To the best curry in town.

There are stories within stories.

And stories within moments in your life.

Each week, I have sat down to the Thursday night curry at the Birdcage.

Which is honestly excellent if you can handle the heat.

Not once had I thought about the story behind the chef who made it for me.

Even in a small town like Longreach, people can get lost in the shuffle.

But yet within someone I had not thought about, a deeply humbling story emerged.

It reminded me of the Epictetus quote, "in each person, an opportunity for kindness."

And as a journalist, I might remix that to say, "in each person, an opportunity for a story."

Buckle up for rodeo

By Michael R Williams

This year's Stonehenge Bushman's Carnival Association would like to invite you to the Stonehenge Bushman's Carnival as it kicks off with a saddle-bronc riding school. Association President Robert Francis said they aim to start building local participation in the event once again.

"Team penning will be on throughout Friday night then there will be a bar with meals that night," he said.

"Then there will be a rodeo on Saturday afternoon followed by live music that night.

"Sunday there will be branding, a motorbike gymkhana, then the barrel racing making for a full weekend."

Mr Francis said this year they hope to make the event more accessible for kids, including a mini bull rider.

"It gets the kids involved and gives them a platform to start," he said.

"We're hoping for a pretty handy crowd this year.

"To be honest, we probably couldn't handle any more than we got last year."

Mr Francis said there will be something for everyone.

"That's definitely what we're aiming for, and hopefully see some kids around.

"Nothings too serious, it's plenty of fun."

Mr Francis said the event will be a laid-back experience with good food and plenty to do.

"It's essential everyone supports these things as it's getting harder and harder to hold community events," he said.

"The more people support it, the better it gets."

Heart of the region

By Michael R Williams

There is much to be excited about the QCWA Centenary Celebration Fun Day of QCWA at Edkins Park this weekend, but the alarms have been sounded; if not looked after, the Country Women's Associations of the central west may not survive another centenary.

Many branches have struggled to find new members, and fuel prices have affected the ability of branches to work together between towns.

Earlier this year, a crisis meeting was held in Barcaldine as the branch was close to giving up the ghost.

Central west division president Gwen Rogers said luckily the state president at the time was present at the time as she helped convince young members to keep the branch alive.

However, that may not be the case for the Jericho division, in September they will have their own meeting to decide whether they will choose to remain active.

"There was several there [in Barcaldine] and apologies from others who wanted to join," Ms Rogers said.

"We knew there would be enough to start a branch and they have now.

"They have monthly meetings and they have fundraisers and have started their own markets."

Ms Rogers said Women's Associations are necessary to outback communities.

"I just love our motto: Honour to God. Loyalty to the throne. Service to the country. Free country women. For country women. By country women," she said.

"We have our markets, the Morella branch just had their scone-a-thon and sold over $1,000 worth.

"We do and can do a lot with older ladies who don't get out as much as they might like."

Ms Rogers hopes locals support the centenary celebrations this weekend.

"I want all the families to get together and off their phones," she said.

"We would have loved to have had it at the river, but we were told it would be unsafe.

"But there will be colouring in competitions, a vegemite cooking competition (vegemite started in the same year as QCWA), hymns, a teddy bear picnic, face painting, scone judging, and more."

However, fundraising is more difficult in smaller towns such as Jericho, and the branch there is struggling to pay bills such as electricity and insurance.

"They haven't had any way to make money to pay for things such as rates," she said.

"If there were tourists in the town, there could be heaps they could do.

"We do hope they can stay open.

"So here was the best place for him to do that.

"And not knowing what was going on with Covid in the early days, we didn't know how long this was going to go on."

As international borders opened, Mr Perera began lobbying the government to see his family come to Australia. The process had begun in April, and Mr Perera had grown frustrated with the silence and longed for his family.

"They said they had a backlog, which I understand that, but he's done the hard yards," Mr Ballard said.

"I don't know how many there are, but we really need to start looking at the process if stuff like this is happening to good people like Max."

"We need skilled workers out here."

At that point, Mr Perera's application had not been touched since the fourth of April—a long time to be without the wife you met in high school. "We were friends at first, she was in the dancing group and I was in the band," he said.

"We went to a dancing competition together when we met.

"We were friends for two years before we started dating, she went to university, and I went to New Zealand to do my course."

Ms Dilini Jayaweera worked as an Archaeologist before falling pregnant and has a Bachelor's Degree in Social Science and Humanities.

They dated for 12 years before getting married and coming from aspirational backgrounds, they based their relationship around bringing a better life to their potential - and now real - daughter.

"Since 2012, we hadn't had much time to be together as I've always been working," Mr Perera said.

"The plan was to have the life we didn't get to have as kids.

"My mum had to work hard just to put food on the table just to feed us as kids."

Mr Perera, and soon his family, have become essential parts of the community.

Mr Ballard said it would be difficult to replace him with his work ethic and skills.

Mr Ballard also thanked the efforts of Tony Rayner, David Arnold, the office of Lachlan Millar, and David Littleproud for their efforts in lobbying State and Federal governments for this outcome.

Fundraiser makes sense

By Michael R Williams

The annual cent sale was held at the Barcaldine Town Hall with the host, the Barcaldine Cultural Association raising well over $1000.

President Jill Williams said this would be almost enough for them to pay for their insurance for the year, a result they were pleased with.

“Socially and financially the cent sale is a big help to us,” she said.

The hall was filled, during the event, with great homemade goods and saw a turnout that was slightly short of other years.

Ms Williams said this may have been due to the event being held later in the tourist season.

“We’re very grateful, we still have a good following,” she said.

“We had a lot of donations, and the raffle was donated—the prizes were donated, Ronny Savvy was one of the biggest winners, he’s always a great supporter.

“I’d say we raise about $1,400 which is really great.”

Coming up, in September, the Barcaldine Cultural Association will be holding a 50th anniversary, so keep an eye out.

‘Superhighway’ in the works

The major towns will soon benefit from the proposed “electrical vehicle superhighway”, as construction has officially begun on the first of 24 new electric vehicle chargers in Western Queensland.

Transport and Main Roads Minister Mark Bailey said contractor Yurika was on-site in Kingaroy in early August to construct and commission the first charger of the Phase 3 rollout.

“Electric vehicles are finding their place on Queensland roads, with more than 10,000 now registered thanks to the commitment and foresight of the Palaszczuk government,” he said.

“We’re supporting this uptake through $3000 new EV rebates and more charging infrastructure from the Coast to Cairns.

“Queensland’s Electric Super Highway is currently positioned in 31 locations and is now expanding to a further 24 across the interior of the state to make travelling with your EV even easier.

“First stop is Kingaroy, soon to be followed by Longreach, Barcaldine, Blackall, Charleville, Miles and Stanthorpe.”

Assistant Minister for Regional Roads Bruce Saunders said the rollout would take the Super Highway up to 5400km long.

“This system will be the single largest electric super highway in one jurisdiction anywhere in the world—that’s a fantastic achievement for Queensland,” Mr Saunders said.

“The Palaszczuk government is committed to making electric vehicles as accessible as possible to all Queenslanders, and our new charging network is just one way we can achieve that.”

New X-ray in town

Barcaldine has received new, "state of the art" X-ray equipment, improving the quality of the health service in town greatly.

The process was said to have cost $285,000 at the Barcaldine Multipurpose Health Service, Central West Hospital and Health Service Acting Executive Director for Finance, Infrastructure and Support Services Joe Byrne said the new Shimadzu RADspeed Pro fixed and MX8 mobile machines were a major step up from the older X-ray equipment.

"The new machines use digital technology as opposed to computed radiography," Mr Byrne said.

"Digital radiography is able to provide a much higher quality image much more quickly.

"Most importantly, digital radiography requires a much lower dose of radiation and therefore much less exposure time to produce a comparable quality image to computed radiography machines.

"The new mobile machine is also much more compact, more portable and more user friendly than the old one."

Mr Byrne said between 1000 and 1100 X-rays a year were delivered by the Barcaldine MPHS Medical Imaging Department.

"We thank Barcaldine MPHS visitors and patients for their understanding and apologise for any inconvenience while we were installing the new X-ray equipment over the past month," he said.

"But thanks to the installation of the new equipment, all medical imaging services at Barcaldine MPHS are now back to normal."

The new Shimadzu RADspeed Pro fixed and MX8 mobile machines are a major step up from the older X-ray equipment.

PCOS is a common condition that affects 8-13 per cent of women.

Diagnosis is often delayed, requires multiple consultations and is based on irregular periods, higher levels or signs of excess male-type hormones, including excessive hair growth or severe acne, and ultrasound changes on the ovaries.

The condition has metabolic, psychological and reproductive features and is one of the main causes of infertility in women.

Professor Helena Teede, from the Monash Centre for Health Research and Implementation (MCHRI) says the review paves the way for the 2023 release of the International PCOS Guidelines, generously funded by the National Health and Medical Research Council (NHMRC) Centre for Research Excellence in Women's Health in Reproductive Life.

