Hold onto your fillings Winton the Royal Flying Doctor Service is in town all this week and next.

Arriving on Tuesday, the RFDS’ fully equipped mobile dental surgery is in Winton until 4 November.

The RFDS dental team will be on the ground to provide vital oral healthcare services to the local community.

RFDS Principal Dentist, Stevie Dilley, said getting out into Queensland’s rural communities is her favourite part of the job.

“For many people, going to the dentist can be a scary experience - particularly if it’s their first time, so we always ensure patients feel comfortable and at ease when they visit the mobile surgery,” Dr Dilley said.

“It’s a privilege to be a part of the RFDS Dental Service and to be able to provide vital dental care for people in outback communities.”

The editor's desk

Looking at the dedication and hard work put in by our local dancers, I can't help but be deeply impressed.

While a lot of us only get to see the final product, as a former acting student, I know full well the effort required to create something worthy of the stage.

Leonardo Da Vinci when asked how he achieved his many creative goals in life, he replied, "ostinato rigore" or "stubborn rigor".

I think our local dancers deserve recognition for their stubborn rigor, surely.

There is no more important skill for a young person to learn than the rewards effort over time can bring you.

This 'local' favourite is ready to thrill

By Melissa Coleman

Rodeo enthusiasts turn their attention to the south of the state this week, with the running of the Warwick rodeo.

Warwick cowboy Mitch Eastwell has his eye firmly focused on the APRA National finals this year.

He is the local favourite to beat in the roping events and with a record number of entries for all events at the Warwick Rodeo and Campdraft this year he's definitely one to watch.

Mitch said Warwick is a huge rodeo and it attracts the best in the country.

"You have to be on your game to win it because you're mixing with the best."

And the way to do that Mitch says is to focus and don't think too far ahead.

However the APRA National finals are happening two weeks after the Warwick Rodeo and Campdraft.

With the top 15 competitors going head to head for four rounds.

The winner will be crowned Australian champion for 2022

In the past Mitch has won the National Rodeo Association all round title, the sports star award and was awarded the Senior Sports Star of the year and adds to these titles nearly every year.

He won the Mount Isa Rodeo calf roping event and all rounder in 2018 and is looking to add more to his mantle.

Housing fast-track

By Michael R Williams

The recent housing summit held in Brisbane brought interest groups from across the state to discuss the current housing crisis.

Chair of RAPAD Mayor Tony Rayner said one of the outcomes of the event was 10 new houses to be built for Queensland Health and 10 duplexes to be built along Wompoo Road.

"This housing summit that's just occurred in Brisbane as the Chair of RAPAD was focussed on identifying what are the challenges in the housing sector and what are the solutions and opportunities," he said.

"To reflect the importance of this situation, the Premier was in attendance, as well as, the Deputy Premier, the Treasurer, and the Federal Housing Minister, Julie Collins also spoke.

"One of the first announcements made was in relation to the Housing Investment fund being lifted to $2 billion—that's an additional $1 billion that has gone into that pool."

Cr Rayner said development for new housing is to be fast-tracked after the meeting.

"So the day was spent with many people from various parts of the State and people from different industries, talking about their various challenges and their solutions," he said.

"Coming out of this will be some policy initiatives that will help fast-track development and housing that will help address the issues with both houses and rentals.

"Longreach, as are many towns in regional Queensland, is going to be a beneficiary with 10 additional government employment housing homes for Queensland Health.

"So we know that we're getting those.

"We also know, we will be getting four duplexes for social and community housing on Wompoo Rd."

Cr Rayner said more allocations for funding will be given in the coming years to address the problem.

"We're aware of existing allocations, and there will be more in the future based on budget proportioning from the State Government and needs analysis," he said.

"Part of the outcome was the commitment to take a land audit as well, so that's a land audit of unallocated land that means State land or Council land that is just sitting idle that could be available to housing development.

"That's a great initiative.

"There are also a number of policy changes that will benefit to access to housing."

To emphasise the point, Cr Rayner said the Diamantina Shire Council was given a quote of $950,000 for a two-bedroom house.

"They were seeking three two-bedroom houses, each costing that amount," he said.

"That highlights the extreme cost that both communities and councils are facing when developing housing.

"But the decisions made at the summit will help drive investment into both social and affordable housing."

Responder reform package

A sweeping reform package was unveiled this week for Queensland's frontline responders includes a record increase to the budget for our SES volunteers.

The government's reforms include a $400 million investment over four years that will deliver nearly 500 extra frontline personnel.

This investment will also grow the SES annual budget of $60 million per year, up from the current baseline of $23 million.

That will mean more SES personnel and more resources, including crucial safety equipment, vehicles and vessels, and more support for councils for certain expenses, like operational vehicle maintenance and fuel.

To oversee these reforms, the Palaszczuk Government will stand up a Reform Implementation Taskforce, led by State Disaster Coordinator, Deputy Police Commissioner Steve Gollschewski.

The Taskforce will work closely with all stakeholders, including local councils, to ensure the required changes will be undertaken in a measured, consistent and cohesive way.

Independent Fire Department

The State Government is set to establish a dedicated, stand-alone Queensland Fire Services Department.

The Fire Services Department will incorporate existing Fire and Rescue Service personnel and resources.

But in addition, the Rural Fire Service will be hosted within the new department, as a separate entity with its own dedicated budget. The reform package includes a significant boost in funding and personnel. There will be an additional 143 firefighter positions for Fire and Rescue operations, bringing the total commitment of the Government to an additional 500 firefighter positions over six years from July, 2020. The Rural Fire Service entity will get a resources boost with more than 100 extra positions and funding for new appliances, facilities and equipment.

Tourism Inquiry Launched

The Joint Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade, has launched an inquiry into Australia's tourism and international education sectors, with a focus on the operation of both sectors in the post COVID-19 world.

"Both the tourism and international education sectors have contracted substantially since the emergence of COVID-19," Trade Subcommittee chair, Senator Deborah O'Neill commented. "The Committee looks forward to understanding how both sectors can be best supported so they can be positioned as key contributors to the post COVID-19 recovery of Australia's economy."

The Committee will also consider the effectiveness of recent tourism campaigns overseas and how Australia can support tourism in the Asia Pacific region. In relation to international education, the Committee is interested in hearing about innovations in the delivery of online education to strengthen the sector's resilience. "We encourage a broad range of stakeholders in the tourism and international education sectors from across the country to share experiences about transitioning into the post COVID-19 period," said Senator O'Neill.

Submissions from interested individuals and organisations are invited by Monday, 12 December 2022. The preferred method of receiving submissions is by electronic format lodged online using a My Parliament account.

Sweet support in cupcakes for a cause

To raise funds for the Western Breast and Prostate Cancer Support Group, local bank, Westpac sold pink cupcakes to willing customers.

"It started about 25 years ago and there became a need for a support group as many people were being diagnosed with breast cancer at the time," said Representative of Western Breast and Prostate Cancer Support Group Helen Barrett.

"It's only been in the last six years that we have had people with prostate cancer become involved as the Breast Cancer Society of Queensland - who manage the funding - decided to bring include prostate cancer as an ailment they support.

"We give grants to newly diagnosed people with breast or prostate cancer."

Ms Barrett said despite the ground the group covers, there are light on members.

"We're very thin on the ground," she said.

"I became a member in 2010 when I was diagnosed with breast cancer—it was an automatic membership.

"It's a long hard road, currently, there is Sharon Rose, Helen Morton, and Wendy Brown.

"We cover the Central West region, Alpha to Winton and Murrumbidgee to Windorah."

Ms Barrett said the group was well funded for their endeavours.

"We don't have to do too many events because of our generous communities, every year, Western Barrels has an event which raises most of the funding we need," she said.

"Being October and breast cancer awareness month it was nice to be approached by Mai and her team at Westpac bank to see if we could participate in any way."

Mai Cameron and Helen Barrett are looking for support for the Western Breast and Prostate Cancer Support Group.

Longreach Westpac Branch Manager Mai Cameron said charity was a part of the culture at Westpac.

"We're doing it because we all know someone who has been affected by breast cancer," she said.

"It's quite prevalent in our community, and it is important we continue to be involved with the community.

"We're always doing things that include community involvement like Meals on Wheels."

"Helen and her team do an amazing job in the community."

Sleeves rolled up for Vinnies

By Michael R Williams

While the “sleeping” part of this year’s Vinnies sleep out was cancelled, many of the evening’s events were enjoyed by the Our Lady’s Catholic School students.

Assistant Principal of Religious Education at Our Lady’s Catholic School Elise Leahy said the change from a sleepover to a series of activities had to occur due to the representative from St Vincent de Paul being caught out from the rain.

“She only told us a couple of days ago which was really unfortunate due to recent weather events,” she said.

“Because of that, Peter [Thurecht, Our Lady’s Catholic School Principal] and I decided it would be best to keep it to the activities.

“The sleepout - or the ‘sleep afternoon’ - has been all about raising awareness and funds for the homelessness crisis in Australia currently.”

Sleepouts are an event that can be organised in order to raise funds and awareness around homelessness.

“It’s about giving those kids an understanding about what homelessness is like and who it’s affected by,” Ms Leahy said.

“The usual plan is we had activities planned around homelessness awareness, followed by a movie as the kids were getting ready to go to bed.

“The kids instead will be participating in three main activities: the first is having a discussion about what is a home and what it means to be homeless.

“Then thinking about what it means to be homeless, it’s not one type of people and there is a vast variety of people who may be experiencing homelessness.

