A record 74 people gathered at the Caxton Hotel in Brisbane last Thursday, July for the Annual Longreach Reunion. Originally the numbers were looking to be up around 100, but the recent outbreak of Covid caused quite a few to withdraw from the gathering.

Guests enjoyed a beautiful lunch and five hours or so of wonderful catching up.

Cash boost in dog fence

Small stock producers in Queensland are about to reap the value-added benefits from the National Wild Dog Action Plan.

The Queensland sheep and goat industries will get another boost with $4 million in grants over two years to leverage the benefits of state government investment in cluster fencing.

The Rural Agricultural Development grants of up to $200,000 per business will help sheep and goat enterprises develop new markets.

Swooped!

The Blackall Magpies caused what had to have been upset of the season when they out-wrestled the Longreach/ Ilfracombe Tigers 12-0.

It had to have been one of the more impressive defensive efforts, holding back the normally dazzling Tiger's attack to nil for 80 minutes.

Here are fans Lexi Hicks and Maddie McCosker celebrating the win.

Comp reels 'em in

This year's Isisford Fishing Comp saw its largest crowd on record, as fishers from all over the State turned up to find the biggest Yellowbelly on the event's 20th Anniversary.

Isisford Barcoo Recreational Fishing Association President Sally Edwards said competitors had been rolling into the Oma Waterhole two weeks early.

"We were only discussing how it was in previous years, competitors turned up in swags, tents, camper trailers and some with the odd caravan and now there are heaps of caravans, large camps and family groups are getting bigger," she said.

"We expected the 20-year celebration to be a lot bigger than other years and probably future years as well.

"We brought in the band Viper Creek, they were fantastic so Saturday night went off really well.

Ms Edwards said there looked to be up to 420 adults and 80 juniors.

"Going on memory 2007 we had around 645 nominations for the weekend," she said.

"This comp we had 740, 606 adults and 134 Juniors.

"A massive crowd you could notice on Sunday at presentations, as you can imagine there would be extra numbers of those who don't even nominate."

Ms Edwards said it was always great to see the town balloon during the fishing comp.

The editor's desk

The secret is out, I love writing.

And Storyfest Out West was the kind of dream I had during my Undergrad.

Seeing the look I have every day when I write plastered across nearly every local student's face was an indescribable moment.

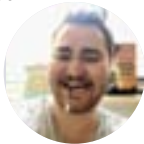

The chance to network and share the passion with some of Australia's biggest and brightest—even better.

Meeting and discussing the process of creative non-fiction, my preferred genre, with industry legend Peter FitzSimons—astronomical.

But the greatest moment of all was taking my mate, Alan Blunt to the literary breakfast and seeing his face.

Next year, we as a community have the opportunity to make Story fest even bigger. The Longreach Writers and Poets Club are always looking for new members, if you'd like to hone your craft, or write a novel to share at next year's festival, please email longreachartandculture@gmail.com

New Longreach Regional Council CEO Dirk Dowling says economic development is his forte.

CEO up to the challenges

By Michael R Williams

Commitment, community, and people are the three reasons Longreach Regional Council CEO Dirk Dowling comes to work in the morning.

"I'm actually a Queenslander, I was born in Victoria, but came to Queensland when I was ten," he said.

"This is number eight in terms of councils."

After working with former Deputy Premier Jim Elder in cabinet legislation and liaison and in the freedom of information department (during a time State development Mr Dowling described as 'just getting its legs'), Mr Dowling would go on to grow olives.

It was during his time on his farm Mr Dowling would take an interest in local government when Mr Dowling would help out and eventually work for the Inglewood Council (now a part of the Goondiwindi Council).

"Economic development, that was the path I chose to follow; I look to improve their regional economics," he said.

"I work with councils and businesses and communities in trying to get councils to think outside the square."

"With his background in state government, law, and business, I have a bit of a helicopter view of how councils should operate."

Having worked along the east coast, Mr Dowling would land in the Tasmanian West Coast Council as a General Manager in 2015 where he would run the Council for four years.

He would then step down to become the Director of Special Projects for a number of mountain biking trails, including the world-class Mount Owen trail in Queenstown.

From there Mr Dowling 'tried' to retire but found the process too boring.

"Local government is a really interesting place to work - as I've said, I've worked for State Government, for business, and not-for-profits - and Local Government is where I come back to," he said.

"You get a hell of a lot of pleasure working in Local Government if you can have a positive impact on a local community—and that's what I like about it.

"You get instant results in local government, as opposed to the bigger picture stuff working in state governments.

"Being at the head of the table, being able to build the team around you, you get to see the results every day—to me, that's exciting."

Mr Dowling said Longreach was the ideal place for him to begin work, having just spent four years in Tasmania.

"That's a place where you get three metres of rain a year, you go weeks without seeing the sun," he said.

"I wasn't looking just to have a job, I want an area where my skillset will have an impact.

"Lo and behold! Longreach came up, and who doesn't know Longreach—it's iconic, it's western Queensland, I've never been this far west."

Mr Dowling said, currently, one of the major issues he's looking to manage is biosecurity.

"It's a major issue for Longreach and the surrounding regions, foot and mouth, lumpy skin disease, even the Varroa mite—it's scary considering the amount our nation relies financially on the livestock industry," he said.

"That's something that we, as a local government, can have an impact on, but were very much on the State, who are driving the response, which is fantastic, but we need to assist in any way we can.

"We are working closely with RAPAD and having our impact on that as well.

"These are some trying times for the regions in Queensland and the surrounding States."

Going into the headwinds Mr Dowling hopes to help get the community out the other side, building up our major industries in agriculture and tourism along with building exceptionalism in Council's main functions.

"But as great as those things are, it's also important not to drop the ball on your core functions," he said.

"Roads, rates, and rubbish, if you can't do the core business, you might as well give it well—it's something you have to do exceptionally well.

"We'll also want to help local businesses with issues such as staffing."

Mr Dowling said he has fit in well in Longreach.

"I love the weather at this time," he said.

"The people are really friendly, people are saying, 'G'day', asking about your day, and actually wanting to hear your response.

"I love the town commons, as a motor bike rider, I can't wait to get out there and have a ride around."

COUNCIL BRIEFS

The Barcaldine Regional Council has awarded the tender to supply bitumen for the Barcaldine-Aramac Road to Boral Resources Pty Ltd for $291,893.12.

Council Mayor Sean Dillon has called the installation of warning signage that relates to the threats imposed by Foot and Mouth disease "a matter of urgency".

The Council plans to reach out to the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture to ascertain what can be done at a local level.

The Aramac Bakery has officially been put up to the public for sale or lease.

Muttaborra and Aramac town common users have been permitted to purchase a bull at their own cost for town common use.

A new chiller box will be installed in Muttaborra for the use of Kangaroo harvesters, this will follow negotiations with the Barcaldine Regional Council CEO Shane Gray.

Starting in the new financial year, the Barcaldine Regional Council will seek to purchase bulls for the Barcaldine Town Common to the charge of common cattle owners.

The value of the bull/s per head will be based on the number of cows' agisted on the Common.

The Barcaldine Regional Council has approved a $3,132 application from the Barcaldine Cultural Association for the Mobile Jewellery Tutor Silversmithing Workshop.

The Blackall-Tambo Regional Council has been considering the relocation of the Tambo Library and Visitor Information Centre to the Grassland Art Gallery building and is in consultation with the Tambo Arts Council.

According to RAPAD, NBN Fibre will be rolled out to Boulia and Alpha over the next 12 months.

Storyfest a right move

By Lucy Faggotter and Jacy Morton

Storyfest Out West has been a great experience for everyone from Longreach itself and surrounding areas, to Muttaborra, to Windorah and everywhere in between.

Schools, families and authors had the opportunity to collaborate with one another such as learning the tricks and trades of writing and storytelling.

We had the great opportunity to work as protocol students with journalist and author Caroline Graham, which meant we were able to help her first-hand with her sessions and workshops.

Each and every author bought a different talent and personality to share and talked to students about their journeys to becoming storytellers.

It was an outstanding and enjoyable event filled with fun, creativity and so much laughter.