"There are key knowledge gaps that clinicians have when diagnosing and treating PCOS," she said. "The review seeks to improve accurate diagnosis, limit treatment inconsistencies and address barriers to providing patient-centred care. It also highlights the need for holistic models of care to support women and for greater investment in research in this common, yet complex condition."

Cheers to the call

Australian beer drinkers are being encouraged to raise a glass today to recognise the value of beer in Australia on International Beer Day.

It is a day to celebrate that beer is a great Australian success story with 85 per cent of beer being grown here, made here and consumed here, generating $16 billion every year for the Australian economy. Most significantly within this is our longstanding partnership with Australian farmers. In a typical year, brewers would purchase around $500 million of agricultural products and directly support 3,000 farm jobs.

Qantas crew takes action on pay

According to the TWU, the Dubai National Air Travel Agency ground crew within Qantas' supply chain will soon begin voting on whether they have the right to take industrial action.

This comes after the Fair Work Commission today approved a TWU application to hold a protected action ballot.

The crew have have been said to be fighting against management's attempts to push through an agreement that gives pay cuts to experienced workers and pushes workers into below the legal award conditions.

The company has so far denied workers' attempts to increase part-time hours or invest in permanent positions to ease pressure on the chronically over-worked crews.

TWU National Assistant Secretary Nick McIntosh said industrial action was always the last resort, but Dnata workers shouldn't be forced to accept a poor deal that would see working conditions go backwards.

"Dnata workers are overworked, exhausted and understaffed as they battle to plug gaps in working rosters," he said.

They reasonably deferred bargaining during the pandemic despite not receiving a cent of JobKeeper, and now just want a fair deal for themselves and their families.

"Workers are sending Dnata and its purse-string controllers at Qantas a clear message: settle a fair deal that locks in secure jobs with strong conditions, or workers may be forced to take further action".

'A life well lived': Passing of a pioneer

By Jeff Close; Winton Correspondent

Flags flew at half-mast in Winton last Friday to honour the late Jean O'Connell, whose graveside service was conducted by Leisa Fraser.

Family and friends celebrated a life well lived.

Common themes in the many amusing stories told were the love of family, commitment to Winton, love of bush poetry and service to others.

Just prior to the service the hearse and funeral cars travelled along the main street before arriving at the cemetery—an old tradition in many country towns. Shopkeepers closed their doors and stood outside their shops with heads bowed.

Family members and friends shared many anecdotes about Mrs O'C as she was affectionally known.

Solemnly the Reverend John Flynn's 'Prayer for the Inland' was read.

Graham Dean recited his tribute poem.

Former Mayor of Winton, Bruce Collins, presented the Eulogy and the photograph of Mrs O'C taken by esteemed Winton photographer, Peter Knowles, rounded the tribute service.

The wake was held at the Shire Hall supper room and special thanks must be paid to Amanda Cluff for her organisation.

In true Jean O'Connell vision, donations to the Jessamine Place project were requested instead of flowers.

Good work on Career Expo

By Michael R Williams

The inaugural RESQ+ Longreach Carers Expo has launched in the interest of many local students.

Regional Community Development Manager for central and southwest Queensland Sue Bylett said there was much to be excited for the event going into the coming years.

“It gives local kids direction into which pathways they'd like to take going into employment,” she said.

“Some decide they want to go through University, others are more interested in skills and apprenticeships.

“It just opens up a lot of thoughts for the students.”

Ms Bylett also said it was a good way to get employers in touch with students as well and learn about what the employee market may look like in the future.

“You're talking about years 7s, 8s, and 9s,” she said.

“It's a good way for employers to discuss what they do and the various possibilities.

“In one of our recent expos, a young girl learned she would need to go to a private school to do what she wanted to do; she then went on to tell her parents, and she's now in a boarding school.”

Ms Bylett also said the day was a chance for her and her team to learn what local students, for example, a large number of Tambo students were interested in going into the defence industry.

“There are just so many opportunities,” she said.

“The next one we will look to hold it at the Civic Centre.”

Ben Galea and Doug Allpass said Desert Channels Queensland are always looking to take in work experience students.

David Rimmer, Kylie Cuffe, and Shannon Brooke, with “goliath”. “Central West Health has enormous possibilities.”

Izzy Gavel and Richard Lewis from GBA. “We at GBA stick together.”

Tom Patten said there was a great variety in the Police Force. “The world's your oyster.”

Alicia Rhodes and Tanya Millar said there are heaps of opportunities in science, retail and more for children as they look to enter the workforce.

Jess White and Peter Coombes from James Cook University said a university that the benefits of going to a University that is rural base is its focus on smaller towns.

With their beer goggles on, John Brokhurst, Fiona Warren, and Sophie Lyons are showcasing what a career with the department of main roads can look like.

Tracy O'Brien from Anglicare said Anglicare is a rewarding career.

RESQ is a great career where you get to do something new every day, said Cecile Pitt.

Kaite Russell and Louise Campbell said Red Ridge was an exciting and creative experience.

Welcoming a cool season

It is not often we get to say this but it has been a long cold winter.

It has been many years since we've had a cold spell last this long and hopefully, it stays around for a while as we'll have plenty of warm weather following it. Hopefully, this is the prelude to a good wet season with many more to come. Winton Shire Council will be commencing our Community Meetings in September with visits planned for Opalton on the 11th, Corfield the following week and Middleton to follow in October.

This gives Councillors and Staff a chance to engage with the residents in these areas and discuss the recently adopted budget and receive feedback regarding their community.

FROM MY DESK

GAVIN BASKETT
WINTON SHIRE COUNCIL MAYOR

It is always good to get out to different parts of the shire and hear from our rural residents.

The times and what's on will be posted on Social Media and put in the Herald once finalised, I encourage everyone to come along and meet with Council.

It has been a busy few weeks for travelling with the LGAQ Bush Councils Conference recently held in Barcaldine, and I'd like to congratulate Mayor Dillon and the Barcaldine Regional Council staff for hosting a great event.

Last week I accompanied Mayor Britton from Boulia and the Outback Highway Development Council CEO, Helen Lewis, on a trip to Canberra to meet with members of the Australian Government to discuss the Outback Way.

Funding has been committed by the previous government and the Outback Way Council wanted to meet with the Labor Government to highlight the importance of this Nation Building project to inland Australia.

Once the sealing is complete (est; 2027/28) Winton will become the crossroads of two major highways heading north to south and east to west which will create a lot more traffic through Winton and hopefully a lot more trade for our small businesses.

This will not only benefit Winton and Boulia but every other community in the region that truckies, tourists, and travellers pass through.

Finally, congratulations to the Diamantina Devils on a great season that fell agonisingly short with a loss to Barcaldine last weekend.

It has been a great season for the Devils finishing third and getting a home semi-final after not making the finals in 2021.

Good luck to the Magpies and Goannas in the Grand Final, I'm sure it'll be a great game.

"Up the Devils in 2023"

FMD should be in the bank and not on our doorsteps

Most of the time we live at Arundel in solitary splendour, but that doesn't mean the outside world never intrudes.

Sometimes these intrusions are welcome, like the visitors we recently received from overseas, able to return with the lifting of overseas travel bans, or the rain that accompanied them.

Sadly, there are times when such intrusions, though inevitable, aren't exactly welcome.

Most come in biblical proportions, like droughts, bushfires and pestilence.

The pestilence usually comes in the form of grasshoppers or blowflies, but of late we are watching with dread another sort of pestilence.

Foot and Mouth Disease, abbreviated to FMD in the media.

While it made for some rather comical

ILFRACOMBE INKLINGS

JOANNE ROBERTSON

moments in June, the possibility of FMD reaching our shores is a very serious matter.

However, FMD has traditionally been the acronym for Farm Management Deposits, which usually come up at the end of the financial year, ie June.

This year we received the expected notifications from the usual suspects, reminding us that it was time to consider FMDs.

At first, I thought, 'what are the banks doing, sending us FMD notifications?'

I pictured us placing Foot and Mouth Disease in a bank vault somewhere, to take out when it was more convenient, which of course would be never.

But wouldn't it be marvellous if we could do that, simply lock this dreaded disease away securely in a vault, never to infect any animals on our thus far FMD-free islands?

I should say that, in other years, I've pictured a mob of sheep crammed into a bank vault, or maybe a cow or two, since these are a property's most valuable assets.

Of course, there would be an endless supply of feed and water in the vault with the stock, which would also be marvellous during a drought, if possible.

I know, I have a weird imagination, but it's always entertaining in my head.

And it provides a harmless distraction from disasters like drought and the dread of dying animals.

Or FMD and infected animals.

With the food supply chain in trouble in so many places around the world due to conflict, drought, floods, shorter growing seasons and disasters on the processing side, one of the bright sides of the rain we recently had were the knowledge that Australia would be able to step up and help feed the world.

