break.

No surprise it was the connection of Roberts and Dansey-Smaller that came up with the leveller two minutes later.

Roberts went down the short side and drew and passed by the fullback to give his centre an easy try.

Browne's boot found the mark for the second time in the match, levelling the scores at 24-24.

And that's how the match finished, a big effort from the Capras to maintain their third-place positioning as they look forward to the Tweed Seagulls in two weeks.

The Hostplus Cup competition will break for the Origin period before returning on July 2 with a Capras home match.

For our Hasting Deering Colts they were knocked off 28-16 against the Redcliffe Dolphins.

Herman Seumanufagai scored a double for CQ while the returning Jye Marriott also bagged a try.

That loss meant the under-21s dropped from first place down to the third position on the ladder.