“The majority of our kids here have a healthy and safe home they live in—we want to open their eyes to the fact that not everyone, including some in our community, have that.”

Ms Leahy said any school can organise a sleep out just be visiting the St Vincent de Paul website.

“We’ve done this many years in a row now,” she said.

“We’re definitely going to continue to do this into the future.”

New exhibition at QFOM

By Michael R Williams

A new exhibition has hit the Qantas Founders Outback Museum with a theme of Australian during the space age.

Senior Curator at the Qantas Founders Outback Museum Sarah Johnson said it was a touring exhibition from the National Archives of Australia in Canberra, and the museum had a really great connection with NAA, hosting a number of their touring exhibitions before.

“And they do a fantastic job of developing exhibitions for all Australians, they’re really passionate about pushing great shows like that out to the regions.

“This show is focussing on Australia in the space age—1950s to the 1970s period.”

Ms Johnson said the exhibition fit in with the aesthetics of the museum dedicated to aviation.

“We selected the show because, being a museum about flight, aviation and all the cultural associations that come with that like fashion and design—this seemed like a perfect combination with that because airforce and airlines and outer space go hand-in-hand,” she said.

“These are stories that people of all generations can connect with.

“People who might have a living memory of shows like Mr Squiggle or Doctor Who will connect—but there might be a new generation who may not have heard of Mr Squiggle and may enjoy learning about that or might enjoy learning about the Woomera rocket ranges and also the implications of that for the First Nations peoples on country.

“Another interesting display is a letter written by a young girl to then Prime Minister Harold Holt about her worry of UFOs, saying she’s worried about strange things in the sky and people disappearing.

“She then got a dry letter back stating ‘everything can be explained logically, no need to worry.’“

Ms Johnson said the exhibition will stick around until April next year.

“There is a lot of material here, so you do need to take your time, and maybe even come back,” she said.

Ms Johnson said thank you to the team who helped organise the exhibition.

CWA celebrates birthday

Hundreds of women from all over Queensland will meet in Toowoomba this week to celebrate 100 years of service to Queensland. The Queensland Country Women's Association (QCWA) Annual Conference will be held at the Empire Theatre, beginning with the Official Opening Ceremony at 8.30 am on Monday 31 October. Members and delegates - representing thousands of Queensland women - will attend to plan the way forward for another year.

The Gala Dinner at Picnic Point will be a special event, not only celebrating a year of hard work, fun and friendships, but the opportunity to reflect on 100 years of visionary women who have supported each other, addressed needs in their communities and brought social and safety issues to the attention of Government.

Country Women are practical and hands on. Their skills, work ethic, care and pride in a good job well done are legendary. Ladies look forward to sharing and learning skills. Demonstrations and workshops will run over two days, focussing on cooking, handcraft, patchwork, floral art, knitting and crochet, sewing and Country Kitchens nutritious food and healthy lifestyle program. Participants will take new skills and renewed enthusiasm back to their communities as QCWA is experiencing a resurgence of interest in practical skills across the State.

There is serious work to be done on day three. Each year QCWA members identify improvements to the running of the association and of social and safety issues. In the past these have led to many positive outcomes such as the wearing of seatbelts and helmets. Members located in rural and regional towns and cities are well placed to highlight issues requiring Government action.

Flying in to drill down

Hold onto your fillings Winton the Royal Flying Doctor Service is in town all this week and next.

Arriving on Tuesday, the RFDS' fully equipped mobile dental surgery is in Winton until 4 November.

The RFDS dental team will be on the ground to provide vital oral healthcare services to the local community.

RFDS Principal Dentist, Stevie Dilley, said getting out into Queensland's rural communities is her favourite part of the job.

"For many people, going to the dentist can be a scary experience - particularly if it's their first time, so we always ensure patients feel comfortable and at ease when they visit the mobile surgery," Dr Dilley said.

"It's a privilege to be a part of the RFDS Dental Service and to be able to provide vital dental care for people in outback communities."

The RFDS Dental Service operates from a purpose-built mobile dental surgery and features state-of-the-art equipment, including an OPG machine. Patients have access to a range of services such as oral health maintenance, X-rays and extractions, treatment for acute or pre-existing conditions and treatment for gum disease.

RFDS (Queensland Section) Chief Executive Officer Meredith Staib said the RFDS Dental Service is an important extension to the aeromedical retrieval and primary health care services provided by the Flying Doctor.

"Regular dental check-ups are so important for the overall health but, Queenslanders in rural and remote locations often have to travel a long way to visit the dentist, which can mean taking time off work or school, and time away from home," Ms Staib said.

"By bringing our mobile dental surgery to communities like Winton, the RFDS Dental Service helps to bridge this gap, ensuring people have access to a dentist and dental services on a regular basis, close to home."

The RFDS Dental Service has delivered dental care for nearly 10 years to communities across regional, rural and remote Queensland.

In the past 12 months, the state-of-the-art mobile dental surgery has travelled to 20 towns and RFDS dental teams have treated more than 1,700 patients.

For more information about the RFDS Dental Service, patients can call 1800 002 507. To find out where the RFDS mobile dental surgery is travelling to next, head to rfd.co/oralhealth.

Federal Maranoa MP David Littleproud.

Littleproud laments budget

The Albanese Labor Government has broken the hearts of regional and rural families in its first Budget according to Nationals Leader and member for Maranoa David Littleproud.

Commenting after the budget announcement Mr Littleproud said Prime Minister Anthony Albanese promised if he won government, there would be "no one held back, no one left behind".

However he said in Labor's first Budget, the 30 per cent of Australians who live in regional and rural areas have been held back and left behind in three key areas - cost of living, childcare and infrastructure.

Mr Littleproud said the drastic increases in grocery bills were man-made by Labor and the Budget would make the average family worse off by at least $2000 by Christmas.

"Groceries are eight per cent higher, not just because of natural disasters, but also by a Labormade disaster in scrapping the AgVisa," he said.

"Supply has been slashed because farmers and processors are only working at around 60 per cent capacity, which has put prices up at the checkout."

Mr Littleproud said Energy prices are already up 20 per cent this year and predicted to increase by a further 30 per cent next year, while the $275 promised by Labor to reduce electricity bills is now gone. "Interest rates have already gone up and are predicted go up a further 75 basis point under Labor, which is ripping hundreds of dollars out of households each month," he said.

"Every time Australians get their grocery receipt, their power bill or mortgage statement, they should see Anthony Albanese's face on it, because he's the one who is costing them more."

He said Childcare Labor's Budget has clearly turned its back on families desperate to find regional and rural childcare places.

Mr Littleproud said while the Treasurer announced $4.7 billion in childcare measures, he couldn't create one new additional childcare place, leaving regional and rural families no better off.

"Childcare affordability is not the main issue for regional families - accessibility is. "The Nationals warned the government at the Jobs and Skills summit and because they didn't listen regional women, in particular, have been left behind."

Mr Littleproud said regional and rural families had a right to feel heartbroken. "Labor said it was a family-friendly Budget but only if you live in a capital city."

"This is not the Australian way. This is not what we were promised." Infrastructure Labor's Budget has ripped regional Australia's future from them, by taking away the tools they need to grow and produce Australia's food and fibre."

Bells ring for e-scooter reforms: State steps in on ride

The first wave of the Palaszczuk Government’s e-scooter reforms have been revealed.

Applying to e-scooters, e-skateboards and other personal mobility devices, the reforms include speed limit reductions, new fines and mandating warning bells.

Transport and Main Roads Minister Mark Bailey made no apologies for cracking down on reckless e-scooter use.

“The fact of the matter is that many people who use e-scooter are doing the right thing – they are an easy, convenient and environmentally friendly way to get around,” Mr Bailey said.

“From November 1, these new rules will be in effect. We have flagged that these changes have been in the pipeline, so users have had plenty of notice.

“We want every person who uses our footpaths, bikeways and bike lanes to be safe from harm, and these reforms go a long way in tightening the Queensland road rules around this new technology.”

The changes include:

- Reducing speed limits to 12kmh on footpaths and shared paths, unless otherwise signed. (The 25kmh limit on all other infrastructure, including bike infrastructure and local streets remains).
- Increasing fines of up to $1078 for dangerous offences involving speed, illegal road use and holding a mobile phone while riding.

- Allowing PMDs to be ridden in bike lanes on roads with a speed limit of 50kmh or less, and all on-road bike lanes which are physically separated.
- Mandating bells for PMDs with handlebars.
- Aligning PMD riders with bike riders to ensure they are required to follow general road rules, such as stopping at red lights.

Mr Bailey said one of the biggest changes was a tiered increase to speeding fines, similar to what is used for bikes and motor vehicles to better reflect the risks of increased speeds.

“Speeding fines will range from $143 to $575 depending on how far over the speed limit you are travelling,” he said.

“This reflects the danger posed to those around you, and reflects a suitable deterrent to minimise the risk of reoffending.

“All these changes have been developed in close consultation with key stakeholders, including riders, rental and retail suppliers, police, RACQ, Bicycle Queensland, local councils and disability advocates.

“E-scooters are here to stay and their riders have an equal responsibility to road safety as motorists, cyclist, truck drivers and motorcyclists. It’s important they’re safe for the riders and those they interact with on our footpaths and roads.”

Stricter laws for e-scooters have been introduced by the Queensland Government.

Ladies make pilgrimage

More than 250 women from across country Queensland and North-West New South Wales made the annual pilgrimage to Windorah for the ninth annual Channel Country Ladies Day.