If FMD penetrates our shores, we would be as helpless as all those other nations to send food to the hungry.

And that would be as tragic as everything else FMD would bring to our shores.

Let's hope that travellers do the right thing, alongside the government authorities responsible for quarantine and all of us on the land.

We all must do our part to stop the spread of FMD.

Big News from the theatre

By Winton Correspondent, Jeff Close

Winton’s Royal Theatre - the second oldest open-air picture theatre in Australia and hub of a thriving movie experience in the outback - has been busily installing a new digital projector.

This is really big news for the not-for-profit, volunteer-run Winton Movies Inc.

Luke Miller, operations manager, explains: “We believe the Royal Theatre in Winton is the only operating cinema in Australia that can fill the silver screen with images projected by four different pieces of equipment – digital, 35mm, 16mm and carbon arc.”

John Coleman, who has been in Winton installing the new projector and speakers, agrees.

“I travel around Australia installing, repairing and fine-tuning projection equipment, and I think Winton is unique in that regard,” he said.

Patrons attending screenings on Sunday, Wednesday or Friday are able to take in movies ‘under the stars’.

And of course popcorn, ice creams and drinks are available to go with the experience.

Friday is a modern movie, Sunday is Cowboy Night and Wednesday is Nostalgia Night, with doors opening at 7pm.

The volunteer organisation has in the four years of stewardship of the 104-year-old theatre already purchased more seats, and improved projection equipment and candy bar facilities.

The current fundraising project is Buy a Brick Coin to help refurbish the brick floor of the seating area.

More and more visitors to Winton, including bus tours, self-drive tours and school groups, are taking in the 104 years of history.

Circus comes to town

By Michael R Williams

Did you know the Blackall-Tambo region laid host to the Perry Brothers who would go on to become Australia’s first performing arts group?

This year, round up and celebrate an iconic part of central west history.

“We wanted to do something special to celebrate the birthplace of the Australian circus,” Red Ridge Interior Queensland General Manager Louise Campbell said.

“Circus is not just about animals, though back then they did use them, it’s about the performing arts—trapeze artists, dancers, musicians, clowns.

“It really is performing arts.”

Ms Campbell said it was a special moment for Blackall and Tambo to recognise their history.

“We are bringing Ashton Big Top Circus,” she said.

“They will do three days in Tambo then they will come to Blackall the following week.

“In between, we will be doing workshops within our community, and we’ve been building a carnivale atmosphere all along the main street, and woodworking with cut-out animals as we will not be using any live animals.”

Ms Campbell said locals were getting very excited about the event.

“It’s reliving history,” she said.

“It’s nice to know we were among the pioneers for circuses.

“Bush beats kids have learned a performance about the Perry Brothers which will come to life on the stage.”

Register your dogs, catch up on FMD

Good to be back with you for another of my fortnightly updates.

This time around, we're talking about biosecurity, innovation, and events.

But first dogs.

It's really important that you keep your dog registrations up to date — renewals are due this Monday 15 August.

All dogs within the Longreach Regional Council must be registered by the time they are 12 weeks old and within 14 days of being in the region.

In Queensland, it's also the law for all dogs and cats to be microchipped from 12 weeks of age.

A maximum of two dogs over 12 weeks of age can be kept on a property in any of our towns.

Approval is required for any additional dogs over the maximum of two.

Registering your dog will help us reunite them with you in the event they're impounded.

Biosecurity Queensland officers will be in Longreach on Wednesday 31 August for an Exotic Disease Awareness and Training Day, hosted by RAPAD.

The workshop will be open to councils, landholders, transport operators, and anyone interested in learning about the prevention and response to exotic diseases.

More details will be released soon, but it's worth saving the date now — Wednesday 31 August at the Longreach Civic Centre.

GroWQ and Agforce have teamed up to produce an Innovation Expo for producers in our region.

FROM MY DESK

TONY RAYNER
LONGREACH MAYOR

It's a full day of talks, trade displays and technology in the wool pavilion at the Longreach Showgrounds, Tuesday 23 August.

It's a must-visit event for any producer in our region wanting to increase productivity.

Come and learn about connectivity solutions, remote monitoring, income diversity, paddock weighing and more.

There are going to be exhibitors and presentations covering connectivity and people, livestock innovation, money and new opportunities, and the future of our natural resources.

Tickets are only $25 and include smoko and lunch, so they're great value.

GroWQ is a local industry development organisation focussing on networking, knowledge, innovation, and investment for our region.

Council is convening a range of activities as part of Seniors Month in August.

There was free aqua aerobics in Longreach and a great trivia morning in Ilfracombe last week.

This week we hosted a morning tea and station tour at Camden Park, which was well received.

Next week the visit to the Stockman's Hall of Fame will be popular.

The month wraps up with a fun morning at the library learning about e-resources and digital devices.

Seniors Month is a great initiative, proudly delivered by Council's communities team.

Get in touch with them to find out more.

Also coming later this month is our Luncheon with author, business leader and expert Lucy Bloom.

Her speaking style is fun, fast and relatable, and her backstory is one that makes her an inspirational speaker.

Join us Saturday 27 August in the Wool Pavilion at the Longreach Showgrounds.

Council will have its August meeting in Ilfracombe next week, at the Rec Centre.

We love having our meetings out and about, and we regularly alternate between Longreach and our other communities.

As always, our meetings are open to the public, and you can find the agenda and minutes on our website.

I'll be back with another column in two weeks.

Post office a keeper

By Michael R Williams

As the news the Ilfracombe Post Office has been put on the market for potential buyers sets in, locals have expressed deep concerns. When asked if locals would like to see the Post Office sold, only two locals voted yes.

And while the score improved when asked if they had confidence that Council would find an appropriate buyer to five, an overwhelming amount of locals were voted no. Some locals went on to say that they didn't believe Council had Ilfracombe's best interests at heart.

"It's not just a post office, it's essential," an anonymous local said.

A topic that came up often was the employment of long-time local, Di.

Bartender and backpacker, Reece Musson said Di was the reason he got up every morning and he would hate to see her lose her job.

In response, the Longreach Regional Council made sure to notify Ilfracombe locals that this is not a proposal to close the Ilfracombe Post Office.

"[It is an invitation for] expressions of interest from anyone interested in purchasing the post office business, land, and building, as a going concern," a council spokesperson said.

"Council is in the process of preparing the documentation necessary to run an open and equitable Expressions of Interest process, including the setting of appropriate evaluation criteria."

Council has committed to updating the community before any further decision is made.

Winton's master of verse

By Jeff Close; Winton Correspondent

Not every town has a resident poet—let alone one who has won the Australian Poetry Championship title in 2018, 2019 and 2010.

But Winton in Outback Queensland has Greg North.

It comes as a surprise that Greg only began his bush poetry life at the age of 35.

"I had heard a little bush poetry as a kid, but it was at Katoomba that I knew Bush Poetry was for me," Greg said.

Katoomba in the Blue Mountains had a bush poetry group, with Milton Taylor, Denis Kevans, Terry Regan, and Brian Bell contributing.

Greg had just given up his job as a coach driver—mainly driving on local tours and acting as a guide.

"I had some free time, and I went to one of the Katoomba meetings and thought, 'Wow. Why haven't I heard this before?'" Greg said.

A previous job as a guide at the Jenolan Caves had also added some confidence in public speaking and dealing with the public.

Greg had also seen Peter Berner perform The Man From Snowy River on TV, and was amazed Peter could remember all of the poems, so he set about learning probably Australia's most famous poem himself.

On a coach trip to Canberra, he had previously found a copy of Jim Haynes' book 'An Australian Heritage of Verse'.

By this time Greg had started driving trucks and had time to learn the words of "The Man From Snowy River".

Then "The Geebung Polo Club".

It was the poem, "The Geebung Polo Club" that Greg first performed at the Katoomba poets' meeting.

"Kerry Regan had to prompt me", Greg remembers.

Greg was introduced to the Australian Bush

It comes as a surprise that Greg only began his bush poetry life at the age of 35.

Poets competitions, and as well Milton had a small competition going at Hampton.

His first big competition success was at the Man From Snowy River Festival at Corryong in Victoria.

"I had met Frank Daniel at Tamworth and he told me if I wanted to win at Corryong I had to do something different".

Well, he did something different.

He recited the poem using a variety of accents.

Some in the audience were horrified but back then in 2004, his performances were enough to lead to a few wins.

His first paid gig was a half-hour session at an Old Boys' night at a local school.

Greg turned Professional Bush Poet in 2010—if driving a cab three nights a week allows him to qualify.

Greg had started writing his own poems fairly early in the piece, with The Tradesman first to arrive.

Currently, he has about 100 poems in his folio.

Greg came to Winton almost by accident.

He was on a bit of a holiday and Mel and Susie were at the van park.