Call for college kickstart

By Michael R Williams

Recently, the State Government through Agricultural Minister Mark Furner, made the decision to put the Longreach Pastoral College onto the free market with the knowledge there are a number of potential investors.

There are many possible results from this decision, and while many are hoping, and campaigning, for housing for people with disabilities, Longreach Regional Council Mayor

Tony Rayner has said the houses at the facility are not suitable for disability housing and fit for function housing would be a better investment.

"The best outcome for the community and region would be for a large well-financed investor to purchase the facility and land to utilise the commercial potential to generate jobs and to allow short course training for both agriculture and tourism," he said.

"This outcome was a long time coming and whilst we would all love for the old college to be operating the way it did, the reality is that market requirements have changed, and a new commercial investment that can see economic development and short course training initially is the best outcome.

"I think the future use of the College will always have a component of training for agricultural students and training for other sectors."

Hopes for the site to be transformed into a site for disability housing have been all but quashed with the sight being deemed unsuitable.

However, the Mr Rayner confirmed Council are looking at suitable sites for Outback Independent Living.

"The ideal solution for disability housing would be modern, contemporary and functional design," Mr Rayner said. "Council is currently reviewing all unallocated state land to establish what parcels might be available."

Joint effort

By Michael R Williams

Health care, mental health care, Indigenous health care, homelessness, physical health, food security, financial services and other Longreach agencies have begun meetings to build an interagency network in the name of improving the quality of life for all local citizens.

Selectability general manager for regions Ryan Wiggins said he was proud to hold the interagency meeting at their office.

"The interagency network is about connecting the local services to improve communications amongst ourselves in the name of people in the community who come to us for support," he said.

"Often we may get someone in any one of our services, and they may have a need we cannot fill, but we may not know where we can refer them onto.

"My goal would be to create a 'no wrong door' approach, where anyone can go to any one of our services and always be referred to the service they need.

"If we don't know what else is out there, how can people in the community know that."

Mr Wiggins said, long term, this network will be remarkably beneficial to the community.

"For the most part, people in the community know where to go if they have a certain need," he said.

"Say, if someone had a mental health concern, they could come to see us here at Selectability, if they are homeless they know Anglicare has a homelessness service.

"But, it might be, while we are working with that person, they talk about some other needs they may have."

Fire breaks out in Little Star restaurant

By Michael R Williams

A fire took place on Friday 29 July and was entirely controlled in the Little Star Indian Restaurant on Eagle St.

No injuries took place and there was now reported damage to the restaurant's infrastructure or to the surrounding buildings, including the now closed Star Cinema.

The fire seemed to have been contained entirely in the cooking equipment in which it originated.

There is possible electrical damage, and Ergon Energy has removed power from the building.

People of interest in locals' wellbeing met at the Selectability office in Longreach.

The real Corfield Cup

By Jeff Close, Winton Correspondent

Perfect racing conditions last Saturday saw a crowd of over 350 people attending the Corfield Races.

The facilities were top of the range, good fields attracted the punters and there were plenty of activities between races.

The Australian Age of Dinosaurs had their tent in operation with dinosaur bone painting and colouring activities.

Volunteers Luke and Judy ran the Rondel Droughtmasters golfing competition, with over $1500 in prizes.

The Fashions on the field attracted many entries. Three bookmakers were fielding, and food and icecreams were available throughout the day. The bar was a popular meeting spot to catch up with new and old friends.

Footraces and evening entertainment rounded off the day.

The organising committee and volunteers are to be applauded for an outstanding day in Corfield.

A record seventy-four people gathered at the Caxton Hotel in Brisbane last Thursday, July for the Annual Longreach Reunion.

Originally the numbers were looking to be up around 100, but the recent outbreak of COVID caused quite a few to withdraw from the gathering.

Guests enjoyed a beautiful lunch and five hours or so of wonderful catching up.

This year folk travelled from as far afield as Victoria and New South Wales—and of course, from Longreach.

Interestingly too, there were a number of attendees for whom this was their first reunion but will hopefully not be their last.

Jenny Haddrell (nee Atkins), on behalf of the organising committee of Bev Lindemann (nee Slade), Ella Pokarier (nee Pole), Lyn Jones (nee Slade), and Sharon Williams (nee Searles) thanked all who had been able to attend.

“It was a wonderful day of great friendship and really good fun,” Jenny said.

“That we have lived in Longreach is our common bond,” Jenny said.

The reunion is open to anyone who was born in Longreach or who lived in Longreach for any length of time or who lives in Longreach currently—and partners of course.

If you are interested in being on the email list for information about the 2023 Annual Reunion please email your details to Jenny at jhaddrell@y7mail.com

Fishing comp reels ‘em in

By Michael R Williams

This year's Isisford Fishing Comp saw its largest crowd on record, as fishers from all over the State turned up to find the biggest Yellowbelly on the event's 20th Anniversary.

Isisford Barcoo Recreational Fishing Association President Sally Edwards said competitors had been rolling into the Oma Waterhole two weeks early.

"We were only discussing how it was in previous years, competitors turned up in swags, tents, camper trailers and some with the odd caravan and now there are heaps of caravans, large camps and family groups are getting bigger," she said.

"We expected the 20-year celebration to be a lot bigger than other years and probably future years as well.

"We brought in the band Viper Creek, they were fantastic so Saturday night went off really well.

Ms Edwards said there looked to be up to 420 adults and 80 juniors.

"Going on memory 2007 we had around 645 nominations for the weekend," she said.

"This comp we had 740, 606 adults and 134 Juniors.

"A massive crowd you could notice on Sunday at presentations, as you can imagine there would be extra numbers of those who don't even nominate."

Ms Edwards said it was always great to see the town balloon during the fishing comp.

"Our population of Isisford is around 100 people, give or take," she said.

"When the comp is on, the number increases to six to seven times that number over; not only it is good for the comp, but it is great for the region and our small towns.

"If you think of what money that is spent on fuel, food, souvenirs etc., that of each car coming to Isisford, and in Isisford; it is a great benefit financially, and "also, it is a boost to the economy, plus gives the communities a bit of a buzz—being busy.

"The biggest highlight is meeting up with the committed competitors that come year after year, and meeting the new ones, seeing kids grow up and now in the adult section.

"It is great to see the comp has made a name for itself, and it is very favourable to many people and families."

The Isisford Fishing comp is likely to keep to what it knows going forward.

"I don't think we are up to many changes for next year, why change something that works well?" Ms Edwards asked.

"We probably look at introducing some new novelty events, especially for the kids.

"The best is the novelties, watching the kids having a ball, and we had the lolly drop on Saturday which was a great idea; I could probably mark that one as one of my highlights."

Isisford is all over for another year and Ms Edwards said the committee is already in the planning for next year, however, the Triple Crown Challenge has just begun.

"Isisford, Longreach, and Windorah are part of the Triple Crown Competition; we were fortunate to receive funding from the Community Drought Funding to assist with prizemoney and trophies," Ms Edwards said.

"This is to encourage more participation was postponed to October due to rain, so this event will be presenting the Triple Crown Trophy.

"On behalf of the committee, we wish both Longreach and Windorah all the best for success with their upcoming comps."

Bonus to Barcaldine

The gathering of councils in Barcaldine last week led to terrific opportunities for local businesses, even if it did have them extremely busy.

Some 230 plus patrons in town on top of the already busy tourist season presented the central west with additional stimulus.

Not only was the visit fantastic from a business perspective over the duration of their stay, but the lasting impression the topics discussed will have on all of our communities will benefit the economy into the future.

The aforementioned pressure on businesses in the region in relation to lack of staff has now reached unprecedented levels.

The local workforce is almost completely utilised, and there do not appear to be significant numbers of people knocking the doors down to join us.

RAPAD and the member councils are all participating in the Go Far Out West campaign, which tells the real stories of real people who have made the central west their home and workplace.

I urge you to jump online or use your favourite social media to have a look and help share awareness of the unique and wonderful opportunities that exist from an employment perspective out here.

Recently there was a significant disruption to the freight supply situation for grocery stores and butchers in the west.

The situation has stabilised somewhat in recent weeks, but there was potential for real and permanent effects as it unfolded.