It was a chance to chill out in the Barcoo Shire of the weekend, recharge the batteries and raise funds for the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

Channel Country Ladies Day president Di Dowrick said the wet weather leading into the weekend certainly didn't dampen spirits, with women from as far as Rockhampton and Charters Towers enjoying a three-day program including guest speakers, themed events, business and creative workshops, stand-up comedy, beauty, health and hair appointments, plus market stall shopping and fine dining.

"It's wonderful to know that there are now hundreds of women across regional Queensland who are back home now reflecting on their weekend, each who've had a chance to relax, try their hand at something new, got in a shopping fix, listened to some inspiring speakers, done something creative, and have walked away feeling refreshed," explains President Di.

"The Committee are looking forward to doing it all again next year, and we are planning something extra special in 2023."

'Mexican Fiesta' inspired festivities kicked off the weekend on Friday evening with all-female Melbourne based Mariachi Band Queen of Hearts stealing the show early before a comedy set from acclaimed comedian Carolyn Mandersloot, before finishing the night with Toyota Star Award Winner musician Rachael Fahim singing classics and taking song requests late into the night.

The selection of guest speakers, including Queensland MP Deb Frecklington, Jo Capp, Louise Fitzgerald-Baker and rural photographer Al Mabin, flown in on sponsored flight thanks to sponsors Black Truck and Ag Toowoomba, drew big crowds with their stories of courage and resilience, offering insights on finding your voice in the bush, and bridging the city country divide.

Di Dowrick, who is from Charleville, said the feedback coming through already from the weekend was positive, with many expressing gratitude for the abundance of activities on offer, and enquiring about the next instalment in 2023.

"The diversity of services we are able to bring to the event is a big part of why it's so successful," she said.

"We had local beauty therapists on hand to provide massage, nail and hair appointments as well as health service providers, such as the Royal Flying Doctor Service who were with us for the weekend offering advice and referrals. And that's just one element of the weekend."

Sad loss of genuine man

By Suzie C McDarra

One of our most humble givers, Quentin Scott, aged 66, passed away from a sudden heart attack in his backyard on Monday, October 17, not long after saying to his wife Alison, before she left her home visit to return to the Pioneer's Home, "I love you" three times.

Affectionately known as "Scotty", he had been suffering from a kidney infection and leaves behind Alison and daughters Cheryl, Kerry and sons Wes and Barry.

When the sad news reached social media's community pages, the original post by his employer Richard and Marisse Kinnon's "Outback Pioneers" page was flooded with comments, gathering 3800 emojis and 1100 comments from people all over the world who'd experienced Scotty's genuine bush nature.

Scotty's involvement in the tourism industry ended with his most recent role as Barefoot Bush Poet for the Kinnon family for 12 years, and prior to that he'd been with Alan and Sue Smith's Aussie Outback Tours, as well as working as a fireside poet at the Longreach Tourist Park, and as a tour guide at the Longreach Pastoral College and nature walk guide at Iningai Nature Park.

Scotty came to Longreach in 1991 on a transfer from his Brisbane-based Department of Primary Industries (DPI) role of ten years where he was an animal attendant at the Animal Research Institute.

Dr Warren Hoey, Arid Zone Research Institute Director from 1988 – 1996 and former Director General of the DPI, flew to Longreach for the funeral.

"Scotty worked in Animal Husbandry at the DPI in Longreach for about 15 years, but he helped wherever was needed - he was the first person to put up his hand," Warren said.

"He liked people to be doing things and not just talking about airy-fairy stuff so he was very grounding and he wasn't in awe of authority.

"He came in one day and said to me 'you've got a PhD in air conditioning – hot air – why don't you get out and do something,' he laughed.

"He wouldn't shirk the job - nothing could stop him – too hot, no shoes, no problem, he'd just keep on going," Warren said.

Scotty's funeral at the Longreach Civic Centre on Monday morning was a full house with hundreds of people attending.

Perhaps he had such a big heart because he was born with a hole in his heart, which was corrected by open heart surgery when he was about 15 years old.

Scotty's brother-in-law, Nick Olsthoorn, explained in the Eulogy this wasn't his only challenge, when four days prior to his 21st birthday, he was thrown from a horse during a storm and later found choking on his own vomit.

He remained in a coma for six weeks and his family was told he would never walk again.

"They obviously didn't count on this suborn little fellas guts and tenacity," Nick said.

"Years of hard work paid off for him and he could walk again - and it is obvious he never stopped walking again."

During his recovery journey, Scotty said he discovered being barefoot gave him better balance.

Richard Kinnon and family have had associations with Scotty and Alison for 20 years and he was employed with the family tourism business as the star of the river cruise show with his poetry recitals.

"Scotty..." said an emotion-filled Richard, "has been more than a workman for me and my family.

"He's been a mate you could truly rely on.

Richard said Scotty stood by him in the hard times of drought, helping him feed the cattle and get promotional flyers of tours out to the township.

"He was the loyalest little fella I've ever known."

"He was probably, in my eyes, one of the most genuine outback characters we will ever know or ever see, because of his realness and his genuineness.

"I tell you what, we're really going to miss him, the little mate he was," Richard said.

Scotty's generosity of spirit has raised over $8,300 for charities in ten months this year.

Meaghan Scanlon MP meets Quentin Scott and instigators of the Outwest Container Exchange program, Patsy and Jamie Worland.

Hundreds turned out for Quentin Scott's funeral on Monday, October 24 at the Longreach Civic Centre.

Despite his much-loved public persona, Scotty was a humble man, and much of his quiet contribution was his dedicated work for charities. You might miss seeing his white van driving the streets, his hat dipping in a nod to passers-by as he went between the 200 recycling collections points around town on a daily basis.

Rain or shine, Scotty's first run of the day was at dawn and he was home unloading a boot full of bottles and cans by 7.30 am where he would sort and remove lids.

Patsy Worland who co-founded Outwest Container Exchange with husband Jamie through the Containers for Change program said in the ten months of 2022, Scotty had returned over 83,000 items, resulting in $8,300 donated to charities including Longreach Lions Club, Landcare, and Cystic Fibrosis.

"That's a lot of items kept from landfill just by Scotty!"

"Scotty was one of the first people to come in and find out about the Containers for Change program and he's been collecting and returning items two or three times a week since we began in 2019," Patsy said.

"He was very passionate about ensuring they were sorted correctly and people can continue Scotty's legacy to donate to those charities by dropping their items into Outwest Container Exchange – preferably lid free Scotty-style, of course!" Patsy said.

As one of the biggest recipients of Scotty's bottle refund donations, the Longreach Lions Club are feeling the loss.

"He was at any and all Longreach Lions Club events serving, selling Christmas cakes or collecting containers," said President Tylyena Penny.

"The Longreach Lions Club will definitely feel lost without him."

Beloved Barefoot Scotty, you leave us all with big shoes to fill.

Quentin Scott, bucket in hand, after a community clean up at Iningai Nature Park in the late 1990s and early 2000's where he was heavily involved in its establishment and continued as a walking tour guide for many years sharing his broad knowledge of history, flora and fauna.

As Elaine Britton who spoke of Scotty's history said, "There is not enough superlatives to describe this remarkable man", but here's a few we've gathered from the community:

Scotty's closing words, six nights a week, to the Outback Pioneer's boat cruise dinner guests sitting by the banks of the Thomson River were:

"I'll leave you with a little verse, something to remember: Out where the handshakes are a little stronger, out where the smiles last a little longer, that's where the west begins."

Jobs on roadmap

The State Government has released an updated Queensland Advanced Manufacturing Roadmap, to help thousands of manufacturers create good, secure jobs following the release of Queensland's Energy and Jobs Plan.

Minister for Regional Development and Manufacturing Glenn Butcher said updating the 10-year roadmap and action plan at the halfway point was important in the ever-changing global landscape.

"We want to make sure businesses are best placed to be part of Queensland's supply chain in the traditional and new industries that are on the horizon," the Minister said.

"By 2032, it means 70 per cent of Queensland's energy supply will be renewable – taking real action on climate change, now.

"And that means opportunities for even more jobs for Queenslanders.

"We're talking about 100,000 new industrial jobs in hydrogen, renewables, manufacturing and critical minerals.

"Updating our Advanced Manufacturing Roadmap and Action Plan will be critical moving forward.

"Our updated and revised Roadmap now outlines how businesses can work to be a part of Queensland's clean energy revolution, as well as the decarbonisation of our manufacturing sector.

"Manufacturing contributes more than $20 billion a year to the Queensland economy. It's crucial we support this sector and give our competitive, world-leading manufacturers every opportunity to thrive and grow.

"This revised Roadmap will do that."

Minister for Energy, Renewables and Hydrogen Mick de Brenni said the Queensland Energy and Jobs Plan would see more manufacturing brought back to Queensland.

"Queensland's energy transformation is the greatest opportunity in a generation – it's all about powering good jobs in new regional industries, and bringing back manufacturing to our regions," Mr de Brenni said.

Glenn Butcher

"To transform our energy system, we're going to need thousands of batteries, wind towers and blades, solar panels and kilometres of transmission lines.

"We want to seize and de-risk this opportunity by manufacturing as much Queensland-made renewable energy equipment as possible.

"And by applying our Buy Queensland procurement approach through our publicly-owned energy companies, we can increase demand for components that have traditionally been wholly imported, and drive an industrial scale manufacturing revolution."

Minister Butcher said that while the Roadmap and Action Plan retained the direction and vision of the original roadmap, the revised action plan included new strategies and actions for the next five years to respond to emerging issues and new opportunities for our manufacturers.