A couple of years later, on a holiday to Uluru, they called to ask if he would fill in for a couple of weeks as they had been called away.

That was in 2014.

There was a bit of a stint in Cloncurry the next year and in 2016 Mel and Susie asked Greg to take over at Winton as they wanted to move to Lightning Ridge. And so he started his Winton gig in 2016.

At the Vision Splendid Outback Film Festival the next year, film Artistic Director Greg Dolgoplov arranged for Greg North to perform a daily poetry session at the North Gregory Hotel.

The Caravan Park in Winton has a long tradition of Bush Poetry.

Gloria Hitson began the show in 1991.

In those days Gloria would serve up a camp-oven meal six days a week as well as perform—as well as running a business buying and grading 'roo hides.

Nell Perkins, Milton Taylor, Melanie Hall, and Susie Carcary then followed.

Greg has an impressive record—three books, three CDs, and two DVDs.

He has been Secretary, Treasurer and Web Administrator of the ABPA.

His favourite poem? Wheat by C J Dennis.

The poem he is most proud of? Gundungurra Man.

"This one poem took me 18 months to write but also won me $1000 in the Gippsland Golden Wattle Competition."

Favourite Banjo Paterson poem?

The Man from Snowy River.

Currently, Greg is working full-time in Winton at van parks, special events, festivals and tour buses.

And still writing Bush Poetry.

Tambo artists' work helps

As a part of a call for expressions of interest, Tambo artists and proud Bidjara women Ann Russell and Deann Frousheger have produced a unique artwork, Coming Together. The query came from the Central West Hospital and Health Service as a part of its First Nations Health Equity Strategy.

Central West Executive Director of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Dan Carter said the health service was in the process of finalising said strategy.

"We expect to launch the strategy later in the year, and we were keen to have a unique piece of First Nations art commissioned to illustrate the strategy document throughout," he said.

"We wanted the artwork to tell a story that linked the delivery of health services with First Nations culture.

"We called for Expressions of Interest and Auntie Ann and her daughter Deann have done us very proud indeed with their contribution which we have selected."

The mother and daughter team worked together on the traditional piece.

"Our artwork shows the fine line connect-tion that runs between the local communities linked by the river system and the medical professionals that visit our district of the Central West," Auntie Ann said.

"The meeting places connected together in the artwork represent the towns in the Central West district—all linked with the river system.

"The handprints represent the local services that are in our communities.

"The footprints represent the visiting health professionals that come to our communities.

"The animal prints are emu, kangaroo and echidna tracks, while the border represents the continued communication between all of our communities."

Auntie Ann said she and Deann worked mostly in acrylics and pens to create artworks that told the story of their connection to the land.

"Working together enables our art to create tangible memories while sharing knowledge and respect for our culture," she said. "There is a voice in our works. It sings to the spirit of who we are as women. It connects us."

Auntie Ann said she and Deann had helped run multiple art workshops for the Central West Aboriginal Co-operative in their community, with the resulting works contributed to the opening of the art gallery in Barcaldine.

"We also worked with the Tambo community and with fellow Indigenous artists Auntie Joyce Crombie and Auntie Jean Barr-Crombie as well as Red Ridge Interior Queensland to create pieces of the story of the river in flood," she said.

Great start to life: First Nations Baby Bundles initiative

Baby bundles, an initiative from the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Unit, aims to improve birthing experiences for First Nations mums across central west Queensland.

"First Nations babies account for about nine per cent of our overall births each year," Central West Hospital and Health Service First Nations Health Equity Strategy Senior Planning Officer Tia Whyman said.

"We understand the importance of ensuring that the birthing experience for all mothers and families of First Nations babies is not only clinically excellent but also culturally sensitive and appropriate.

"As such, we are introducing a First Nations Baby Bundle initiative to help support our mothers and their new babies.

"Women will receive the bag when booking in for their care at Longreach hospital."

Ms Whyman said the Baby Bundle would include practical products suitable for mothers and babies, such as a bag with newborn nappies, nursing pads, baby wipes, baby body wash, a bib, singlet, and a onesie, baby bowl and spoon and a swaddle.

Also in the bundle will be information relevant to the first year of the baby's life, such as breastfeeding, bottle feeding and bathing, as well as information about local maternal and child care services and how to contact them.

"The bag is also about encouraging women to get to their antenatal appointments to help improve baby health outcomes such as healthy birth weights," Ms Whyman said.

Ms Whyman said the introduction of the First Nations Baby Bundle initiative coincided with two Longreach Hospital midwives undertaking training under the First 1000 Days Australia program.

"The First 1000 Days Australia program aims to improve awareness of First Nations cultures and needs during pregnancy, as well as providing culturally appropriate maternity information," Ms Whyman said.

Love shown in special week

By Peter Thurecht; Our Lady's Catholic School

Catholic Education Week in Queensland is celebrated annually in week 3 of term 3 and is an opportunity for all 313 Catholic schools in Queensland to celebrate and promote their distinctive mission and ethos.

Last week, Our Lady's Catholic Primary school celebrated the event in a number of ways.

The theme for this year was "Communities of Faith, Hope and Love".

Throughout the week the school held many events including open classrooms, a mass, parent morning tea and a kindness walk to local businesses.

The kindness walk is always a favourite with the local community as the students drop off treats they have made throughout the week.

The students also love the chance to engage with the community and have photos taken in local businesses.

"One of Our Lady's strengths is its sense of community and through Catholic Education Week we get to share this value with all the local businesses," principal Peter Thurecht said.

"The smiles as you enter businesses truly capture the theme of Communities of Faith, Hope and Love."

Our Lady's student having a balloon party at Prices Plus.

Catching up on the news is Cooper Wall, Millie Player with Doug Winterbotham.

Enjoying a milkshake at Darcy's, Lachlan Hunt, Lola Rockett, Jacob Wiggins, and Keali Walker, with Darcy's employee Daniella Mudu.

Madilyn Gray and James Butler were given plenty of love from Our Lady's Catholic School students Grace O'Keefe and George Sidebottom.

Cover Story

Toughing it out: The Block's 2022 contestants, from left: Tom and Sarah-Jane; Rachel and Ryan; Ankur and Sharon; Dylan and Jenny; and Omar and Oz.

Built to last

For the first time, The Block is heading out of the city, taking five couples to Gisborne South in Victoria, where they'll face a new level of challenges. Host Scott Cam tells Siobhan Duck about unexpected difficulties and what it takes to make it through the reality juggernaut

BETWEEN the trade shortages and the celebrity couple who packed up and left in the middle of the night, The Block's tree change has certainly been a rocky road for host Scott Cam.

But after 12 years at the helm of the reality renovation juggernaut, Cam isn't too fazed by these sorts of on-site dramas.

Plus, he says, it's important to keep "things in perspective", especially when construction supply shortages and delays are not unique to The Block.

"We had a timber shortage, supply chain shortage, and we had a tradesmen shortage and we had rising costs," Cam says.

"But we've got a network behind us. Can you imagine a mum and dad who are building a home and going through the same thing?"

"It'd be an absolute travesty. So, we could never cry foul for us. There are more important things than our show."

Supply stresses aside, Cam laughs that the most challenging part of renovating five farmhouses at the foot of the Macedon Ranges proved to be far less salacious than the stories making headlines.

"I think the mud was just the biggest challenge for our contestants and for everybody," he says.

"Just getting through that mud every day was a real struggle. And it was -2 or -3 degrees, so everybody was cold, and it was a little bit drizzly with sideways rain when the wind blew up, and so, the site just never dried out for about a month and a half.

"That really got everyone down. The contestants. The crew.

Everybody was in really tough conditions.

"But that's what we're about in Australia."

Of course, while Cam spent long days on set, he was still able to escape the sodden site whenever he needed some respite from the mayhem (and the mud).

"I didn't live there [on the work site] permanently, I do have an apartment in Port Melbourne, so I was back and forth," he explains.

"You know I have been doing this a long time. I am 60 years old, and I am not a contestant, so I need a hot shower every now and then.

"I did stay out there though because I love the bush. I love an open fire and having a few beers.

"So, the impact was minimal for me. I stayed out there when I wanted to, otherwise I went home. The interesting thing about our tree change to Gisborne is it's only 35 minutes from the city."

Not everyone found the adjustment as easy to navigate as Cam.

Former AFL footballer Joel Patfull and his influencer fiancée Elle Ferguson left the series just 48 hours after arriving on the 60-acre block.

The duo has since claimed they fled to show to be at the bedside of Patfull's mother, who broke her neck in a fall. The couple said when they were unable to get a straight answer from the production team about whether they could take a leave of absence, they had no choice but to bow out.

But that's all news to Cam, who contends that the couple left in the middle of the night without telling anyone where they were going or if they were coming back.

"Well, The Block is not for everybody. And maybe it wasn't their cup of tea," he shrugs diplomatically.