Whilst, not something local government has direct influence or control over, I was able to see the issue raised with the Deputy Premier and a taskforce activated to assist.

Within the central west our disaster management resource, Craig Neundorff was also extremely proactive in both communicating but also reporting on the breadth of the issue and assisting to connect people.

Acting Director General Natalie Wilde provided constant and detailed reports to me in order to keep our businesses informed and for this, I am extremely grateful.

My thanks to both Natalie and Craig for their efforts during the crisis on behalf of us all.

Christmas in July brings family together

I was sitting at the dining room table this evening enjoying the company of both my offspring, who kindly managed to arrange their visits home to coincide for a few days.

There is nothing more heart-warming than having the family together, sharing a meal and stories.

It gives you a feeling of completeness—like all is right in the world.

The 'kids' exchanged memories of their boarding school days which left us all in stitches.

Both have a way with a yarn that they've clearly inherited from their father, the storyteller of all storytellers, next to their grandfather.

It was a delight, watching their one-upmanship, as they tried to outdo each other with outrageous stories of misdeeds and misadventures while enjoying a childhood favourite for the last supper of one.

ILFRACOMBE INKLINGS

JOANNE ROBERTSON

The last time we were all together was Christmas, which made this feel like the proverbial Christmas in July.

Those of you who have family members in boarding school, university, or working away from home will know the feeling of a great, gaping hole left in their lives.

It's one of the sad facts of living out here, that kids go away to school and often for work.

The tyranny of distance is all too real.

One day, your kids are running in the yard, feeding paddy lambs, swimming in the dam or the hundred and one other things that fill their days on the property, and the next; they are growing up and going out in the world, coming home for visits that feel far too short.

With mobile phones and the internet, we can connect far more easily with family these days than I could when I first arrived here from Canada.

Then it was monthly phone calls and snail mail.

Still, there's nothing like being together in person.

It reminds me of those carefree days when our kids were small and always with us.

But alas, like all good things, one visit is coming to an end.

At least I'll have the joy of the other for a while yet.

Then it will be back to phone calls and social media messages, until the next visit.

Q&Awith Kym Webb*How did you end up in Longreach?

I applied for the Head Of Curriculum position at the high school in 2014 and was fortunate enough to gain this position.

What is the best advice you've ever received?

The best advice I've received is "the universe loves a stubborn heart"

What is something you do in your spare time?

I've had to make some big changes to my lifestyle over the past year because I work six days in my small business. So now, in my spare time, I like spending time at home and hanging out with my dogs.

What is your favourite place in the Central West?

My favourite place is Longreach. I love our town. There's always something going on—either in town or surrounding districts, which makes it a drawcard for family and friends to visit.

I am in awe and give gratitude to the entrepreneurs in our local community who work hard to create and encourage diverse cultural and social experiences throughout the year.

What would you consider your greatest achievement?

Gosh! My greatest achievement !!!!!?

At the risk of sounding cliched, I think my greatest achievement is my relationship with my daughter. As a single parent, I worried how our lives were tracking at times and the negative impact it might have on her.

Now, I stand back and I'm proud of the: the kind, funny, independent, resilient and intelligent woman she has become.

She is my greatest achievement.

West’s kids ‘slam’ it out

By Michael R Williams

Six students were given the opportunity to perform slam poetry before an audience at the inaugural Storyfest Out West, with one student brave enough to perform his own work.

Mentor and popular performance poet Joel McKerrow said the event had been brilliant.

“To have kids come from 100s of kilometres away to have a chance to hang out with poets and authors like myself, I think it’s a needed opportunity,” he said.

“I’m always championing poetry that speaks to the people it is performed with; so when we have kids here, my approach is to think ‘how are the kids going to experience this poetry’.

“So I’m always looking for poetry that is both funny, but also has some deep meaning to it.

“Things that will inspire them.”

Mr McKerrow said the local kids had been stunningly beautiful.

New book to hit shelves: Launch held at Storyfest

By Michael R Williams

As a part of Storyfest, author Jacqueline Harvey released her new book, “Willa and Woof”.

The story depicts a young girl and her three best friends, a young boy, an elderly man, and her dog.

Ms Harvey said the story was inspired by trips she had with her grandmother who worked at an aged care facility.

“I’ve always loved chatting to older people and listening to their stories,” she said.

“I think it’s nice for kids to have a story with intergenerational relationships.”

Ms Harvey said the event was a great opportunity to launch the book.

“To come out to Longreach, I’ve never been this far into central Queensland before, and I thought, it’s something the local kids probably experienced either - a book launch,” she said.

“So we just thought it would be a unique opportunity.”

Ms Harvey said it was fantastic to see the responses from local students.

“They’re so excited to see all of the authors and illustrators and poets and storytellers,” she said.

“Their eyes have just lit up.

“And it’s for me to - hearing the stories from everyone in Longreach and their stories too.”

Adoring fans, Grace Kronk, Lucy Hawkins, Ben Sherrington, author Jacqueline Harvey, Georgie Holcombe and Amelia Seccombe.

Storyfest a hit with kids

By Michael R Williams

The inaugural Storyfest Out West was met with a roaring success as students and curious writers came in from all over the central west to celebrate the written word.

Somerset Storyfest delivers children's literacy programs, and its Gold Coast event is Australia's largest youth writers festival.

But, after a visit from the Longreach School of Distance Education, and when the teachers saw how much it meant to the student, the idea to bring Storyfest to Longreach was hatched.

CEO Andrea Lewis said after the community consultations and meetings with the heads of all the central west schools, she decided to give the two-day festival a go.

"I was extremely selective about which authors I wanted to bring out," she said.

"I wanted to be sure that I knew the kids would fall in love with them.

"This group of authors that we brought, many of them are the cream of the crop."

Ms Lewis said it was vital for her team to secure local support.

"We need to be sure that what we're offering that you guys actually want it," she said.

"We can come out here and try to do something that, actually, isn't right for your community, then we'd be wasting our time."

But Ms Lewis said the event had exceeded expectations.

"We've exceeded all of the markers on our set budgets," she said.

"The children have absolutely embraced it—we've already had emails from parents and teachers to say how wonderful the children have reacted.

"We've had kids in tears because they've been quite overwhelmed—I think the community will see the difference in their kids."

The interest now is to see whether local students have changed reading habits.

"Are they going into the libraries to get books more? That's the telltale sign as to whether it's been long-term successful," she said.

"We know it's been successful in that the children have been engaged and they are excited.

"But the sign it has worked in the long term will be whether the schools can gauge whether there are more kids coming to take more books out of the library."

Ms Lewis said she hopes in the event's second year, more members of the wider community will come to support the event.

"The third year will be made or break, where will decide whether it's make or break; or we decide the community is not behind it as much as needed," she said.

"I don't think that's going to happen, Longreach has been such a supportive community.

"I'm overwhelmed actually."

Ms Lewis would like to see more local writers come out next year, and confirmed local children's book author Louise Secombe will be in the line up next year.

These students from Muttaborra thought it was a great time.

Zara and Tully Blake, and James Tate made the nine-hour drive from Birdsville to witness Storyfest Out West.

Teenager Dom inspired to write a poem following event

By Dom Faggotter

"During Storyfest Out West, Secondary School Captain, Dom Faggotter, was inspired by Spoken Word Poet, Joel McKerrow to write his own poem.

"Dom wrote the poem titled, Teenagers Think on Thursday night of Storyfest Out West and performed it to a crowd of 100 the next day.

"Congratulations Dom on this wonderful achievement." - Longreach School of Distance Education Deputy Principal Rachelle Moore.

Teenagers Think...
You believe you're better than others,
Because of the size of your phone,
The price of your clothes.
You think yourself different from them,

Deep down we are the same.
We all have hopes, dreams, we all feel.
Teenagers think. Children walk kilometres to find water,
Men fall in battles all over the world, forests burn.
Do you think your differences matter to these?
Teenagers think. Does it really hurt to be nice?
To hold a door, or be silent?

If you won't listen to those above you,
Listen to those among you.
Will these traits define our generation?
I say no! Let's cast off this prejudice,
We will not be the me generation.
We will be the we generation,
Rewriting the world.
Change starts with you, with us
Teenagers think.