Informed by engagement with manufacturers around the state and guided by the Manufacturing Ministerial Council, the new Action Plan will focus on five areas to boost Queensland manufacturing:

- Strategy 1: Drive Advanced Manufacturing in Queensland
- Strategy 2: Support manufacturers to grow in a carbon neutral future
- Strategy 3: Support manufacturers to take advantage of large scale and emerging industry and procurement opportunities

- Strategy 4: Increase the participation of women in manufacturing

- Strategy 5: Marketing Queensland Manufacturing.

Mr Butcher said the strategies aligned with the Queensland Government's priority to create good, secure jobs right across the state.

Minister for Employment and Small Business and Minister for Training and Skills Development Di Farmer said making the announcement at successful manufacturing business Idec Solutions is a clear sign the industry is going from strength to strength.

"In order to build everything, we're going to need to execute the Energy and Jobs plan we need the manufacturing workforce and expertise.

"That includes ensuring that we are looking more widely at the potential workforce including bringing women into traditional male jobs.

"Having a ready workforce is essential and this roadmap is going to tell us what we need, where we need it and when.

"Skills and training will be essential, and we already have world-leading training facilities across Queensland and the people graduating programs there will be ready to be employed in the booming manufacturing industry."

Idec CEO Glenn Gibson said the Queensland Government's support for manufacturing was vital for future growth.

"We received a Made in Queensland grant 12 months ago and that enabled us to introduce robotic steel fabrication processes that have helped us to become more competitive for interstate and potential international business.

"Over the past year we have been able to grow our customer base significantly, with strong sales and sharply increasing revenue," he said.

Youth share their vision

By Alayna Fong

Youth across the nation have submitted 90-second speeches to parliament in recent weeks as part of the Raise Our Voice in parliament campaign.

Maranoa MP David Littleproud said he was looking forward to reading the speeches from Maranoa youth, agreeing that this is an important opportunity for young people to have a say in this term of parliament.

"This is their opportunity to outline their visions, their aspirations, their challenges and what they want to see this parliament focus on," Mr Littleproud said.

"It is such a unique opportunity because unless you're an elected member of parliament you don't get to have that voice in parliament which is one of our most revered institutions."

On his recent national tour, Mr Littleproud has heard from young people along the East Coast that education including quality and opportunities, and more support for substance abuse are particularly important right now.

"More support for substance abuse has been a particularly big one, wanting to ensure there are networks on the ground close to where these people are so people can get the support they need.

"It has been quite varying but there is hope and opportunity out there whether it be the Maranoa or right across the country."

Speech submissions closed on 19 October and successful speeches will be presented to the Australian Parliament and the public during Youth Voice in Parliament week from 21-24 November.

Energising new industries and generating new jobs.

Constructing, supplying and maintaining the SuperGrid needed to power Queensland will create thousands of new jobs and business opportunities for our regions. There has already been around $11 billion invested in renewable energy and there's lots more to come. The good news is, we've got a plan.

Storms leave a trail of damage

By Di Stanley, Emerald Today

Ergon crews were kept busy on Monday night after intense storm cells battered the Gemfields, Capella and Rolleston regions.

Power lines were knocked down, shade sails ripped, and trees badly damaged by the fierce winds.

Falls of 11-22mm were recorded, as the day's high of a steamy 34 degrees quickly fell by 10 degrees.

A Bureau of Meteorology warning was in Blackwater shortly before 3pm, but no other alert was issued for towns hit by the wild weather later in the evening.

There was no hail reported in Capella, but traffic was diverted around a downed power line at an intersection until the arrival of an Ergon Energy crew.

A clean-up was underway this morning at the town's caravan park where multiple trees were damaged and branches severed by the storm with people staying at the park pitching in to help.

"Beer o'clock's a tad earlier this evening," one park resident quipped.

"Due to the strong winds Capella experienced overnight, council has opened the Capella Resource Recovery Facility today for residents (until 3pm) to discard any green waste that may have been blown around yards and roads," the Central Highlands council posted.

"It certainly was a freak storm," Paulette Jones posted.

Power was not expected to be restored to Rubyvale and other parts of the Gemfields until late this afternoon.

A intensely powerful storm cell sideswiped Duaringa shortly after 7pm as a line of storms formed to pummel the Capricornia region.

Giant hail up to 10cm was recorded at Mt Larcom, Ambrose and Raglan in yesterday's deluge.

Balonne 'Hub' wins $10,000 bursary

By Maranoa Today

The Balonne Shire Council will receive a $10,000 bursary from Peak Services as winners of this year's Queensland Local Government Association Butch Lenton Memorial Bush Council Innovation Award, contributing further educational opportunities to their higher-education pilot The Hub.

The Hub project was developed by the council in partnership with the Country Universities Centre (CUC) and co-designed by the community to improve educational outcomes and provide opportunities through a multi-faceted dynamic space for the community to learn, ignite ideas, interact and access high-speed internet.

Balonne Mayor Samantha O'Toole said the project is a win on so many levels, tying into Council's vision to grow educational opportunities within the region and for the community to "grow its own" into the future.

"They say it takes a village to raise a child and it shows our future in Balonne is brighter because we are changing our community one student at a time," Mayor O'Toole said.

A panel of judges from across Queensland Local Government was delighted to see an application addressing the needs of the community, collaborating with community and thinking outside the box to find solutions.

"It is certainly always a pleasure to read that a well thought out strategy and subsequent plan provides this sort of outcome. For us in local government that are regularly forced into prioritisation, this is an exemplary application and Balonne and its community should be extraordinarily proud," Central Highlands Regional Council Mayor Kerry Hayes said.

LGAQ chief executive officer Alison Smith said the Country Universities Centres' dedicated learning and study spaces are beneficial resources for remote communities that don't generally have access to traditional education facilities.

"The CUCs are an amazing community asset, and the objective Balonne has set is commendable," she said.

CUC Balonne's 'The Hub' is a Queensland-first low population higher education project that collaborates with local industries, businesses and the Chamber of Commerce within the shire.

It is specifically designed as a three-year pilot with the model to be analysed and refined into an established framework that other

Balonne Mayor Samantha O'Toole at the Local Government of Queensland convention in Cairns after winning the Butch Lenton Memorial award

Australian rural and remote communities can learn from and implement.

The $10,000 Butch Lenton Award bursary will be used to design and develop a community-relevant language literacy and numeracy program to create an entire education ecosystem within the shire and support the tertiary and vocational education pathways that are now available through 'The Hub' facilities.

"As grateful recipients of this award we can start moving forward with our plans, with the goal to provide support to the most vulnerable, isolated and disadvantaged parts of our community and lay the foundation for the transition to employment, promotion or further study," Balonne CUC Chair Matthew Magin said.

Currently, in the second year of the pilot, the project has already surpassed its projected outcomes by over 200 per cent with a total of 127 students registered to use the facilities. 55 per cent of students are over 25 years of age, 43 per cent of students identified as first in the family to undertake tertiary education, and 7 percent of students have First Nations heritage.

Current CUC Bachelor of Sustainability student, Lucy Sevil has grown up 50 kilometres south of Balonne in St George and can't imagine being anywhere else.

"None of this would really be possible without the support and facilities the Country Universities Centre provides," Ms Sevil said.

"I can spend time in St George near my family and spend time with my younger sister who is in Grade 5. I love being able to pick her up from school go to the bakery and get a snack and then go to the library where she can read and I can study at the CUC - these are the things I would miss out on if I had to relocate to the city [for study]."

Ms Sevil has already secured work locally in her chosen field with the Murray Darling Basin Authority and the Department of Climate Change, Energy, Environment and Water.

The Butch Lenton Award recognises innovation in Queensland's bush councils and celebrates the contribution the late Mayor of Winton Shire, Graham 'Butch' Lenton, made to his beloved community of Winton and the local government in Queensland.

Inspector Ben Carroll, Superintendent Glen Pointing and MP Brittany Lauga said the Community Camera Alliance would make the community safer.

CCTV aids the police

By Khrysti Balanay, CQ Today

As a new initiative is launched, the Central Queensland community could play an important role in working with police to solve crimes.

The Community Camera Alliance is a joint initiative between the Capricornia Police District and the Queensland Police Service where residents and businesses can register their closed circuit television (CCTV) online.

The Capricornia Police District Superintendent Glen Pointing said the launch of the Community Camera Alliance would help prevent crime and make the community safer.

"CCTV is fast becoming a crucial investigative tool in modern policing," he said.

"It is envisioned that the Community Camera Alliance would increase the solvability of recorded crime through the early identification of offenders and improve officer efficiency.

"Registrations for the program are voluntary and stored on a pre-existing police database called QPRIME, which is only accessed by authorised members of the QPS.

"If the registering member changes their mind, their details will be removed from the database at any time."

Rockhampton Inspector Ben Carroll said police rely on the goodwill and support of the community when addressing criminal issues, and this initiative would assist even further.

"A couple of months ago, there was a very tragic homicide here in Rockhampton," he said.

"Detectives did a massive amount of footwork where they door-knocked residences and gained CCTV footage.

"That CCTV footage was one of the tools that enabled us to solve that matter fairly quickly and is now before the court.

"That is one simple example of how that can assist us."

Inspector Carroll acknowledged the work of Acting Senior Sergeant Josh White from Rockhampton Forensic Services and Detective Sergeant Kev Mawdsley from the Criminal Investigation Branch for establishing the Community Camera Alliance.

Member for Keppel Brittany Lauga congratulated the partnership and the involvement of both Rockhampton Regional and Livingstone Shire Councils.

"I know the officers have been working on this for some time, and it is great to see the technology being used for crime prevention," she said.