"The thing is, you'll have to ask them about why they left. Because we weren't aware of the reasons why when they left. They disappeared and they didn't really tell us why. But we wish them well."

Cam refutes any suggestion that filming the series in a rural area rather than in the CBD (as has always been done in previous seasons) may have made the experience harder on the contestants.

"The town of Gisborne is only five minutes away," he explains.

"So, they're not out of town really, they're just close by to a different town.

"It is quite amazing that some people still don't know that it's 12 weeks of high vis and hard work.

"We do give them beds! And they do get to have hot showers and have portables [toilets].

"But yes, they do think it's smoke and mirrors and I try to warn them on day one that it's not smoke and mirrors.

"We tell them that in interviews too. What you see is what you get. And it's true, you will have to do everything. There's no team that comes in when the cameras stop rolling, because, in fact, the camera never stops rolling."

Cam says he has no hard feelings about Ferguson and Patfull quitting the show, only the manner in which they did it.

"I wish them all the success in the world in the future, it's just about going about things in the right way," he says, adding that Ryan and Rachel

Strong foundation: Series stalwarts Scott Cam and Shelley Craft return for another season of The Block.

IT IS QUITE AMAZING THAT SOME PEOPLE STILL DON'T KNOW THAT [THE BLOCK] IS 12 WEEKS OF HIGH VIS AND HARD WORK

– the couple who ultimately replaced Patfull and Ferguson – had been great additions to the cast.

Once again, this year, fans can expect a colourful cast of characters wielding hammers and paint brushes on The Block.

There's plumber Tom and his straight-talking wife Sarah-Jane; ex-Neighbours star Sharon and her husband Ankur; Gold Coast builder Dylan and his glamorous chippie girlfriend, Jenny; and finally, rugby player Omar and his best mate Oz.

"There's a real cross-section of the community, which I really love," explains Cam.

"And there's a diversification of people like the boys from southwest Sydney [Omar and Oz, who are the show's first practicing Muslim contestants].

"It's the first time we've experienced [the impact of] Ramadan."

When observing the month-long tradition of Ramadan, Omar and Oz were not able to eat or drink so much as sip of water between sunrise and sunset. Cam was in awe of Omar and Oz's perseverance and their positive attitude throughout the more arduous experience.

Cam has seen roughly 170 contestants tackle The Block over the years with varying degrees of success and controversy.

"I understand what they've gone through, and I know how hard it is to do," he says.

"Sometimes in the heat of the moment there's some battles, but then at the end of the day, it all comes good.

"And I don't have favourites. I respect everybody that's gone through and pushed on and created a home in 12 weeks. I think it's amazing. If you've done The Block, then hats off to you."

AVENGERS: INFINITY WAR
 Seven, 7.30pm, M (2018)

Just how many superheroes, comic book icons and Hollywood superstars can you possibly fit in one movie? According to Marvel, such a limit does not exist. This bigger-than-Ben-Hur epic is the 19th film in the Marvel Cinematic Universe and sees a dizzying number of characters from just about every movie that comes before it represented. The Avengers, Guardians of the Galaxy and Wakandans team up to stop the megalomaniacal warlord Thanos (Josh Brolin) from collecting the six Infinity Stones and enacting his plan to restore balance to the universe – by destroying half of all life within it. Given the enormous scale of the plot, and the number of big names jostling for screen time – Robert Downey Jr, Chris Hemsworth, Scarlett Johansson and Mark Ruffalo, to name a few – it's a remarkably smooth viewing experience, bolstered by out-of-this-world visual effects. ★★★★★

HUNTER KILLER
 9Gem, Friday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2018)

A revival of the Cold War thriller in a similar vein to The Hunt for Red October and Crimson Tide, where espionage and submarine warfare are coupled with the looming threat of war between the United States and Russia. Inexperienced US submarine captain Joe Glass (Gerard Butler, pictured) is thrown into the deep end in a rescue mission. Tensions run high as Glass plays a cat-and-mouse game with the enemy fleet to uncover the conspiracy and prevent an all-out war. ★★★★★

PARASITE
 SBS World Movies, Friday, 9.40pm, MA15+ (2019)

The first foreign language film to win the Academy Award for Best Picture is a genre-bending social commentary about an impoverished South Korean family. Director Bong Joon Ho blends elements of comedy, drama and horror to phenomenal effect as Kim Ki-woo (Woo-sik Choi, pictured) takes drastic measures to reach his goal of a lavish lifestyle – infiltrating the home of a wealthy Park family as a tutor and slowly orchestrating ways to replace their servants. ★★★★★

MY BIG FAT GREEK WEDDING 2
 9Gem, Saturday, 8.30pm, PG (2016)

More than a decade after the smash hit original, we re-enter the lives of Toula (Nia Vardalos, pictured) and Ian (John Corbett), who are struggling with a prosaic stage of marriage, along with the troubles that come with having a rebellious teenage daughter (Elena Kampouris). Family and tradition are the themes in a story that isn't afraid to play on cultural stereotypes, but it is the film's sentimentality and Vardalos' spirited performance that get it over the line. ★★★★★

SLUMDOG MILLIONAIRE
 7Flix, Sunday, 9.40pm, MA15+ (2008)

Director Danny Boyle's captivating tale of how an impoverished Indian teen inexplicably becomes a big winner on the Hindi version of Who Wants to Be a Millionaire? delivers a huge pay-off. The rags-to-riches saga unfolds like a Dickens novel set in Mumbai as Jamal (Dev Patel), a boy from the slums, relates how he came to know the answers to the game show's questions. The intriguing set-up uncovers Jamal's tragic past and reunites him with his lost love Latika (Freida Pinto). ★★★★★

THE MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E.
 7mate, Sunday, 10.15pm, M (2015)

Having enjoyed success with his fresh take on Sherlock Holmes, director Guy Ritchie tries his hand at rebooting this popular '60s TV series. At the height of the Cold War, CIA agent Solo (Henry Cavill) is forced to put aside his hostility towards KGB operative Kuryakin (Armie Hammer, pictured, left, with Cavill) as the pair join forces to take down a criminal organisation. Their only lead is the daughter of a missing German scientist, with Alicia Vikander adding the requisite romance to an engrossing story. ★★★★★

CHILDREN OF MEN
 SBS World Movies, Monday, 9.30pm, MA15+ (2006)

Absolutely brilliant sci-fi thriller from director Alfonso Cuarón, based on a P.D. James novel which presents a chilling vision of 2027. In a world where women are infertile, a one-time activist (Clive Owen) is forcibly recruited by his "terrorist" ex-lover (Julianne Moore, pictured with Owen) to escort humankind's sole pregnant woman to safety – an act that could potentially save the species from extinction. Action seems to materialise out of nowhere in Cuarón's grim yet life-affirming film. ★★★★★

PICK OF THE WEEK

HERE OUT WEST
ABC TV, Sunday, 8.30pm

The cultural melting pot of inner-west Sydney is the landscape behind this compelling anthology-style story of eight diverse people, whose lives become connected through the tumultuous events of a single day. Each tale was penned by a different emerging new writer. Among the stars of this ambitious and tender feature film are Genevieve Lemon (The Power Of The Dog), Leah Vandenberg (The Letdown) and Rahel Romahn (Mr Inbetween), with Leah Purcell (Cleverman) and Fadia Abboud (Barons) among the ensemble of directors. Viewers aren't given long to get to know any of the characters, but the plot involving a newborn kidnapped from a maternity ward is striking.

Cultural connection: The cast of Here Out West, from left: Arka Das, Christine Milo, Khoi Trinh, Brandon Nguyen and Mia-Lore Bayeh.

ROSS KEMP: SHIPWRECK TREASURE HUNTER
SBS, Friday, 8.30pm

In this compelling four-part series premiering tonight, Ross Kemp (pictured) isn't diving into the depths of the sea for treasure. Instead, he's embarking on a personal and dangerous mission to explore the historical wrecks lurking in the depths of the oceans surrounding the UK. Propelled by a personal link to maritime and the sea and a penchant for history's stories, he begins by undergoing an intense two-month scuba training program that would scare off most novices. There are beautiful and eerie sights to behold, but it's Kemp's openness, and the tales of those who perished, that bubbles to the surface.

THE PUBLIC IMAGE IS ROTTEN
SBS Viceland, Saturday, 8.30pm

Fans of singer-songwriter John Lydon (pictured), aka Johnny Rotten, will latch onto this wide-ranging documentary about the outspoken Sex Pistols and Public Image Ltd frontman. For others, this deep-dive into the larger-than-life punk icon's world could be a yawn-inducing affair. Featuring the Englishman divulging on his early life, career and choices, Rotten is a much more mellow figure than during his early days on stage and, to his credit, he's not afraid to reveal his vulnerable side. Musicians such as Moby and Red Hot Chili Peppers bassist Flea also chat about the singer's influence in the music landscape.