Winton Shire Mayor Gavin Baskett speaking at the 2022 Bush Councils Convention.

Mayors on convention

Longreach Regional Council Mayor Tony Rayner

1. What were some of the major talking points at the Bush Council's Convention?

Major talking points were discussions on increased financial assistance grants due to better than expected EOY budget.

This is welcome news to bush councils who have higher costs and less rate revenue than the big regional councils or those councils with revenue from mining leases.

Attraction and retention was a key discussion point and the solutions are many and varied, attracting our school leavers, international workforce through backpackers, incentives for grey nomads, the Pacific Island Labour strategy and lifestyle choices are all part of the solution.

The Foot and Mouth update from Biosecurity helped inform Bush Council attendees on the risk and measures that are in place to keep it out of Australia. Upcoming training and awareness day in Longreach on 31 August will help everyone gain a better understanding of all Exotic Disease risks.

2. What is something you will take away from the convention for the Longreach region?

For the Longreach Region, we need to keep supporting existing businesses to grow and encourage new industries to establish in Longreach.

3. How can councils work to build stronger synergies in the future?

Councils within RAPAD can keep focusing on collaborative partnerships and supporting each other where there is a mutual benefit.

The existing Tourism MOU between Longreach and Winton is a prime example.

4. You spoke on economic development opportunities, what are some of your key points?

The key economic opportunities are that the processing and manufacturing industries can operate very successfully in towns like Longreach.

Our kangaroo processing works and pre-cast concrete manufacturing are examples where Council can support and advocate for better outcomes.

Hosting regular investors is another example of what LRC is doing to attract further economic development.

There is a very clear opportunity for a new roadhouse in Longreach and Council to have the space and land to attract an investor.

Boulia Shire Council Mayor Rick Britton

1. What were some of the major talking points at the Bush Council's Convention?

Regional media and how councils have the Barcaldine Mayor Sean Dillon spoke on the recently finished Barcaldine Rec Park.

Blackall-Tambo Mayor Andrew Martin and Bruce Scott OAM, National Recovery and Resilience Agency at the convention.

opportunity tell good stories.

There are a lot of positive stories about the recent Bush Council Council.

The Wool Scour Blackall/Tambo, the Water and farming opportunity in the North, Digital communication, and Outback Way are all local council driven but all require State and Federal government to invest or encourage investment opportunities.

2. What is something you will take away from the convention for the Boulia Shire?

All councils have issues and groups of councils such as the Bush Councils can work together to find solutions.

3. How can councils work to build stronger synergies in the future?

One council has found a solution it needs to be shared so the council stop inventing the wheel.

4. You spoke on the Outback Way and its benefits, what are some of your key points?

The Outback Way will bring opportunities to all Bush Councils and that then flows right along the eastern seaboard of Queensland from Cairns in the north and Brisbane in the Southeast.

Barcaldine Regional Council Mayor Sean Dillon

1. What were some of the major talking points at the Bush Council's Convention?

Providing for sustained economic development opportunities was a prevalent theme at the conference.

Various examples of how other local governments have built the case for and provided opportunities were provided and discussed, presenting a unique showcase experience.

An in-depth briefing from Biosecurity Qld on the threats posed by exotic disease incursion helped to reassure those present of the real risk and to help steady the community's fears.

2. What is something you will take away from the convention for the Winton Shire?

For the Barcaldine Regional Council, it was an important opportunity to not only present but soak up the knowledge of other local governments.

The remote access technology presented by the Goondiwindi Regional Council was an interesting snapshot of a council using technology and innovation for a current and real need.

3. How can councils work to build stronger synergies in the future?

Continuing the dialogue that commences at events like this will lead to relationships and concept understanding that will both capacity build and strengthen the ties councils develop.

Councils are not competitors, but rather enablers in different regions, and this theme was very prevalent throughout all presentations.

4. You spoke on the Barcaldine Rec Park and the benefits it has had on the community, what are some of your key points?

Providing local recreational and physical activity, a tourism attraction outside of traditional tourist season times, and a new economic development opportunity with the attached diner, the Recreation Park is a fundamental game changer in retaining locals, attracting new people to the region and enhancing business development opportunities over a protracted period of time.

Bryan Brown fights crime in the Outback
in new Aussie series
Darby and Joan

All set for adventure

*Do you have an event coming up?
We want to know!*

Send the details to editorial@leadertoday.com.au and we'll publish it in our weekly Events Calendar.

Soul searching: Drawn together by a series of mysteries, Joan (Greta Scacchi) and Darby (Bryan Brown) find more than they bargained for.

In Darby and Joan, retired detective Jack Darby is on the run from his past when he collides with Joan, a recently widowed nurse on a mission for answers. Series star Bryan Brown talks retirement, his incredible career and the grey nomad experience with Siobhan Duck RETIREMENT simply isn't an option for Bryan Brown. The laidback star, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday and has spent almost 50 years on stage and screen, loves his job far too much to even contemplate slowing down.

"I don't know what retirement is," he says with a trademark wry smile.

"What, you stop doing things you like doing? What's the point of that?"

"The other thing is, I'm not one of those blokes that has a shed in the backyard.

"I really admire those blokes that have a shed in the backyard where they work in some job all week and, on the weekend, they go in and they invent or they make or they fix up their house and they're as happy as Larry. They can't wait to retire because they've got their shed and so they're never going to be bored.

"Well, I don't have a shed."

With that in mind, the closest Brown is likely to come to retirement is his latest project, Darby and Joan.

In it, he plays a laconic retired police detective who finds himself teaming up with a tightly wound English woman named Joan (Greta Scacchi) after a crash on an outback

Bryan Brown: "I don't know what retirement is. What, you stop doing things you like doing? What's the point of that?"

road. He's trying to escape his past and she is on a mission to discover the truth about hers. Together this odd couple travel across Australia in Joan's caravan, solving a slew of mysteries along the way.

For Brown – a crime buff who has written his own collection of crime stories titled Sweet Jimmy – Darby and Joan was an instantly attractive project and he even had input into some of the plot points.

It was also Brown who suggested Scacchi for the role of Joan, having worked with her on the 2019 movie Palm Beach, directed by his wife Rachel Ward.

"We were like 17 weeks in Queensland because COVID was on and we couldn't come across the border," he says of Darby and Joan.

"And people can get sick of you, or you get sick of them when you're crammed together for 17 weeks. It's very easy with Greta.

"It's very easy for me to go to work and know that I'm going to have a good day."

After being pigeonholed into sexy femme fatale roles by Hollywood early on in her career, Brown says Scacchi is now relishing her move into character roles.

"Greta is a really good actress," he says.

"It probably seems like a silly thing to say but she really is a good actress and she just is truthful all the time.

"And she's real. She doesn't give a stuff what she looks like. She had all that when she was 30 (in films such as White Mischief and Presumed Innocent). Now it's who she is, who's her character. Let's get on with it. I love that about her."

Much like Midsomer Murders and Vera, each episode of Darby and Joan involves a self-contained mystery and introduces a new cast of quirky characters played by the likes of Heather Mitchell, Kerry Armstrong, Steve Bisley and Peter O'Brien.

What sets this series apart from the British crime dramas, however, is it all takes place against the stunning backdrop of the Australian bush and features two caravanning retirees as the sleuths rather than brow-beaten cops.

"The grey nomads out there, man they just get around," he says.

"I went to Broome about 15 or 20 years ago with my wife and kids and my wife's brother and his kids. And we went out to Fitzroy Crossing and a whole lot of places.

"But it was in Broome that we went on a ride on the camels along the main beach. And we look back and there is caravan after caravan after caravan parked there. And there's all these all these boomers in the raw! With red arses. They just didn't give a f--- anymore.

"We've been told all our lives that we had to be nice and be good to our kids and all that stuff. Now we don't care. And if we want to burn our arses, that's our business.

"I remember smiling at that and thinking: 'What a lovely way to finally tell people to leave me alone.'"

Though he's filled with bemused admiration for the sunburned and brazen travellers he spotted on the Broome shorelines, Brown says he's in no rush to join them any time soon.

That's because he never has to plan his own adventure when his job as an actor sorts that out for him.