"We have seen body worn cameras and QLiTE devices introduced to Queensland policing in the past few years. I think this opt-in Community Camera Alliance will help improve efficiency in their investigations.

"We know that people are less likely to commit a crime if they think they will be caught, and this is a good way of letting people know they are more likely to be caught."

The registration form for the Community Camera Alliance can be found on the Queensland Police website.

War nurse tribute planned

Are you part of a community group that could do with a financial boost?

The Blackall RSL sub-branch was one of 524 successful recipients in the first Gambling

Community Benefit Fund $100,000 Super Round at the beginning of the year.

The grant will be used to fund the construction of a memorial statue of First World War nurse Sister, Greta Towner.

The (GCBF) was established in 1994 and has distributed more than $1.06 billion to Queensland not-for-profit groups since it began.

Commissioner for Liquor and Gaming Victoria Thomson said this statue is a great way to recognise the contribution Australian women made to the war effort.

“Having strong representation of female role models is essential in striving toward gender equality,” Ms Thomson said.

The group hope to unveil the life-size bronze commemorative statue on Remembrance Day at the Blackall Memorial Park next year.

Ms Thomson said the GCBF is Queensland’s largest one-off grants program.

“This year we have given out grants of between $500 and $100,000 to more than 2,300 of community organisations across Queensland,” she said.

“Your group can benefit too, and I strongly encourage anyone involved in a not-for-profit organisation to hop on to our website and find out about this fantastic funding opportunity.

“We receive applications from a variety of sectors including multicultural and indigenous groups, women and family help services, sporting clubs, and animal welfare organisations to name a few.

“Not-for-profit groups, particularly those located in regional and remote Queensland, are encouraged to apply.”

Support is available for a wide range of projects big and small such as events, facility upgrades, transport and more.

The current round of funding is open until 31 October 2022 with grants of up to $35,000 available.

However, if your group has a big ticket item or project in mind, the $100,000 Super Round opens in January 2023.

“Applying is a simple process and there is plenty of support – online or by phone - to help you with your application,” Ms Thomson said.

“Remember, you are the best advocate for your community, tell us about your project and its benefits in your own words, you don’t need to be a grant writer.”

Origin plans exit strategy

By Karen Simmons

Origin Energy Limited (Origin) has announced an intention to exit its upstream exploration permits in the Beetaloo as the company focuses on its strategy and ambition to lead the energy transition.

In a statement issued September 19, Origin announced it will undertake a strategic review of all remaining exploration permits (excluding its interests in Australia Pacific LNG) with a view to exiting those permits over time.

Origin CEO Frank Calabria said, “We’ve been exploring in the Beetaloo Basin alongside our partner Falcon for eight years, and we’re grateful for the strong support we have received from the local community, including Native Title holders and contractors, as well as the Northern Territory and Federal governments.

“Gas will continue to have an important role in our business, particularly through our interest in Australia Pacific LNG and role as upstream operator in that venture, and in the broader energy mix as we look to underpin reliable energy supply to customers and accelerate our investment into the energy transition,” Mr Calabria said.

Over the years landowners have been fighting to protect the Channel Country landscape from fracking operations.

Origin Energy has the ability to sell its other exploration permits to other energy companies or hand back the sites to the Queensland government.

Chris Zipf, Senior External Affairs and Internal Communication Manager, Corporate Affairs at Origin Energy spoke with the Longreach and Central Western Leader this week and confirmed the company’s transition also includes their permit interests in the Cooper-Eromanga Basin in Southwest Queensland.

Mr Zipf said Origin Energy is currently undertaking a strategic review to enable the exit of these permits over time.

“The exit will enable greater flexibility to allocate capital towards our strategic priorities to grow cleaner energy and customer solutions and deliver reliable energy through the transition,” Mr Zipf said.

Mr Zipf explained it was very much early days with regards to exploration activity in these areas and no drilling or fracking activity had occurred in the eleven permit areas (Near Windorah).

“The granting of these permits by the government gave Origin tenure and the opportunity to explore within a permitted timeframe,” he said. “The nature of exploration is to first determine what resources are in a particular area and whether they are recoverable. This occurs well before any production scenario occurs.”

The community is still divided over the matter, some seeing gas exploration as an opportunity for future jobs growth in the region, while others fear for the health of the Channel Country.

In August 2021 Sheena Gillman of Karana Downs had her petition tabled in Queensland Parliament with 2296 signatures, requesting the prohibition of future development of petroleum and gas exploration in the Channel Country.

Her petition stated: “Queensland residents draw to the attention of the House, the unacceptable risks associated with gas fracking in the Channel Country of Queensland - the flood plains of Kati Thanda-Lake Eyre Basin.

“The Queensland Labor party has a long-standing commitment to review current legislation to ensure the protection of the Channel Country.

“Since Labor was elected in 2015, gas companies have been granted advanced exploration (PCA) over at least 348,066 hectares of Channel Country floodplains - which are mapped under the Qld Regional Planning Interests Act as Strategic Environmental Areas.

“In June 2020 Origin Energy applied for production leases for over 225,000 hectares of Channel Country floodplains.”

Baba Ghanoush

Serves: 4

Prep time: 10 minutes

Cook time: 45 minutes

1 serve per portion

Ingredients:

- 1 eggplant, cut in half length ways
- 2 tablespoons olive oil, extra virgin
- 1 tablespoon tahini
- 1 clove garlic, peeled
- ½ teaspoon smoked paprika
- ½ teaspoon cumin
- 1 lemon, juiced
- Pepper to taste

Method:

- PREHEAT oven to 180°C.
- PLACE eggplant on a baking tray, flesh side up. Score the flesh with a sharp knife and drizzle with one tablespoon olive oil. Be careful not to pierce the skin.

- ROAST the eggplant in the oven for 45 minutes or until soft. Set aside to cool.
- SPOON the eggplant flesh out and discard the skin.
- COMBINE in the eggplant, remaining olive oil, tahini, garlic, paprika, cumin and lemon juice in a blender. Pulse until well combined. Season with pepper.
- SERVE with vegetable sticks or wholemeal pita bread.

Oat Stuffed Capsicum

Serves: 4

Prep time: 15 minutes

Cook time: 35 minutes

Fruit and veg: 3 ½ serves per portion

Ingredients :

- 4 small capsicums, tops removed and deseeded
- ½ cup steel cut oats
- 400g can chickpeas, drained, roughly mashed
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 4 cups baby spinach, coarsely chopped
- 1 tablespoon fresh oregano OR 1 teaspoon dried
- ¾ cup feta cheese, crumbled
- ¼ cup sun-dried tomatoes, chopped
- 1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
- Pepper

Method:

- PLACE capsicums cut-side down in a microwave-safe dish and add ½ inch of water. Cover and microwave on high until just softened, about 7-9 minutes, then set aside to cool.
- BOIL a large saucepan of water then add oats and cook until just tender, about 25 minutes. Drain oats and rinse with cold water.
- HEAT a large frypan over medium heat then add oil. Cook the onion for 5 minutes then add the spinach and oregano to wilt for 1 minute.
- STIR in the oats, chickpeas, ½ cup feta, tomatoes, vinegar and pepper and cook until heated through, about 2-3 minutes.
- DIVIDE mixture among the capsicums and sprinkle with the remaining feta.
- Optional: Grill in oven for a couple of minutes to melt the feta before serving.

Magda's change of heart

Magda Szubanski gets personal for new ABC series Magda's Big National Health Check, using her trademark humour, warmth and honesty to explore how all Australians can begin leading healthier lives, writes Siobhan Duck

FOR as long as she can remember, Magda Szubanski has wanted to make people's lives better.

And over the years that has manifested itself in different ways – from her passionate campaign for marriage equality, through to making people laugh with her iconic performances in Babe, Fast Forward and Kath & Kim.

"All my friends are in the community aid sector – legal aid workers and things like that – that's what my friendship circle is rather than famous people," she explains.

"I mean, of course, I know famous people. I've been around forever.

"But my dad wanted to be a doctor. The war ruined that for him. His mother was a nurse, and my own mother was very nurturing in lots of ways. And having gone to a convent school, there's a big element of social justice that comes from that as well.

"So, wanting the best for people and wanting to help, I don't think there's anything more satisfying than that."

Of course, Szubanski also draws a lot of satisfaction from performance. And she counts Babe's Mrs Hoggett and Kath & Kim's sports-loving optimist Sharon as her proudest comedic creations. Not just because they are the best known, but because of the joy each has brought to so many people.

To this day, the warm and gentle humour of Kath & Kim finds new fans – many of whom were not even born when the permanently permed Kath (Jane Turner) and her sullen daughter Kim (Gina Riley) had their first verbal stoush – on the streaming platform Netflix. While for those who grew up with the characters that Szubanski, Turner and Riley created almost 30 years ago on their sketch comedy series, Big Girl's Blouse, Kath & Kim is a nostalgic reminder of simpler times, like getting a warm hug from an old friend.

Later this month, Channel 7 is airing two specials to mark the 20th anniversary of Kath & Kim's debut. It will feature material that never made it to air and a collection of special guests. While delighted to have spent time with her old pals, Szubanski emphasises that there is no hope of their happy TV reunion extending into a new series. Szubanski doesn't want to try to recapture lightning in a bottle and risk tarnishing the enduring legacy of the show, which still means so much to its fans.

"A young woman came up to me recently, brimming with health, and said: 'I hope you don't mind me saying this, but I had cancer last year and when I had to have chemotherapy my boyfriend bought in Kath & Kim for me to watch just to make me laugh'," she recalls.