AUSTRALIA'S FAVOURITE TREE
ABC TV, Tuesday, 8.30pm

Paul West and Dr Ann Jones (both pictured) are on a unique mission to find Australia's most treasured tree. As kids, we probably all had a favourite to climb or admire, but do we forget the magic of trees as we get older? West and Jones travel to each state and territory to uncover the history and makeup of some of our most remarkable native trees, speaking with scientists and First Nations people about everything from trees' resilience to the roles they play in the natural world. In Tassie, it's beguiling viewing as Paul becomes one of the first people to climb into the canopy of a Huon pine.

Abbi Jacobson and D'Arcy Carden lead the cast of TV series A League of Their Own.

UP TO THE PLATE

A LEAGUE OF THEIR OWN
Streaming, from Friday,
Prime Video

It's time to play ball with this vibrant and sassy re-imagining of Penny Marshall's classic 1992 sports comedy and chick flick.

Co-created by Broad City's Abbi Jacobson (who also stars in the series) and Will Graham (Orion News Network), it's a contemporary update about the formation of the All-American Girls' Professional Baseball League.

Kicking off in 1943, the comedy follows the trials and tribulations the women faced as the league got up and running during a time of enormous social upheaval.

Jacobson reached out to former players to inform the playful and heartfelt series which tags catcher Carson (Jacobson) and pitcher Max (Chanté Adams, Roxanne Roxanne), along with a crew of witty and lovably flawed characters grappling with society's expectations, finding their places in the world, and mastering the game they love.

While the original flick explored themes of teamwork, leadership and perseverance, this fresh eight-episode series steps up to the plate with up-to-date storylines, which also delve into issues of racism and sexuality.

Look out for a cameo from one of the movie's original stars Rosie O'Donnell, along with an excellent ensemble cast including Nick Offerman (Parks and Recreation), D'Arcy Carden (The Good Place), Kelly McCormack (Letterkenny), Gbemisola Ikumelo (Sex Education) and Roberta Colindrez (I Love Dick).

Featuring sumptuous World War II-era costuming and set designs, along with a lively soundtrack, you needn't be a baseball fan for the tale to hit a home run. -Rebecca Balloch

NEVER HAVE I EVER

Mindy Kaling's adorable and hilarious coming-of-age comedy returns for a third season, with no signs of missing a beat. The charming teen drama, starring the effervescent Maitreyi Ramakrishnan (pictured) as impulsive Californian high-school student Devi - who is loosely based on a young Kaling - ups the ante with the arrival of a new love interest.

Goofball comedy king Owen Wilson (pictured) heads up this fun kids' flick with a scenario ripped from any child's wildest dreams: finding the world's most powerful superhero's lair under your home. The kicker? Charlie (Walker Scobell) finds out the hero is his own father (Wilson), but when baddies attack, the tween and his friends must fight back.

Written and directed by Joh Ridley (12 Years A Slave) and Carlton Cuse (Lost), this harrowing and visually stunning eight-part miniseries explores what happened when 45 people died at a New Orleans hospital in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Based on the book by journalist Sheri Fink, the unflinching drama stars Vera Farmiga (pictured).

Director Dan Trachtenberg has crafted a terrifying prequel to the Predator franchise. This new, merciless instalment steps back in time to 1719 in the Comanche Nation, where young warrior heroine Naru (Legion's Amber Midthunder, pictured) must protect her tribe when a hi-tech creature hellbent on killing infiltrates their land.

ALONE: FROZEN

Is US $500,000 enough compensation for spending 50 days alone with limited supplies in the snow-covered Canadian wilderness? The Alone franchise doubles down on the survival genre in this sub-zero spin-off as six veterans of the self-filmed reality-TV competition return for more misery in an unforgiving landscape teeming with polar bears.

2022 Garden competition

With the weather this week beginning to show the faintest hint of spring, I thought it would be a good time to encourage potential garden competition entrants to begin preparing for this year's competition.

Barcaldine Regional Council, Blackall Tambo Regional Council and Boulia Shire Councils are all conducting garden competition this year.

A couple of months ago I posed the question to Cindy Capoy Morgan of Blackall Tambo Regional Council about what are the top five flowering annuals excluding Petunias for a Western garden, these were her suggestions.

5. Salvias — these splendid plants, native to Brazil, could be classed as a busy perennial with vividly coloured flowers.

They need little in the way of maintenance provided, they do not need much sun, and have good drainage.

There are many striking colours such as Blaze of Fire and Bonfire and they would be perfect for a garden competition display.

4. Vinca — are very hardy and should grow well in Western Queensland, as long as the garden soil is friable, well-drained, and has organic matter such as compost or well-rotted manure mixed in it.

One of the best varieties of Vinca to look for is Dynasty, which has a mix of five colours, burgundy, coral, light and dark pink, and red

3. Snapdragons —undoubtedly one of the best known of all annual plants because of their unique flower, they can make a brilliant flowering feature in most gardens.

They are best suited to a sunny, well-drained position.

One of the best varieties of Snapdragon to look for is Excalibur.

Handy Hint: Snapdragons can be cut back after the first flowering to enable a further flush of blooms.

2. Pansies — while pansies have been grown in Australian gardens for many years, the introduction of new hybrids such as Giant Butterfly, Swiss Giant, Waterfall, and Whiskers can give a kaleidoscope of colour around your garden.

It is always best to position a garden of pansies where they have protection from the hot afternoon sun when they are in flower, and they should always be away from the roots of large shrubs or trees, which will reduce their floral display.

1. Impatiens — these are also known to many gardeners as Balsams or Busy Lizzies, and would you believe that there are around 450 varieties around the world?

Impatiens will be available in pink, red, and white flowers, and will grow just as well in pots and hanging baskets as they will in the ground, as long as you give them plenty of water.

Impatiens will brighten up a shady corner in a Western garden and will always have a stunning display.

One of the toughest varieties of Impatiens is the Impatiens Swing keep an eye out for this one in your local nursery.

WEEKS TO GARDEN COMPETITIONS

For many Garden competition entrants, this time of the year means adding finishing touches to gardens that have been worked in all year round, but for many others who are not quite so dedicated, now is the time to begin sprucing up your potentially prize-winning garden.

However, pruning and fertilising the week before judging will not make a prize-winning garden.

With just a little time and effort, combined with the right advice, you could turn your very average garden into a beautiful landscape that even a professional gardener would be proud of.

To help you begin, here is a list of what judges can look for in a winning garden

1. Layout and design — consider the convenience of people's movements and viewing.
2. Health and hygiene — weed control, insects, pests, diseases, general condition of plants.
3. Cultural practices — mulching, ground cover cultivation, fertilising, and compost heap.
4. General appearance — the overall visual impact and atmosphere of the garden.
5. Variety of plant species — good distribution of flowering time, etc, and species suitable to our climate.
6. Convenience and maintenance — bed edging, lawns, water taps, irrigation, problem slopes, corners etc.
7. Garden features — pools, furniture, waterfalls, fish ponds, ornaments, etc.

For all of those new or novice gardeners, I would recommend visiting the champion gardens.

As one of the best ways of planning your own championship garden for next year is by learning from someone else's successes or mistakes.

Good luck and happy gardening to all competition entrants!

Impatiens.

Rissmerino breed values

By Farmgate

Producing wool that excites from sheep that thrive in all conditions is the aim of the Rissmann family.

The Queensland-based growers select wools that are soft to touch and bright white with no colour, featuring a deep bold horse-shoe crimp and highly aligned fibres.

Trevor, Linda, Alan, and Kaylee Rissmann operate the Rissmerino Stud at Yelarbon, and will offer 80 rising two-year-old drought hardy, long-bodied, white woollen stud poll rams on Friday, August 12 from 1pm at the Longreach showgrounds.

The auction will be hosted by AWN and LRW Rural and interfaced with FarmGate Auctions.

The family bought the entire draft of 1539 pregnant ewes and 58 sires offered at the first stage of the Well Gully Poll Merino dispersal sale in 2018 and had been selling the resulting rams by private treaty and at their first on-property sale in 2021.

The Well Gully Poll Merinos are running at the Rissmann's property in a 550mm rainfall zone on brigalow-belah clay loam soils.

The adult ewes average 18.5 micron and cutting an average of 6-7kg with a 70 per cent yield.

Co-principal Alan Rissmann said the family aimed to breed dual-purpose poll Merinos with the ability to thrive in the harsh environment while producing soft, white and breathable wool able to resist fleece rot and fly strike.

Mr Rissmann said the stud focuses on drought-hardy, easy-care sheep with lustrous white wool backed by comprehensive data collection.

"We want great wool on an animal which doesn't require much looking after," he said.

"We select for a good crimp definition as a good indicator of highly aligned fibres.

Mr Rissmann said the stud focuses on drought hardy, easy care sheep with lustrous white wool and backed by comprehensive data collection.