"I've travelled a lot more in my life and to places that you're not supposed to go – like the top of a mountain in Rwanda when I filmed Gorillas in the Mist [in 1988 with Sigourney Weaver]," he exclaims.

"I mean that shouldn't happen to a kid from the western suburbs of Sydney! And I turned 40 there. That's not how life's supposed to work at all.

"And I've had private visit to the White House. I've had bloody tea with a Kenyan in his mud hut and fallen into the Pearl River in China."

Even his first job involved travelling (on one of his first-ever plane trips) from his home in Sydney to Adelaide. By comparison to his later adventures, it wasn't as exotic or as far afield, but Brown still recalls his delight that "someone was paying me to go there to play cowboys and Indians and putting me on a plane."

And almost 50 years later, he's lost none of that excitement and is always looking for the next challenge. Even though Darby and Joan took him away from his family and his home for the longest continuous stretch of his career, he's open to doing another season, if people wanted it, laughing that it's Scacchi who has the tougher role.

"Her character talks a lot," he says.

"Mine is a man of few words and so I would say to [the director], 'I don't need to say that, or that either,' and Greta would say 'I'll have them [the lines]."

"She must have a bloody good memory."

TENET

9Gem, 7.30pm, M (2020)

Director Christopher Nolan (Interstellar, Inception) returns with yet another visually stunning, time-bending sci-fi film. CIA agent "Protagonist" (John David Washington) is recruited to recover a missing artefact in an extraction at the Kyiv Opera House. Having proven his loyalty, the Protagonist is adopted into a top-secret mission and cast into a chaotic battle against foes that move both backwards and forwards through time and use guns that unshoot bullets – providing a unique take on the genre. An incredible, although at-times confounding, achievement in filmmaking. Tenet's cast is rounded out by Robert Pattinson, Elizabeth Debicki, Kenneth Branagh, Clémence Poésy and Michael Caine. ★★★★★

TOP END WEDDING

9Gem, Friday, 8.30pm, M (2019)

Top End Wedding is an appealing Aussie romantic-comedy starring Miranda Tapsell (pictured) and British actor Gwilym Lee. In order to pull off her dream wedding, Lauren (Tapsell) and her fiancé Ned (Lee) have just 10 days to reunite her parents by finding her mother Daffy (Ursula Yovich), who is missing somewhere in the remote far north of Australia. Directed by Wayne Blair (The Sapphires), the film is a genuine, funny and feel-good addition to the Australian cinematic landscape. ★★★★★

SCHOOL OF ROCK

9Go!, Saturday, 7.30pm, PG (2003)

Jack Black's (pictured) inspired and energetic performance, a razor-sharp script from Mike White and the astute direction of Richard Linklater (Before Sunrise, A Scanner Darkly) ensures this is a winner. As a rock-obsessed slacker, Black drums up plenty of laughs as he assumes the identity of his teacher roommate and shapes a class of private school kids into rock gods. Funny without being gross, sweet without resorting to sentimentality, this will strike a chord with the whole family. ★★★★★

SUFFRAGETTE

ABC TV, Sunday, 9.30pm, M (2015)

Carey Mulligan (pictured) gives a soulful performance as Maud, a laundry worker, in this true story of the feminist movement in early 20th-century Britain in which women fought for the right to vote. Maud's transformation from a quiet, obedient worker to a woman willing to put her life on the line for the movement is inspiring, but one of the film's downfalls is its reluctance to go beyond the expected. While not as progressive as those who inspired it, Suffragette is a worthwhile watch. ★★★★★

21 BRIDGES

10 Shake, Monday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2019)

The last theatrical release starring Chadwick Boseman (pictured) before the actor's untimely death in 2020 didn't do too well at the box office, a result that's at odds with his easy performance as the leading man: second-generation NYPD detective Andre Davis. Just a child when his father was killed in the line of duty, Davis has developed a special interest in chasing cop killers. When eight officers are gunned down in one night, he shuts down the island of Manhattan to hunt those responsible. ★★★★★

DEEPWATER HORIZON

9Go!, Tuesday, 7.30pm, M (2016)

Focusing on the real-life oil rig blowout in the Gulf of Mexico rather than the huge oil spill that followed, this disaster drama is fast-paced, tightly scripted and features some great special effects. Mark Wahlberg (pictured) plays a family man who's setting off for a FIFO stint on the rig, which as we know is destined to blow in a matter of hours. Gripping stuff from director Peter Berg (Lone Survivor), who is rapidly becoming a ripped-from-the-headlines specialist. ★★★★★

The Guide

PICK OF THE WEEK

All together now: Alan Brough, Myf Warhurst and Adam Hills return for a new season of Spicks and Specks.

SPICKS AND SPECKS
ABC TV, Sunday, 7.40pm

For a show that packed up shop all the way back in 2011, Spicks and Specks has somehow managed to keep the “band” – Adam Hills, Myf Warhurst and Alan Brough – together over the years, with specials and reunions galore. Now, it triumphantly returns with its 10th season. As one of the most-watched shows on the ABC, Hills says they’re back to support the music industry after the perils of the pandemic to give it “a leg up by showcasing some of the best new musicians Australia has to offer”. In tonight’s homecoming, singer Casey Donovan, comedians Rhys Nicholson and Bec Charlwood and Polish Club’s Novak play the musical quiz.

REBUILDING NOTRE-DAME WITH LUCY WORSLEY
SBS, Friday, 8.30pm

Most historians don’t live a glamorous life, with many spending their days sitting in a quiet room writing books, or lecturing apathetic uni students. But British historian Lucy Worsley (pictured) has forged her own path as an illustrious TV presenter, fronting more than 30 specials. This latest adventure follows Worsley as she engages with the scientists, historians and craftspeople working to restore Paris’ most famous 850-year-old Gothic cathedral after the catastrophic 2019 fire.

GRANTCHESTER
ABC TV, Saturday, 7.30pm

On paper, Grantchester is a British detective drama about the unlikely crime-solving partnership between a priest and a cop. But once you fall into the clutches of this entertaining British confection, you’ll stay for its sublime aesthetics. Even the most stout atheist is forgiven for finding god when faced with the impossibly good-looking, motorcycle-riding priest Will Davenport (Tom Brittney, pictured). This week, the case involves a vagrant found dead, with a mysterious book the only clue.

THE BLOCK
Nine, Monday, 7.30pm

Green is the new black as season 18 kicks off in the Victorian countryside. We are only just getting to know the five new couples who will renovate huge, eco-friendly houses on 10-acre blocks, but by the end of the mammoth exercise viewers will have seen just about everything, with some extra mud for good measure. Host Scott Cam (pictured) is doing something different this round by renovating a house on-site himself too. How’s that for moral support?

AGAINST ALL ODDS

THIRTEEN LIVES
Streaming, from Friday,
Prime Video

For 17 days in 2018, the world held its breath as its most skilled divers came together with Thai forces in a tremendous global effort to save the lives of a young soccer team trapped in the Tham Luang cave. This striking film from Academy Award-winning director Ron Howard (Apollo 13) recounts the incredible true story of their survival, against all odds.

Filmed in Queensland last year, Howard's retelling aims to convey just how thin the margin between success and failure was in the mission to save the Wild Boars and their coach (Teeradon Supapunpinyo).

Facing high water levels, low visibility and a diminishing supply of oxygen, a dangerous and unethical solution becomes their only option.

Joel Edgerton (above) plays Richard "Harry" Harris, the Australian anaesthetist who sedates the boys and brings them out alive. Thirteen Lives also focuses closely on John Volanthen (Colin Farrell) and Rick Stanton (Viggo Mortensen), the two British cave divers who first find the team alive.

Naturalistic performances and precise filmmaking from Howard make this incredible story a must-watch. - Lauren Mitchell

Gardening

Petunias with a passion

August is always the start to the best time of the year.

As our gardens come out of hibernation with new flushes of foliage or budding in preparation for Spring blooms.

Then there are the trailblazers of the Winter garden like the Petunia, one of my favourite flowering plants.

During Winter when most plants are shivering in the cold, like us gardeners, the Petunias are brightening the coldest days.

Then in the warm months of the year, the Petunia flower always looks to be one of the prettiest of all annual plants.