"So, first of all, it was that thing about assumptions; you don't know what is going on in people's lives. And secondly, our little comedy show helped this poor young woman get through chemo. And every comedian I know has a similar story."

Best medicine: Left, Magda Szubanski is on a mission to improve the nation's heart health; above, Szubanski with Dr Sandro Demaiio; and below, Szubanski hits the court with Mansfield netballers.

Before she discovered her talent for comedy, Szubanski also flirted with the idea of becoming a doctor. And, that strong desire to help others coming to the fore again, she spent time volunteering at a women's refuge as a teenager in the 1980s.

"They didn't even believe domestic violence was a crime then, so it was just terrible," she says, incredulous.

"It was very traumatic. And I was probably too young, to be honest, to be doing that sort of stuff. And then I ran away to comedy before coming back to where I started, in some way."

Szubanski's latest crusade involves improving the entire nation's health and wellbeing. As the host of the new ABC series Magda's Big National Health Check, Szubanski investigates the mental and physical health challenges facing Australians with her trademark honesty and humour.

And that means also putting her own health under the microscope. In the first episode of the series, Szubanski talks frankly about the conditions which have blighted her own health, including osteoarthritis, anxiety, migraines and sleep apnoea.

She also undergoes several tests on camera, becoming quite emotional when she is told that she is on the cusp of developing diabetes and concerning, high cholesterol levels. Thankfully, despite her understandable concerns about her heart – due to her weight and the fact that her father suffered a heart attack around the same age – Szubanski's ticker is in pretty good nick.

"It just shows you can't judge a book by its cover," she smiles.

That's the thing about this show and why Szubanski was so eager to host it. It's not all doom and gloom. Yes, the series presents some pretty sobering statistics about Australians' health – including the fact that children as young as 11 are showing signs of heart disease and half the population is struggling with chronic health problems – but it also offers some simple solutions.

"It's only three episodes, so it's not going to provide all the answers," she says.

"But to become more educated and understand what's going on, even just with those statistics around the amount of chronic illness, [will hopefully help people]."

"The wellness movement can impact in some ways, but we've also got to look at other things like where you live – that is what suburb you live in – and economic factors really affect things enormously.

"The other thing is hidden sugars and one of the things that the show pushes for in later episodes is mandatory labelling."

Above all else, Szubanski believes Magda's Big National Health Check will spark a necessary and overdue conversation and hopefully make people feel less alone or daunted about taking control of their health.

"Because we are all in this together," she reassures.

■ Magda's Big National Health Check, Tuesday, 8.30pm, ABC TV and streaming, ABC iview

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE TRIP OF A LIFETIME

Friday

THE BEST EXOTIC MARIGOLD HOTEL
Seven, 8.30pm, M (2011)

Judi Dench and Maggie Smith lead a formidable cast of veteran UK actors on a trip to India, where the diverse group of characters find themselves after “outsourcing” their retirements. A widow (Dench), a retired High Court judge (Tom Wilkinson) and an unhappy couple (Penelope Wilton and Bill Nighy), among others, travel to the Best Exotic Marigold Hotel on the promise of advertisements seen back in Blighty. Of course, not all is as hoped, with the ramshackle establishment run by a young entrepreneur (Dev Patel), and India itself, offering challenges and charm in equal measure. ★★★★★

Culture shock: Judi Dench stars as Evelyn in The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel.

DEATH BECOMES HER
9Gem, Friday, 8.40pm, M (1992)

Forrest Gump's mastermind, director Robert Zemeckis, collaborated with 1992's finest special effects geniuses for the darkly comic tale of a self-absorbed actress (Meryl Streep) who utilises the services of her philandering plastic surgeon husband (Bruce Willis) to compete with her rival (Goldie Hawn, pictured, right, with Streep). Trouble begins when they both get hold of an immortality elixir. Streep is streets ahead of her co-stars in a camp cult classic. ★★★★★

STAR WARS: EPISODE VII - THE FORCE AWAKENS
Seven, Saturday, 7.30pm, M (2015)

With celebrated director J.J. Abrams taking the helm of the iconic franchise, along with the original trilogy's stars (Harrison Ford, Carrie Fisher and Mark Hamill), high expectations are met with aplomb. Three decades after the Empire's defeat, a new threat arises. Stormtrooper defector Finn (John Boyega) and spare parts scavenger Rey (Daisy Ridley, pictured) are caught up in the Resistance's search for the missing Luke Skywalker (Hamill). Also stars Adam Driver as baddie Kylo Ren. ★★★★★

A QUIET PLACE
10 Shake, Saturday, 7.45pm, M (2018)

If you fancy being scared out of your wits – and even if you don't – you mustn't miss this superb film. A Quiet Place is a modern horror classic, featuring a fantastic cast, a brilliantly ominous soundtrack and stunningly eerie cinematography. Directed by John Krasinski (pictured), who also co-wrote the screenplay and stars alongside his wife Emily Blunt. They play a couple navigating a post-apocalyptic world in which they must live in silence to evade the creatures killing humankind. ★★★★★

THE SIXTH SENSE
7Flix, Sunday, 8.30pm, M (1999)

Director M. Night Shyamalan became pretty much a household name because of this knockout. Youngster Haley Joel Osment suffers in bewildered silence at his ability to communicate with the recently deceased, until a child psychologist (Bruce Willis, pictured, right, with Osment) enters his life with the offer to help him deal with it. The acting is strong but subdued, and top marks to Toni Collette as Osment's mother. Still one of the most intelligent and rewarding suspense films in decades. ★★★★★

VENOM
7mate, Monday, 8.30pm, M (2018)

The first film in Sony's Spider-Man Universe concentrates on one of its greatest baddies. A twisted alien parasite who enjoys the odd killing spree, Venom finds a host on Earth in disgraced journalist Eddie Brock (Tom Hardy, pictured). Brock is intent on reviving his reputation by investigating his ex-fiancée's (Michelle Williams) workplace, the Life Foundation, and its lead inventor Carlton Drake (Riz Ahmed). A wickedly hilarious standalone romp that will leave you saying “Spider-who?” ★★★★★

I, TONYA
10 Shake, Tuesday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2018)

I, Tonya charts the life and career of infamous figure skater Tonya Harding, which includes, of course, the bizarre attack orchestrated in 1994 by her ex-husband on Harding's rival Nancy Kerrigan. Far from being just a movie about ice skating, the film explores issues of domestic abuse and mother-daughter relationships, presented as a black comedy. Alongside Margot Robbie (pictured) in the lead role is Allison Janney, who won an Oscar for her role as her mother, LaVona. ★★★★★

The Guide

THE CAPTURE ABC TV, Saturday, 8.30pm

Thrilling and disturbing in equal measure, this conspiracy series raises the stakes as we near the end of season two. DCI Rachel Carey (Holliday Grainger, pictured) falls deeper into the dizzying world of deepfakes and disinformation. Her team must widen their search for invisible assassins (yes, really) and recalibrate their thinking as to who might be behind recent attacks. Meanwhile, rising politician Isaac Turner (Paapa Essiedu) becomes paranoid in the wake of his hacked TV interview. The drama is so good it's almost worth the sleep you'll lose worrying about whether it's all actually possible in the real world.

NCIS: HAWAI'I 10, Sunday, 9pm

The NCIS franchise has mastered its tried-and-true formula and tonight's fast-paced episode is no exception. There's the requisite beach locations (we're in Hawaii, after all), a law enforcement case for the team to solve (give them 60 minutes or less), as well as an indispensable subplot involving matters of the heart. In "Blind Curves", the writers have thrown a bit of a curveball into the sun, sand and surf with a Fast and the Furious-style case for the team. Expect petrol fumes in the seaside air as the team delves into the world of illegal street racing. Meanwhile, Whistler (Tori Anderson, pictured) is worried about introducing partner Lucy (Yasmine Al-Bustami) to her colleagues.

PLANET AMERICA ABC TV, Monday, 9.35pm

It's totally understandable to feel compelled to stick a finger in each ear and chant "La, la, la, la!" when someone informs you about the latest headlines from the US. The saying "only in America" – often said with an obvious roll of the eyes – is rightfully bandied about when faced with political news and developments from the States. Mercifully, this humour-laden current affairs show sticks to the important facts, with a little quirkiness to sweeten the dispatch. With a week before the midterm elections, hosts Chas Licciardello and John Barron deliver their unique take on US politics. Can the Democrats hold their majority and will Trump rear his tanned head?

PICK OF THE WEEK

STUFF THE BRITISH STOLE ABC TV, Tuesday, 8pm

After the breakout success of art theft investigation Framed, Marc Fennell presents this new six-part series examining the origins of some of the British Empire's most famous treasures. The Walkley Award-winning journalist digs up the truth behind some of the world's most iconic and priceless relics, including a diamond in the crown jewels that Indians and Pakistanis claim was stolen and the heist of a Scottish relic. After the death of Queen Elizabeth II and the ascension of King Charles III, the legacy of the British Empire is being re-examined and this compelling, globe-trotting investigation is bound to pose some very tough questions for even the staunchest royalist.

Hidden in plain sight: Journalist Marc Fennell examines the legacy of the British Empire in Stuff the British Stole.

KILLER INSTINCT

THE GOOD NURSE
Streaming, Netflix

Forget everything you know about Eddie Redmayne. From his role as wide-eyed romantic Marius in Les Misérables to an Oscar-winning performance as theoretical physicist Stephen Hawking in The Theory of Everything or even creature-obsessed wizard Newt Scamander in Fantastic Beasts – you’ve never seen the English actor like this before.