"If the fibres are evenly spaced and well aligned, there is nowhere for that moisture to get caught and trapped, and it doesn't provide an environment for flies and bacteria to breed causing flystrike and fleece rot.

"The softness of wool is another indicator of highly aligned fleece resistant to flystrike and fleece rot."

This allows for non-mulesed sheep.

No sheep have been mulesed at Rosedale since 2006.

Mr Rissmann said fertility was a key profit driver within the stud, with a 135 per cent marking based on ewes joined including maidens.

Although the flock experienced significant fly and worm pressure from 450mm of rain between October and December, the AI ewes scanned at 148 per cent, AI backup ewes at 113 per cent, stud maidens at 124 per cent, and commercials including maidens at 145 per cent.

"The sheep were close on full wool running in tall grass and didn't dry out for three months — there was no treatment but less than 5 per cent were flyblown around the crutch," he said.

"Those treated were culled and we have been left with a very fly-resistant flock of ewes.

"Having good quality wool is a key part of not having flystrike issues."

The balanced breeding program takes into account positive fat and eye muscle depth to increase fertility, lamb survival, lamb growth rates, the number of lambs sold, eating quality and value of surplus ewes.

An early maturing animal results in high weaning weights and a smaller, efficient adult ewe.

"We focus on early growth, high fat and muscle — we are not trying to produce 70-80kg ewes but want our ewes to reach 55-60kg at a younger age," Mr Rissmann said.

"Early maturity is linked to fertility as it allows producers to get their lambs to a saleable weight quickly.

"The biggest loss of lambs, aside from the first two days of their life, is around weaning time, so fast-growing lambs with the ability to get through weaning comfortably will reduce losses, increase welfare and lift profitability."

Rissmerino sheep are backed by comprehensive data collection, with all lambs running together until 11 months of age while collecting fleece, carcase, weight and visual data.

"We use ASBV's to select for genetically superior sheep, not just the ones who look the best on the day," Mr Rissmann said.

"Fleece test information is used to generate accurate ASBV's but this year we collected preshearing data, so the sheep were drafted up into micron lines at shearing time.

"We ended up with a bale of sub-15-micron wool and two of 15.5 microns.

"With the fine wool micron premiums being so high currently, this will be a great return on investment."

Mr Rissmann said Rissmerino sheep were bred for feed efficiency on lower quality pastures in an arid environment.

"You don't have to spend money and time feeding them — nobody loves feeding sheep," he said.

"Indications are high levels of fat cover on a sheep gives better whole-body energy allowing them to grow better quality wool and meat.

"They gain energy reserves while there is green grass and when it dries off, they can use those energy reserves to survive through the dry periods."

Mr Rissmann said the family chose to interface their ram sale with the digital selling platform FarmGate Auctions following the success of the 2021 on-property sale.

"FarmGate Auctions was invaluable to us last year with one-third of our rams making more money because of the online bidding," he said.

"Digital selling is essential these days and allows people on busy schedules to join the auction at any time."

The Rissmann family will hold a free workshop on their property featuring guest speaker Dr Mark Ferguson, NeXtGen Agri, on September 28.

The Farm Fit Ewes workshop comprises four intensive learning modules covering the genetics of ewes that are farm fit, the nutrition required to keep those ewes fit, the business strategies required to stay fit and the management options to help growers run a fit business.

More breeding ewes reported for spring to MLA

By Meat & Livestock Australia

Australian sheep producers have reported a total breeding flock of 42.5 million head, an increase of 500,000 ewes since last year, according to Meat & Livestock Australia (MLA) and the Australian Wool Innovation's (AWI) Wool and Sheepmeat Survey Report for June 2022.

MLA and AWI's Wool and Sheepmeat Survey, run three times a year, collects sheepmeat industry livestock numbers and lamb production expectations. Production and producer intentions are regularly monitored to generate better forward-looking information that allows producers to make the most efficient decisions, with the results of these surveys forming the basis of MLA's Industry Projections.

Merinos accounted for 72 per cent of the total breeding ewe flock.

Merino breeding ewes were further divided into Merino ewes for purebred Merino production and Merino ewes for crossbred production and 'other' Merinos, accounting for 51 per cent, 19 per cent, and 2 per cent of the merino flock, respectively.

There were 22 million lambs on hand reported by Australian producers.

Merinos made up 55 per cent of the total lamb flock, at 12 million head, followed by First Cross and Pure Meat lambs (accounting for 19 per cent and 17 per cent of the national lamb flock respectively).

The breeding ewe population was largest in the Great Southern region of Western Australia at 5.6m, Central West NSW at 5.0m and Southeast NSW at 4.8m. While the number of lambs on hand in the survey was greatest in Central West NSW at 3.1 million.

This was followed by southern WA at around 2.7m head.

According to Ripley Atkinson, Senior Market Information Analyst at MLA, the desire to retain breeding ewe populations stems from stellar growing seasons, particularly in the eastern states.

"Compared to the last survey released in February of this year, 27 per cent of producers surveyed said that they would like to increase their ewe flock, while 60 per cent indicated they would like to retain current numbers," he said.

"The majority of this growth is coming from eastern Victoria, northern NSW and southern Queensland where there have been very wet conditions.

"This demonstrates plenty of confidence in the market with room for growth moving into spring."

A total of 7.3 million lambs were marked in the four months. Merinos accounted for the largest proportion of lambs marked in the past four months at 47 per cent.

First cross breeds and Pure meat account for 28 per cent and 18 per cent, respectively.

While 7.6 million ewes were joined to produce the lambs that were marked in the past four months.

National Merino marking rates were below that of non-merino breeds at 93 per cent and 101 per cent respectively.

A total number of 7.6 million lambs are expected to be sold in the next four months, approximately 34 per cent of the total number of lambs on hand.

Of these: Merino, First cross breeds and Pure Meat are expected to account for 36 per cent, 29 per cent, and 23 per cent of lamb sales respectively.

NSW and Victoria are expected to account for 48 per cent and 18 per cent of total lamb sales over the next four months, with around 5m lambs expected to be on offer in both states.

This is followed by Western Australia and South Australia at 13 per cent and 12 per cent of total lamb sales, respectively.

"With the Bureau of Meteorology forecasting strong seasonal conditions for the eastern states as the new season lambs hit the market, the signs are looking positive for the Australian sheepmeat industry," said Mr Atkinson.

IN BRIEF

China hungry for more

China has shown continuing demand for Australian protein despite its slowing economy and continued lockdowns.

Speaking on a newly-released podcast, Is the Chinese meat market still firing?, Rabobank's Hong Kong-based senior animal protein analyst Chenjun Pan said China's lockdown policies have affected the population's protein consumption habits, with the major short-term change being where people are consuming food.

"In the past, banquets played an important role in rural areas and smaller cities. Because of the lockdowns, the banquets have disappeared, and the number of business events and dinners have also declined," she said.

However, Ms Pan said, Chinese consumers, are continuing to consume animal protein at home and via food delivery – with food delivery services have grown steadily in China through the pandemic.

"The emergence of food delivery services is having a heavy impact on the traditional food service sector in China," she told the podcast.

The trend of "convenience food" was also growing in the Chinese market.

"The categories of ready-to-eat, ready-to-cook and ready-to-heat type convenience foods are booming," she said.

Security measures welcome

The National Farmers' Federation (NFF) has welcomed the release of the National Biosecurity Strategy, describing it as a critical step in safeguarding Australia's farm sector.

NFF President Fiona Simson said the immense pressure on Australia's biosecurity system warranted a clear strategy for the future.

"The NFF called for the development of this strategy in 2020 to give clarity and direction to the system as it responded to a new generation of threats.

"This call was answered by Minister Littleproud in 2021 and we're relieved today to see this in the public domain, and for the real work of enhancing the system to begin.

"This strategy couldn't come at a more critical time. Australia is under siege from a litany of serious pests and diseases.

"A serious biosecurity breach could unravel our plan to become Australia's next $100 billion industry.

"A single breach could devastate our economy, our food system, and our natural environment.

"Every Australian who eats, or who values our beautiful natural places has something at stake here."

Ms Simson said the Strategy would clarify and direct the efforts of Australia's complex biosecurity system.

"The strategy will give clearer purpose and direction to the complex maze of industry and government bodies responsible for biosecurity in Australia," she said.

"This guidance is necessary to move the whole system towards common goals of embracing innovation and technology, deepening partnerships, and improving collaboration."

Ms Simson said the Strategy must be reviewed and updated and importantly it must be reported against.

"It has rightly set some transformational objectives, and governments must be held accountable to make sure they deliver against the plan," she said.

"This strategy must signal the start of a series of important steps—and it has to be executed and implemented in a way that improves confidence and awareness."