The Petunia has come a long way from when it was just known as the Sun Weed.

With many years of skill, plant breeders have developed thousands of sizes and shapes in the flowering annual Petunias.

Flowers' colour, fragrance, and double or single nature are all part of the new hybrids available to gardeners these days.

Optimum weather conditions at the moment mean this could be the best time to brighten up your garden with the kaleidoscope of colours available.

When planting Petunias, always try to prepare your flower bed sunny and well-lit, with a well-drained, sandy loam that has a reasonable quantity of vegetable matter mixed in with it.

Use a complete garden fertiliser, one that has a small quantity of nitrogen and is rich in phosphorous, mixed in with your garden soil; then I would use a soluble liquid fertiliser every two to three weeks to maintain flowering.

I would suggest to not fertilise any more regularly than this as all you could get is leafy plants and no flowers.

Remember, after planting, to water well, and then use moderate watering regularly.

If possible, try to mulch around the Petunias as this will always reduce your usage of water.

VARIETIES TO LOOK FOR

When you go into a nursery or hardware store looking for Petunias for the garden you will find dozens of varieties or even mixed varieties.

It can be very confusing so below are some of the toughest, almost impossible to kill Petunia varieties for Central Queensland.

Petunia Bobby Dazzler is an old favourite with many gardeners and was the Flower of the Year in 1970.

This Petunia has a long flowering season with masses of medium-sized flowers in a wide range of bright colours.

Petunia Cameo would be one of the best Petunias for pots and hanging baskets, as well as a bushy plant for the garden.

It produces exceptionally large, fully double flowers, resembling a geranium flower that is available in a mixture of colours.

Petunia Petticoat is a popular annual with excellent garden performance that was Flower of the Year 1982.

The Petticoat Petunias have eye-catching bold colours of red or purple throats with a white edge or skirt.

Petunia Mirage makes an impressive display in mass plantings and gardens all year round, with beautiful blooms of pink, purple, red, salmon, watermelon, white and yellow.

Petunia Mirage is suitable for a wide range of conditions from coastal gardens to western frost-free gardens.

Petunia Potunia is a unique breed of petunia that has a large rounded habit growing up to 1m across.

Petunia Potunia's have distinctive, vivid flower colours like blue, papaya, pink, purple, strawberry, red, white and yellow.

Potunia petunia will tolerate wide climate conditions from the cold and heat of the west to the humidity of the coast.

Petunia Songbird is a collection of compact, bushy plants with large, lightly ruffled flowers.

Unlike other large flowering Petunias, they have an excellent weather tolerance and recover quickly after heavy rain.

Songbird will fill your garden with masses of blooms, in a large variety of colours, such as deep blue, crimson, white, pink, rainbow, rose, burgundy, yellow, orange, and blue ice.

In a pot or in the garden this Petunia would make a unique and eye-catching display.

Getting a measure of farming values

By Meat & Livestock Australia

The next phase of a significant research partnership involving hundreds of on-farm red meat producer observation sites will begin to roll out across Australia.

Meat & Livestock Australia will work alongside Farming for the Future to conduct the multi-year study, which aims to quantify the contribution of different types of natural capital to the profitability of farm businesses.

Founded in 2021, Farming for the Future is a research and change program which aims to provide the evidence and practical support that producers need to incorporate natural capital as part of the foundation of their farming businesses and to activate the supply chain to encourage and reward that shift.

Jason Strong, Managing Director at MLA said that agriculture is integral to Australia's role and identity on the world stage, and as the red meat industry moves toward a carbon-neutral future by 2030 (CN30), producers need a clear view of the costs and benefits of investing in their natural capital to support their farm management decisions.

"MLA is proud to be a partner of Farming for the Future, ensuring that the interests of the red meat sector are represented and considered as part of this once-in-a-generation, world-leading research project," he said.

"Producers are already doing so much when it comes to managing their property's natural capital.

Natural capital, in this instance, refers to all of a farm's biological and ecological assets.

"It includes native vegetation, productive pasturelands and croplands, as well as water resources, agroforestry, livestock and native animals.

"Currently, only a small portion of a property's natural capital, like crops or livestock, is included in a standard set of financial accounts.

"Most ecological assets are invisible to farm accounting, despite producers understanding their potential economic benefit.

"Farming for the Future is looking to examine how to quantify natural capital so it can become a major factor of production and part of mainstream farm management.

"This project can play an important role in helping achieve Australia's 2030 target of $100 billion of farm gate output, as well as a driver towards a nature-based method to carbon neutrality by 2030."

Dr Sue Ogilvy, Farming for the Future Program Director, said the partnership with MLA was critical to the project achieving its objectives.

"A core principle of Farming for the Future is to ensure that all project outcomes deliver practical benefits to Australian producers," she said.

"Having MLA on board will help us to ensure that the ground-breaking research being undertaken, and the tools and resources that are built for producers and their advisors off the back of that research, meet the unique needs of Australian red meat producers."

Initiated and seeded by the Macdoch Foundation in 2021, Farming for The Future is a public interest initiative developed and delivered in partnership with philanthropists, industry, government and non-profits.

Landholders reap benefits of fence fund

By Wild Dog Action Plan

Small stock producers in Queensland are about to reap the value-added benefits from the National Wild Dog Action Plan.

The Queensland sheep and goat industries will get another boost with $4 million in grants over two years to leverage the benefits of state government investment in cluster fencing.

The Rural Agricultural Development grants of up to $200,000 per business will help sheep and goat enterprises develop new markets.

Since 2015, more than 9000km of fencing has been approved and 400 sheep-producing properties protected.

National Wild Dog Management Coordinator Greg Mifsud welcomed the spin-off benefits from decades of proactive and collaborative nil tenure wild dog management in Queensland.

"The community doesn't realise how much economic benefit the National Wild Dog Action Plan leverages with an independent review revealing the return on investment was from $6.10-$16.50:1 from dollars reinvested in wild dog control as a result of having a national strategic plan," he said.

"Exclusion fencing right around Australia has occurred as a result of the Plan and indirectly it is supporting these groups, committees and state programs who are reaping the benefits."

A wool-growing enterprise to benefit from the Plan has been Chandler Pastoral Holdings, Barcaldine, with 140km of exclusion fencing enabling the family to return to sheep after being decimated by wild dogs.

"It is certainly good to be back in the industry," Ben Chandler said.

"We shore 20,000 sheep in the early 2000s and then wild dogs started getting on top of their year in-year out from then on, eating 2000 ewes a year and lambings were down to 2 per cent.

"While the sheep, wool and cattle industries are so lucrative, you are doing everything in your power to make sure every lamb and calf hits the ground."

The family sold all their sheep in 2010, transitioning into cattle whilst maintaining the infrastructure of three shearing sheds in the hope of going back into small stock one day.

"It wasn't viable for us to continue to produce sheep under those losses and mortality rate, and we transitioned into cattle to supplement the loss of income in sheep and wool short-term," Mr Chandler said.

"Thankfully the RAPAD (Remote Area

Ben Chandler says exclusion fencing is one of the most effective tools but complements all the other traditional methods of dog control. Picture: BEN CHANDLER

Planning and Development Board) subsidies were available for exclusion fencing making it more appealing to be proactive about fencing.

"We still factored in the predation influence on calves even now with 50 per cent of one of the properties unfenced."

The family completed 60km of exclusion fencing in 2015 as part of a 106km Clover Hills Cluster Group with three neighbouring properties.

"That was to get the outside of the wheel established and something to build off going forward," Mr Chandler said.

"Since then we have proactively added the spokes to the wheel, creating internal manageable cells we can control more readily."

With great excitement, the family reintroduced the first sheep (1600 Merino ewes) back into the enterprise in 2018 to test the new model, working with two professional wild dog trappers operating across the aggregation, along with strategic ground baiting.

"One of the major drivers of the fencing was the fantastic infrastructure of three shearing sheds not getting used across three properties," Mr Chandler said.

"It's naive for anyone to think the fencing is the be-all and end-all, you've got to continue with your management programs of baiting, trapping and shooting.

"It's one of the most effective tools but complements all the other traditional methods of dog control."