As Charlie Cullen, the infamous real-life healthcare worker at the centre of new Netflix thriller The Good Nurse, Redmayne delivers a performance that is warm and familiar at first, before giving way to a chilling crescendo.

Cullen works alongside nurse Amy Loughren (Jessica Chastain, Zero Dark Thirty), a single mother stretched to her limits by her life-threatening heart condition and demanding night shifts at a New Jersey hospital’s intensive care unit.

When Charlie first joins her unit, Amy finds a fast friend in her thoughtful and empathetic co-worker, someone who gives her hope for the future and faith in her family.

However, a series of mysterious patient deaths bring the attention of a pair of local cops (Noah Emmerich and Nnamdi Asomugha) to their hospital – with all evidence pointing to Charlie as the prime suspect.

Under the direction of Danish filmmaker Tobias Lindholm (A War), Chastain gives a stellar performance as Amy. The tenacity, humanity and urgency she brings to Amy’s quest for answers will stay with viewers long after the credits have rolled. – Lauren Mitchell

RGM employs 29 people at their Rockhampton location ranging from diesel mechanics, boilermakers, apprentices, office staff, salespeople and part interpreters.

RGM has been serving the local community for over 10 years.

We've got your back

RGM Maintenance PTY LTD is an Australian-owned quality-endorsed new vehicle sales, repair and maintenance service provider for heavy vehicles and equipment utilised in the road transport, mining, tourism and defence sector.

RGM has five Daimler truck dealerships in Queensland and the Northern Territory, selling and supporting the complete range of Mercedes Benz, Freightliner, and Fuso trucks and buses.

This covers the region from Rockhampton up along the northeastern sea border around Australia's top end to Darwin.

We have supported the road transport industry since 2002, starting in Brisbane, then moving to Townsville in 2005, Darwin in 2009, Adelaide in 2012, and finally expanding the network today to include RGM facilities in Katherine, Cairns, Mackay, Rockhampton and the second facility in Brisbane.

Our purpose-built facilities are adjacent to transport and distribution hubs in most locations.

Our Townsville and Darwin workshops have road train access, allowing easy entry to drive-through workshop bays.

RGM employs over 200 staff, the majority being highly skilled heavy vehicle sales consultants and technicians such as heavy commercial vehicle mechanics, auto electricians, boilermakers and fuel repair specialists.

Carry out works ranging from SLP Inspections to welding a new side in a damaged fuel tanker barrel.

We can do anything from a minor service to an engine, gearbox, or differential to a complete rebuild or replacement.

All major sites are equipped with a dedicated de-gas/hot work bay and wash bays, drastically reducing the downtime to the customer where degassing is required.

Located in Parkhurst, RGM Maintenance has served the local area for over 10 years.

Leading the dedicated team is Bobby Brennan, who has worked as the Dealer Principal for the past five years and is proud to serve the community.

"I have been in the industry since 2003 when I started my apprenticeship as a diesel mechanic and worked my way through to foreman, service manager and into my current role," Bobby said.

"I also work as the General Manager – Head of Sales for the RGM group."

"I am passionate about my staff and continue to do what I can.

"The company works towards our mission statement of 'employ, train and retain an energetic team with a positive attitude utilising continuous improvement to be better today than we are tomorrow'."

Currently, RGM employs 29 people at their Rockhampton location ranging from diesel mechanics, boilermakers, apprentices, office staff, salespeople and part interpreters.

"We employ two new apprentices each year and aim to work with local schools to take on school-based apprentices," Bobby said.

"We have seen the effect of skills shortages throughout the region.

"It is vital that we keep training the next generation for the future."

RGM strives to provide you with the latest and greatest vehicles, which are designed to thrill, provide safety and comfort and can help meet the demands of daily life.

Explore our extensive showroom to see the exciting range of Mercedes-Benz, Freightliner and Fuso vehicles.

If you require vehicle finance or vehicle fleet advice, contact our business manager to discuss what option is right for you.

"What makes us different from other companies is our relationships with the community," Bobby said.

"We have assisted customers with purchasing vehicles and the ongoing maintenance to keep them on the road and the customer moving.

"I like to think we play our part in that person's business."

No matter what you need, the team of experienced sales staff at RGM Maintenance Rockhampton are here to help.

Brown and Hurley deliver

Brown and Hurley have been in business in Australia for more than 75 years and have always been a dual family-owned and operated business committed to the Australian Road Transport Industry.

Their Australian history puts them in a unique position to understand Australia's road transportation challenges.

Dealer Principal Brown and Hurley Rockhampton Simon Graham who has worked in the transport industry for over 30 years and for Brown and Hurley for 12 years said the Rockhampton group employ over 40 staff and are dedicated to customer satisfaction.

"From the time I pulled my first truck card out of a Weet-bix box, I have had an interest in trucks, my father, uncle and grandfather all worked in the transport industry.

"The best thing about the transport industry is the people who work in it. Over the years I have met a lot of people who I now consider friends.

"Brown and Hurley have been here through the generations to support and partner with our customer companies; keep them moving by keeping their trucks on the road and understand the history of Australia because it is their history as well.

"That's why we believe their 470 plus employees can serve the Australian community so well."

At Brown and Hurley, they always endeavour to forge a strong relationship with their customers, extending this beyond the point of purchase by offering an unparalleled level of after sales service that is fully backed by the manufacturers, suppliers and our own parts and service divisions.

This is all part of their dedication to helping the Australian business stay connected and deliver their various consignments safely, and on time.

Mr Graham said they are proud of their history and celebrate it whenever they can.

"Over the past seventy-five years Brown and Hurley has grown to become one of Australia's largest truck and trailer dealerships," he said.

"With nice strategically placed dealerships and more than 470 employees to serve its customers, Brown and Hurley provides trucking companies the full solution for trucks, trailers, spare parts, service and repairs."

Mr Graham said when you buy a truck or a trailer from Brown and Hurley you will very quickly learn why they are trusted by thousands of customers and why these customers keep coming back.

"Brown and Hurley know the importance of exceptional customer service that keeps their customers trucks well maintained and on the road earning money for their owners, taking the stress out of truck ownership, and allowing their customers to spend their time running their business," he said.

"It's so important in business to encircle your company with trusted partners who will deliver each and every time.

"At Brown and Hurley, we are big enough to be very competitive with all our pricing, this is due to our substantial buying power in yet, we never lose sight of providing personalised service, to understand your needs and service them.

"We want to get to know our customers and connect with them directly. We believe this personal connection helps us understand your unique challenges and concerns.

"We have selected the trucks and trailers we stock, based on a number of specific criteria that Brown and Hurley have developed over its seventy-five-year history, giving you the confidence that you need in your purchase over the life of your truck and/or trailer.

"We offer only the best, high-quality trucks and trailers you can find anywhere – each designed specifically for the Australian marketplace.

"We have branches that are easily accessible. The bottom line is that we care about our customers and their experiences.

"We plan on being here in another seventy-five years and continuing to offer our customers the highest possible service, range, and maintenance facilities available.

"When you have been in business for seventy-five years, you must be doing it right, and we are very confident, we will do it right for you."

Rocky's Own offers a range of services, from general transport to container transport and more.

The Rocky's Own fleet has grown over 37 years.

Daring to be different

Not all logistics companies are the same. Over the past 37 years, Rocky's Own Transport has strived to be different, combining a team of highly skilled individuals with the very latest technology, to deliver a superior standard of safety and logistics services.

The business commenced trading in a small timber yard in Rockhampton in March 1985 with the vision of building a business that is value driven.

Those values of integrity, honesty, empathy, safety, quality and reliability are at the forefront of the business strategy still today. Their motto is "All Different – All Equal".

CEO Bryan Smith said safety and security is Rocky's Own's highest priority.

"Safety of our staff, safety of the general public on our country's road network and safety and security for our customers and their products.

"We have committed to a significant ongoing investment in technology and training to maintain the very highest standards of safety and security within the transport sector."

He described Rocky's Own as a truly national company with a huge depth of resources to cater for even the most complex and challenging logistics projects.

"With an extensive scope of operations across Australia, Rocky's Own Transport Co specialises in the provision of service excellence for difficult and complex freight and logistical tasks," he said.

"Whether it is providing 'turnkey' military logistics to The Singapore Armed Forces or transportation of a multi-million-dollar medical resonance-imaging trailer between regional hospitals throughout Queensland we really do try very hard and strive for constant improvement, because we 'care'."

Services include:

- General Transport Services: Catering to a variety of businesses, from mining, building, construction, industrial, agriculture, manufacturing and production industries, the Rocky's Own fleet provides transport services for anything from express parcel freight, general freight, full loads, bulk tipper, wide, heavy, or long loads and all forms of dangerous goods.
- Heavy Haulage Division: Rocky's Own is currently contracted to transport the Singapore Armed Forces' leopard tanks throughout Australia in support of their annual military exercises. They also supply extensive heavy haulage services to the mining sector.
- Bulk Dangerous Goods Division: Specialising in the transportation of ammonium nitrate using a variety of equipment from B double road train tippers, shipping containers, ISO containers and flat tops for import and export bulker bags.
- Bulk Transport Division: This division is a key carrier of bulk commodities, specialises in bulk tallow, feeds, salt, meal and hides and utilising tankers and tippers.

- Refrigeration Transport Services: Offering daily refrigerated services to customers between Rockhampton and Brisbane.
- Container Transport Services: Utilising a variety of equipment from side loaders to purpose built lightweight trailing equipment to maximize carrying capacity, this division transports about 80 to 90 containers per day, from our customer's premises to and from shipping ports and rail heads.