'Non-claimant' applications have been made to the Federal Court of Australia (Federal Court) seeking determinations that native title does not exist in the areas described below. The Applicants have non-native title interests in these areas, which are set out in their applications and summarised below.

Under the Native Title Act 1993 (Cth), there can be only one determination of native title for an area. Unless there are relevant native title claims, as defined in section 24FE, over the areas described below on or before 23 November 2022, the areas may be subject to protection under section 24FA and acts may be done which extinguish or otherwise affect native title.

A person who claims to hold native title rights and interests in any of these areas may wish to file a native title claimant application or become a party to the non-claimant application. These may be the only opportunities to have those rights and interests taken into account in the Federal Court's determination. Any other person may also wish to become a party.

If you want to become a party to any of these applications, you must file a Form 5 (Notice of Intention to become a Party) with the Federal Court, on or before 23 November 2022. Further information regarding how to file a Form 5 is available from www.fedcourt.gov.au. After 23 November 2022, you will need to seek leave from the Federal Court to become a party.

For each application, the applicant is the registered lessee of the application area and is seeking a determination that native title does not exist.

Build up to a busy time

We had a total of 32 bowlers turn up for bowls last Sunday with a mix of competition and social games.

The big Men's Championship Triples game was between the new combination of Peter Thurecht, Wayne Lewis, and Trent Shillington up against the wily team of Shawn Ryan, George Kent, and Justin Hunt.

Played over 21 ends the game was close all the way, but Shawn's team had the better of the scorecard leading for all but four ends of the match.

Pete's team got to the lead at 6-4 after seven ends, but Shawn's team struck back and lead until the score was tied up at 15 all with three ends to go.

BOWLS BY BONES

TONY EMSLIE

Shawn's boys went back in front on the next end leading 16-15 going into the penultimate end.

The decisive end of this game was that end when Pete, Wayne and Trent scored a whopping six shots and therefore took a five-shot lead into the last end.

On that last end, there was an outside chance of Shawn sneaking a big score, but his last bowl needed luck which didn't come his way.

Pete's team scored a single shot and took the win by 22-16.

It's the second big win for Peter, Wayne, and Justin who now go on to play Browne, Emslie, and Anderson in the final.

In competition mixed pairs games we saw Tony Barbelier and Cerise Woodfield take a hard-fought win over Paul Emery and Sharon Calligaro. Tony and Cerise lead 10 nil early but got stuck on 10 shots for six ends until the score was tied at 10 all after 11 ends. Tony and Cerise won back control to take the win by 22-17.

A reminder that the Crusty's Memorial weekend is being held on the 20th and 21st of August.

Barefoot bowls/fun day is being held on Saturday with prizes and raffles and a fun afternoon on the green.

Games start at 1.30 with names in by 1pm. Individuals or teams of four can nominate.

Any people not in a team will be put in a team and obviously, bowls will be supplied by the club.

A free burger will be supplied for those that played after the last game.

Call Bones 0407 644 204 or Darcy 0428 582 146 to nominate or contact any member of the committee.

Some words long remembered and not easily undone

Events of the past week have made me think of incidents of the angry parent syndrome during my time in sport.

Ricky Stuart was banned and fined this week over his comments about Penrith player Jaeman Salmon. An ugly incident during the last Canberra verse Penrith NRL game sparked Stuart to bring up memories of when Salmon played football with his son in the Under 12s, over a decade ago.

I do not know what happened all those years ago, but Ricky was clearly upset by it and has hung onto those memories.

Unfortunately, he went about venting those in an inappropriate way and is suffering the consequences.

My earliest memory of an ugly parent incident was at an Under 12s cricket game. I had opened the batting, and did ok; my Dad had reacted in his usual positive way even though I hadn't got a standout score.

Replacing me at the crease was a young boy named David. Talented, nice kid, he proceeded to tear the opposition apart in a brutal display of great cricket shots.

I remember sitting there wishing I could have just one of his shots, as he peppered the ball all over the ground for a stunning 100, a big feat in a shortened junior game. After he got to a 100 he played a loose shot. Was he bored, tired, or as in most 11-year-olds he might have lost concentration. After he came off the field his Dad grabbed his arm and took him a short distance away, not far enough that we couldn't hear the abuse being hurled at the poor kid.

It got to the point that my Dad, the team manager, had to go over and have a quiet word.

I remember the car trip home was quiet, I hope my Dad knows how much I appreciated his support during my sports career.

These memories are clearly still there with me, but they were triggered more by the positivity I have seen in my recent time in sport.

As I listened to the radio on the drive back from the Under 11 hockey competition in Mackay, all I could think of was what a great experience Alex and I had had over the weekend.

Now a Dad, I want Lloyd Junior to do well, as I do for all the kids I coach and have involvement in sport, but the lifelong memory of their enjoyment during their formative years in Longreach.

Trials test best young talent

By Sahlie Kohmndi-Diggins

It was a successful day for cricket in the Central West.

Boys 10-12 years old came from all around the region to trial in hopes of making the team that trial for North-West at the end of the month.

Students from Longreach, Winton, Blackall, and Barcardine schools all came together at the Longreach Showgrounds to trial.

Mr Ashley Boyd set out a range of different fielding drills to test the boys and give them the opportunity to show their skills.

The students were demonstrating their catching, stopping, communication, and teamwork abilities in these drills.

The boys then had the opportunity to bowl and bat in the cricket nets.

From these trials, eleven boys were selected to take to the next stage in trialling for the North-West team at the end of August.

Thanks are to be given to the schools and families that drove their students to Longreach, the staff that ran the trials and Longreach Cricket Association for letting the field, nets, and equipment be used for the trials.

Without these people, the trials would not have been able to happen.

Good luck to boys who will be trialling for the North-West.

Netball rounds heat up in readiness for finals clashes

By Longreach Netball Association

Great games were played on the netball court as teams move closer to finals with only two rounds left to go.

A really close game was between Fury and Stormbirds coming down to the last quarter.

Standouts for the match included Suzi Gunn (Fury) and Renee Silvestro (Stormbirds) who played very strong defensive games.

Our juniors have also continued to improve across the season—with a number of our junior players travelling to Emerald this weekend.

We wish them all the best!

Results for 04.08.2022

Magpies into the big game

By Michael R Williams

You would be forgiven for thinking this year would be tough for the evidentially resilient Magpies.

For the beginning of this decade and much of the last, the Blackall Magpies have been in the grand final or have won it.

Yet, at the beginning of this year, they were at a crisis point, the team was struggling to find new blood to field a team.

And here they are, once again, in the grand final, setting up for the youngest team in the comp versus the oldest.

Club president Bevan Hauff said it was nothing new for the club to struggle to gain players.

“We had an emergency meeting at the start of the season and at one point we had made the decision we weren’t going to play,” he said.

“Then a couple of days later a few boys had a think about it and put their hands up.

“Now here we are—we knew we had the nucleus of a good side, but we didn’t want to start the season and have to pull out halfway.”

Mr Hauff said it was due to the experienced roster that his side continues to focus on defence.

“We’ve been on top of the tree for the last few years, and in those years we built our strategy around defence,” he said.

“Keep tackling and they can’t score.

Mr Hauff said it was also a testament to his opposition who faced a similar start to the season.

“Barky comes with youth and that can make them unpredictable,” he said.

“Obviously we all know Barky has a few talented footballers.

“But we look after ourselves—make sure our defence is right and minimise mistakes, it’s not rocket science.”

Mr Hauff congratulated all the teams for a good competition.

“The gap between the top and the bottom isn’t as large as it once was,” he said.

“We’ve had some great clashes with Longreach.

Mr Hauff also wished a speedy recovery for central west football enthusiast Viv Johnson.

Major upset for finals

By Michael R Williams

At the beginning of the season, both this year's grand finalists were unsure whether they were going to even field a team let alone make the grand final.

Yet after dirge and hard work, they have both managed to edge out competition favourites the Longreach/ Ilfracombe Tigers to make it to the big game.

Captain/ Coach Mannix Hunt said he was not fazed when the club held the emergency meeting at the start of the season when the club was short players.

"We didn't have that many numbers at the start, but when the season started going more people started wanting to play," he said.

"It was only a matter of time.

"But it's always a dream to be in the grand final."

Mr Hunt said the Sandgoannas have a fairly well-sized team of 22 players now.

"My old man, he knew a bit about how this works," he said.

"At the start of the year he said most clubs can struggle to generate numbers, but after a few games they [players] start to roll in."

Mr Hunt said early difficulties were a motivation for the team.

"We just wanted to do our best," he said.

"We wanted to win and we wanted to be in that grand final. The boys all dug deep and made it happen."

Going into the semi-final, Mr Hunt said he knew his team were in with a chance.

"We weren't either overconfident or underconfident going in," he said.

"It's just another game of footy."

Going into the grand final Mr Hunt said he and his team will keep the same mindset.

"We've bonded really well as a team," he said.

"I'm really proud of the boys."