The Clover Hills Cluster Group expanded from five properties to include the Salt Creek Cluster, protecting over 38,400ha.

Ben said the landholder's aims of pasture protection, reduced land degradation with regard to pest animal influence and security of livestock were achieved.

"We have the ability to control and manage animal husbandry a lot more readily with the introduction of pest-proof cells.

"[Sheep] joinings are more credible and it instils a proactiveness from a management point of view to monitor the fence.

"In addition, all of the neighbouring properties have continued to fence their own places outside these clusters, increasing the security and effectiveness, and further improving the manageability of vertebrate pests and related pressures in the area."

The family now run 5500 Merino sheep and 2000 Santa Gertrudis females.

"We are about to mark over 100 per cent of lambs for our second year in a row," Mr Chandler said.

"There is such a high demand for shearing teams—I genuinely foresee a population increase and employment opportunities within the industry right across the supply chain from the jackaroos and cooks to agents and marketing services.

"The neighbouring properties have gone into goats, supplementing the original forecast of 11,000 more sheep coming back into the area."

Careers in wool

For those looking to get more involved in the wool industry, Australian Wool Innovation is currently looking for applications for their 2023 Graduate Training Program.

AWI Chief Executive Officer John Roberts said the 18-month program is seeking applicants graduates from a broad cross-section of disciplines with a background in or connection with the Australian Wool Industry.

"2023 will bring the AWI Graduate Training Program's fifth intake of graduates," he said.

"Having worked closely with the past and current graduates, I've seen first-hand the value of having such an all-encompassing program within the industry, covering the full supply chain, and the benefits it provides the successful graduates in enhancing their career within wool.

"We continue to focus on attracting and retaining the top talent, and the program is just one way we have in creating a talent pipeline and futureproofing human resources in the industry".

The program starts each year in March and is based primarily at the AWI office in Sydney, where the graduates gain exposure to many areas of the AWI business including On-Farm Research, Processing Innovation and Education Extension, Consultation and Engagement, Global Marketing, Digital, Measurement and Evaluation, and Business Services.

Graduates are also given the opportunity to gain global exposure to the wool supply chain through international rotations in London and China.

The program also provides the graduates with professional training and development opportunities, to further enhance their career within the industry.

You can apply by clicking on the apply now link below. Applications will close August 31st 2022.

Bullish prices at sale

According to Herefords Australia, the 77th annual Glen Innes Hereford Bull Sale was well received $26,000 and an average of $8915.

A total of 47 bulls sold from the 57 offered for an 82 per cent clearance, average of $8915 and gross of $419,000.

There was a 100 per cent clearance of nine PTIC females to a top of $7000, average of $4750 and gross of $42,750.

The top price bull at $26,000 was the grand champion Willgoose Detour, offered by Phil and Lyle Yantsch, Willgoose Herefords, Toowoomba, Qld.

Don't let panic rule good sense

While the presence of both Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) and Lumpy Skin Disease (LSD) in Indonesia have heightened concern in the Australian livestock industry, Managing Director for MLA, Jason Strong, says it's important to consider perspective and a long-term view, when examining market drivers influencing the cattle market.

"Firstly, it is important to note that Australia does not have either disease on its shores," Mr Strong said.

"However, clearly there is a heightened concern about the impact a potential incursion may have on our industry and this speculative angst is making its way to the saleyards.

"If we put this aside, there are a number of other sophisticated and tangible market forces putting downward pressure on market prices. These can be broken down into two key categories: on-farm and in the processing sector."

On-farm drivers include supply, mixed quality of livestock presented to the market and the fact that the market is performing in a typical winter fashion.

With a comparatively wet and colder winter, the mixed quality of cattle supplied into the system is also impacting the price.

Meanwhile, in the processing sector, softer processor grid prices are affecting livestock markets as processors face multiple challenges including, continued absenteeism rates due to Covid-19 and influenza, as well as reduced processor capacity due to labour shortages.

"As processors work through these challenges, there is reduced demand between buyers at the saleyards," Mr Strong said.

"It is also worth noting that the price reduction is off an all-time price high of 1,191c/kg cwt earlier this year, and although prices have fallen, we are still sitting 22 per cent higher than the five-year average," Mr Strong said.

Called off

BOWLS BY BONES

TONY EMSLIE

Well after some real anticipation of a fantastic ladies' triples final, the game had to be called off because of illness.

That game will be rescheduled when everyone is fit and well.

The triples game that did go ahead was the men's game which saw a strong combination of Shawn Ryan, George Kent, and Justin Hunt being challenged by Russell Schofield, Bluey Beard, and Russell Brooke.

Shawn's team started really well skipping out to a 6-1 lead and then picked up six shots on the sixth end.

Over the next four ends, they scored seven shots to two, to lead 19-3 with the game in the bag.

Russell's team made a mini comeback scoring 10 shots on the next four ends to get within six shots.

Unfortunately for them, Shawn's boys got back on track and had the better of the last four ends taking the win 26-16.

Shawn George and Justin now go to the next round with that semi-final on the board for this Sunday.

We had a men's B Grade Single game where we saw wily veteran Bob Grant taking on Barcaldine's Trent Shillington.

The club appreciates Trent for travelling over to play in our competition.

The story of this game was a fairly even start before Trent got out to a score of 11-7 after 10 ends.

As we see quite often, and it happens to all bowlers, Bob got stuck on seven or 10 shots for a total of eight ends when Trent played some great bowls to stretch his lead out to 23-10.

Bob just couldn't get control of the game because of Trent's good draw bowls. The scoring stayed pretty even for the rest of the game until Trent got over the line by 31-17, and he now progresses on to the quarter-final.

We had another good turnout of social bowlers and some bowlers whom we were calling visitors are practically locals now which is great to see!

On 20 and 21 August, the club is holding its annual David Crust Memorial weekend. Saturday is a barefoot bowls day starting at 1.30 (names in by 1pm).

Teams of four can nominate or for those that do not have a team we will put you into a team. Sunday 21 is the David Crust Memorial Shield three bowls triples event, with the winner's name going onto the shield - proceeds to RFDS.

Simple tips to make life easier for our sports volunteers

Everyone says they are busy these days.

It is the standard answer to "How are you?", "Yeah flat out!".

It is not often someone says, "Yeah, pretty cruisy, on top of life, need a hand with something?".

And more so for parents, and those with multiples.

So I temper the advice to follow with, I know.

There are reasons, but I ask we give it our best crack.

My subject is the kids at sports.

Children in Longreach have so many opportunities, and I think ones in surrounding towns would have more if it was easier for people to deliver, so here are some simple tips.

The people offering the opportunity are generally volunteers, so excuse them if they make a mistake, read the information provided to you carefully, and think about the question before you ask it.

Respond in a timely manner, calling the contact number (normally the person coaching) at 4:10pm for a 4:15 start isn't good, they are probably busy.

Fill your forms out the best you can and pay by the allotted date.

This information is generally for insurance reasons and required by State bodies.

Try and have your child to training/the game by the allotted time, I know it is not always possible, but when a coach has four kids at 4:14 and 10 at 4:16 it changes what activities they can do.

Notify the coach if you aren't attending.

Send your child with a hat, water bottle, and appropriate clothing/shoes.

Yes, kids lose things during a school day, but not four weeks in a row.

Drill into your children that the coach/manager/volunteer is someone they should respect, just like they would their teacher.

Listening to instructions, saying thank you, and showing some effort is really appreciated.

Inform the club of any issues your child might have: doesn't like loud noises, injuries, do not give them red frogs, etc.

Again if we know, we can plan for these things.

Pick your child up on time, ask them about the session, provide feedback to the club good or bad, and at the end make sure they thank everyone involved.

If you have trouble with payment, transport, clothing or equipment, talk to your club.

It is ok if they know they can generally help.

Again, this is not aimed at the kids that are too young or unable to do these things, just some tips that will help keep more volunteers involved in the sport and more opportunities for our kids out West.

From the coach's box: Tigers' loss

1. It was an unfortunate loss, how proud are you of the Tigers' efforts?
Our effort areas were ok, unfortunately, our execution was poor. We didn't create enough chances, and the chance we did create were unable to finish off.

2. What do you think worked/ didn't work this weekend?
We didn't play to our structure and what has worked for us throughout the season. Our defence was also poor in certain periods of the game. Our goal line defence was great, but efforts in the middle of the field need improvement.

3. Who were some of the stand-out players? Most improved?
We had a couple of guys that had solid games, Adam Hughes was good at the back.
Broden Beazley worked hard in the middle.
Tom Boyle had his best game in Longreach Ilfracombe Tigers colours.

4. What worked for your opponents/ what should other teams look out for?
Blackall played extremely well, they had a number of players we hadn't come up against this year and was a different side to the one we had played a fortnight ago. Be a tough task to take that side on over in Blackall.

5. Do you think the loss has instilled a stronger sense of desire to win this year?
I certainly hope so, we have to do it the hard way now; we know we have the side to get the job done. Just the matter of doing it now.
Barcaldine will be no easy task, a team on the up full of confidence.

6. What will the team be working on going forward into the finals?
Holding the ball, we won't win games of the ball handing away possession and completing at 50 per cent in our first 40min. It comes back to bite us at the back end of games.
Response provided by Longreach/ I

Gavin Groves giving a talk at the end of the game.

Both teams shook hands at the end of the game.

From the coach's box: Devils

1. How proud are you of your team's efforts this year in making the finals?
Though we didn't quite manage to finish the year off the way we would have liked, I'm still extremely proud of my team's efforts throughout this year.
To go from finishing in last place last year to this year finishing in third place and hosting a home minor semi-final is no small feat.

2. What do you think worked/ didn't work this weekend?
Our forward pack put in a big performance.
When we played fast direct footy straight up the middle of the field, we manage to get a roll on and get Barcaldine on the back foot, but unfortunately, with fatigue and some lazy attempts at passes at crucial times we lost our direction.

3. Who were some of the stand-out players? Most improved?
Some of our best players were our lock Jared Megaw with his work rate and hard running, our halfback/Hooker Robert Mann with his direction around the field, he was always a danger when he looked to run the ball, and our Prop, the old warhorse Bobby McLeod, as always he was more than a handful to pull down.

4. What worked for your opponents/ what should other teams look out for?
Barcaldine has a handy mix of experienced and young players with both size and the forward pack and plenty of speed to burn out wide.
Response provided by Winton Diamantina Devils Captain/ Coach Justin Smith.

From the coach's box: Magpies stick to their game plan

1. You pulled off a pretty convincing win over your rivals, what do you think worked for your team?
We were confident if we played well, we were a good chance, but we stuck to our game plan and it worked. We knew it would be tough.

2. How proud are you of the team seeing as it was the opposite story just a week before?
Very impressed with our team's efforts, even though we lost we were happy with the team's performance. We were short of depth and got a couple of rough calls, but we weren't outplayed.

3. Who were some of your stand-out players?
We played to a plan and all players did their job, but Chris Doyle at half was good, Sam Curran proved difficult to hand all night, but defence wise, we were strong.

4. What worked for your opponents? What do you have to watch out for?
They have attack all across the field. Trent Hoad is still dangerous.
Adam Hughes as well offers challenges, but our defence needs to be on watch.

5. Do you think this win has instilled a stronger confidence in the team?
We are very happy to host the big dance, but the job is only half done.
Both the Tigers and Sandgoannas off different game styles.
It will be tough. No grand final was ever easy.

6. What will the team be working on going into the grand final?
We will stick to what works for us.
Good defence and be creative with the ball.
If you limit your mistakes, it takes the pressure off, but anything can happen in footy.
A bad bounce, a missed tackle, a dropped ball—it all counts.
We are cautious going to the game we lost last year in a very good game. We want to go one better this year. Win or lose it has been a challenging, but enjoyable season.
Good luck to all teams.

Both teams packing the scrum.

Blackall Magpies in defence.

The Blackall Magpies will host the Wellshot Hotel Central West Rugby League Grand Final.

The Capras lock horns with the Cutters this weekend.

Can Capras crack Cutters

By Liam Emerton

The Central Queensland Capras face their biggest rival this weekend when they travel to BB Print Stadium.

There our outright second-place Capras will face the Mackay Cutters for the second time this season.

The Capras welcomed the Cutters to Browne Park for rivalry round four where the Central Queenslanders got the job done by winning 26-18.

Now the Mackay squad sit back in 11th position, needing wins to make up the ground on the top eight while the CQ team aims for the minor premiership.

There's still plenty of time for the Capras to catch up on the current league leaders, the Burleigh Bears especially when this match against Mackay will be the Capras final away contest of the season.

For the next three rounds Central Queensland will return to Browne Park, and if all goes to plan, they will have a home final the weekend after the final round.

But a win against their closest rival Mackay all kicks off that run to the finals, and after defeating the Sunshine Coast Falcons twice in just three rounds, a slip against a lower side would be devastating.

This weekend also marks the return of our Hastings Deering Colts side.

It will be the first time the young Capras haven't played since 9 July when they were defeated 22-21 by the Sunshine Coast Falcons.

Since that time the Capras had a forfeit victory over the Western Clydesdales and a competition break.

That means it would have almost been a month since any of our under 21s have played in a Hastings Deering Colts competitive fixture.

However many of those players would have been keeping their match fitness up in the local league comp, meaning they will be ready to take on the Mackay Cutters this weekend.

The Capras are currently fifth in the under-21s league with a win propelling them up to fourth and potentially second depending on results.

Mackay sit way back in 10th position having only acquired 12 competition points this season.

It will still be a big test for the Capras and they will need to readjust after spending so much time away from the competition.

Barcaldine shooters club has big plans

By Michael R Williams

The Barcaldine Rifle Club are currently looking to expand their operation to include a new toilet and shower block.

Barcaldine Rifle Club Kim Williams said they are hoping to open up the grounds to have more room for campers.

"We're hoping to expand so more people can turn up and we can have larger events," he said.

"If we have a zone championship people come out from Rockhampton, Emerald, Dysart, Clermont, and they are all the same clubs we go shooting at.

"We want to have more social shoots with more people to come out.

"Day-night shoots, and BBQs and hot pots for people to come out and have a shoot."

The rifle club has also awarded Ian Brown a life-membership.

"We set up a plaque and surprised Mr Brown," Mr Williams said.

"We named the clubhouse after him as he is our oldest member of 60 years.

"That's one hell of a feat."

Get keen for tennis open

By Ben Galea, Longreach Tennis Club president

Spread the word—the Longreach Men's and Women's Open Singles Tournament is on this weekend, and it's ramping up to be one hell of a show!

Starting early Saturday morning, we have at least 12 men competing, including blokes from Hughenden, Barcaldine and Germany.

Based on recent performances, it's anybody's guess who's going to come out on top—the calibre is that high!

For the women's tournament, we don't have the same numbers just yet, but fingers are crossed we get a few last-minute sign-ons to really make it a worthy challenge for the ladies.

If you know someone who should be playing, please, dig them in the ribs.

It's only $20 to play, and in addition to the obvious glory of playing and potentially winning, there will be some great prizes available to our winners and runners-up.

To enter the comp, please email: tennislongreach@gmail.com

The BBQ will be fired up for lunch on Saturday and the canteen will be selling cold drinks all day, depending on numbers, we may also be playing on Sunday.

With hype building, we had a fantastic turnout at social tennis this Tuesday night - 20 people - all five courts full!

Each week, participants have the opportunity to play against a variety of skill levels across three different doubles matches.

It's encouraging to see that our newer players have improved substantially in the several weeks they've been with us.

We were stoked to welcome even more new-comers this week, including some squash players (the conversion begins), a new nurse and a gentleman from Germany, the latter who is bringing some serious talent to the Open Men's Singles Tournament this weekend—in fact, we might change the name to the Longreach International.

If you're not playing this weekend, we'd still love to have you come spectate, grab a burger and cheer on any friends.

Should be a great weekend.

And don't forget, our mixed and doubles tournaments will be coming up on 3/4 September—register now!

Josh Lehmann, Claus Maier and Ryan Nebe chat after their game.

Maddie Scott, Selena Haywood, Sophie Freeman and Meg Bassingthwaighte shake hands after their doubles match.