- Special Project Division: The logistics project team has worked on a variety of special projects including the recovery of transport services after Cyclone Larry, the Singapore Armed Forces' annual Exercise Wallaby and the Australian and American joint military exercise Talisman Saber.

Family owned business

Emerald Carrying Company was established in 1965 in Emerald Queensland by Bill and Joan Haylock and remains today a family owned and operated business.

Managing director Greg Haylock and the Emerald Carrying team have extensive experience in bulk liquids transport and general freight.

Through the development of long-term strategic partnerships, Emerald Carrying Co has expanded throughout Queensland, with depots in Townsville, Mackay, Gracemere, Emerald, Lytton, Darwin, and Gladstone now servicing mining, commercial retail and agricultural customers. These partnerships have also seen Emerald Carrying Co grow to now operate a fleet of over 100 trucks from body trucks to triples and quad road trains.

Emerald Carrying Co has maintained a premier position in the transport industry and in doing so has developed a set of core values by which the company operates:

- Pride, in our workplace, our culture and partnerships.
- Care, for our staff, ensuring a safe and prosperous workplace and future.
- Respect, fairness and integrity in our dealings, providing sustainable outcomes for all parties.
- Excellence, in striving to achieve a safe working environment at all times, being innovative in our approach to problem solving whilst being aware of our social and environmental obligations.

Monaro Haulage is also a sister company to Emerald Carrying Company with Depots in Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane and Sydney.

General Freight

Emerald Carrying Company's fleet of prime movers provides a daily freight service out of our Lytton depot that travels direct to Emerald.

Delivery services are provided to the regions of the Central Highlands including Emerald, Capella, Clermont, Moranbah, Dysart, Blackwater, Dingo, Anakie, Springsure and Rolleston.

We also offer a service to the Central West twice a week including Alpha, Jericho, Balcaldine, Blackall, Ilfracombe, Longreach and Winton.

Brisbane Depot is located in Lytton as part of our Head Office location. This site was chosen strategically due to its proximity to the Port of Brisbane and ease of access to the Gateway Motorway (southbound and northbound).

Whilst we have been in Lytton since 2017, in 2020 we relocated to larger premises that allowed us to incorporate our Lytton Bulk Fuel team, Oil Logistics team, Head Office team and Brisbane General Freight team.

Bulk Fuel and Oil

Mackay Depot is located in the Paget Industrial Estate and allows for large movements of heavy transport.

Easy access to the Mackay Port enables effective and efficient movement of bulk liquids to our larger client base in the Bowen Basin.

Gracemere Depot is strategically placed to assist in transferring bulk liquids to clients spread across the Central Queensland Region.

Emerald Carrying Company has a fleet of more than 100 trucks.

Gracemere allows for large movements of Product from the Gladstone Port back to Gracemere and onwards to Central Queensland. This Depot enables Emerald Carrying Company to provide the services required whilst maintaining compliance with the fatigue legislation.

Townsville Depot is located close to the port of Townsville to accommodate larger fleet combinations that allow for deliveries into the far west of Queensland (Mt Isa and Cloncurry).

Townsville facilitates deliveries to local service stations and provides bulk fuel services to the local airport facilities.

Safety has always been paramount at Emerald Carrying Company.

We provide all staff with appropriate health, safety and environmental policies, guidance material, documentation, procedures, and training to ensure that our business meets its health, safety and environmental obligations and our target of 'NIL HARM'.

All drivers are fully qualified and receive ongoing training, and each truck in our fleet is equipped with several safety systems to track driver fatigue. In addition, every driver holds relevant licences and permits for the loads they carry, including

Dangerous Goods for Diesel, Petrol and Avgas

To ensure our prime movers are reliable and safe, we follow strict maintenance routines. All our prime movers are fitted with ABS braking and are regularly serviced and tested by our onsite team of specialist mechanics.

With a fleet of 100+ prime movers and contracts for brands including Toll, Ampol, Viva Energy, BP, United Petroleum, Coca-Cola Amatil and Cement Australia, we are constantly on the lookout for committed team members to join our team.

If you are interested in joining the Emerald Carrying Company and Monaro Fuel Haulage team, please contact us by forwarding your resume to hr@emcarry.com.au or by calling the HR Department directly on 07 3016 0540.

Challenges within the Industry

The transport industry is constantly full of challenges. The three biggest challenges would be fleet replacement, fuel prices and recruitment.

Emerald Carrying runs a fleet of Kenworths and currently if we were to order a new truck, we wouldn't see it for two years. In regard to tanker's, it is a two year wait as well. This means we constantly need to be thinking at least three years in advance.

Fuel prices are also a concern with the freight industry being highly competitive. We have our own fuel tanks at all our depots to try and alleviate some of the costs. The joy of having our own fuel tanks are we are able to buy bulk and use our own equipment for cart-age. In Gracemere alone we use approximately 10,000 litres every day.

One of the biggest issues is recruitment. It seems less and less people are showing an interest in the industry. As well as that we are competing with the mines which makes it tougher again. This is not only with drivers but the workshop as well.

Currently we are looking for heavy rigid drivers in Emerald, multi combination drivers in all our depots and mechanics in all locations as well. We do have some luck as we offer family friendly rosters for drivers, our workshop is five days a week and the fact everyone is home every day is one of our selling points.

With a shortage of drivers in the industry we offer in-house training and are too happy to employ people with no previous fuel experience if they're the right person to represent the company. This is a huge financial outlay but something we need to do to keep the fleet moving.

Gardening

Spring storm flowers

By Neil Fisher

The storms of the last few days have had a real impact on many gardens across Central Queensland.

Within a matter of days after the first storm, dozens of plants bust into flowers creating a kaleidoscope of colour in what was no more than a dried arrangement a few days earlier.

Most noticeable would be the colourful flowering bulbs called Hippeastrums.

Over the years gardeners have found Hippeastrums are not difficult to grow and produce lovely cut flowers.

Hippeastrums are not the most water-wise plant grown locally in fact they have quite demanding water and nutrient requirements while during this time of year.

It is always recommended during the spring growth time they receive ample water and nutrients but remember you must keep the plants dry in winter while the plant is in their winter dormancy.

Most of us would clearly remember the mass floral displays of Hippeastrums that our grandparents use to have.

Hippeastrums have been grown in Western Queensland gardens for over the last 100 years, and I still believe that tucked away in many rural gardens are still some of the best flowering varieties grown.

These plants could have been handed down over many generations

Hippeastrums are found from Argentina north to Mexico and the Caribbean.

Hippeastrum are also called amaryllis lilies in some parts of the country, and it is important not to confuse Hippeastrums with the genus with the name Amaryllis.

There are about 70-75 species and more than 600 hybrids in the Hippeastrum family.

Hippeastrum will require a frost-free environment, but for those gardeners in frosty parts of central Queensland, they can be grown as a potted greenhouse plant, and they can also make an excellent house plant.

Hippeastrum flowers are made up of six petals, comprising two layers of three petals.

While the typical colour range of the Hippeastrums encompasses most shades of reds, pinks, and white, the modern hybrids occur in an array of colour patterns.

The new hybrids can even include double-flowering varieties or unusual colours like pale translucent yellows.

What you may not realise is that birds, bees and butterflies are all attracted to the Hippeastrum flower.

Some of the Hippeastrum I saw growing in Western Gardens include:

Hippeastrum Hybrid Alfresco has large 15cm pure white double, almost triple flowers.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Benfica has large 10cm dark blood-red single flowers.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Mead has large stunning 10cm candy pink flowers with a green throat.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Mead is an old turn of the 20th-century strain of Hippeastrum.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Minerva has stunning large wide open, flat-faced 18cm red flowers with a white star and a lime-green throat.

Hippeastrum Sonatini Sweet Sixteen is a compact hybrid with stunning 6cm candy pink flowers with a green throat.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Red Rival has large 10cm red flowers and a very strong growth habit.

This variety will often have more flowers than any other red varieties available at the moment.

Hippeastrum Hybrid Rosalie has large 10cm dusty pink single flowers with creamy white highlights and a lime green throat.

Hippeastrum Hybrid White Coral has medium 8cm single white flowers with red stripes and a green centre.

Hippeastrum Hybrids growing in a Blackall garden.

Hippeastrum White Coral.

Hippeastrum Sonatini Sweet Sixteen.

Hippeastrum Alfresco.

Hippeastrum Mead.

Hippeastrum Rosalie.

Hippeastrum Benfica.

Hippeastrum Minerva.

When Hippeastrums are in full growth, they should be watered frequently and fed a balanced fertiliser once a month.

When talking to an enthusiast earlier this year, I was told that she found that during the warmer months regular drenching with the liquid fertiliser Aquasol makes a big difference.

She also used a high potash plant food during late July or early August to boost plant growth after the winter dormancy. Hippeastrums enjoy full sunlight during the growing season.

However she told me another handy hint was when Hippeastrums are coming into flower, a little partial shade helps to bring out their brilliant colour. Hippeastrums will do best in a bright but not overly sunny position with moist, well-drained, humus-rich soil.

Hippeastrum will have a tropical appearance during the warmer months, however, the bulbs will become fully dormant over the winter months.

Over the recent water-wasteful years many Hippeastrum varieties have been lost in home gardens due to overwatering.

It is important to know that all parts of plant are poisonous if ingested.

One other very interesting feature of growing Hippeastrums I have been told is that they are resistant to Deer that are a problem in some parts of Central Queensland.

Hippeastrum Red Rival.

MLA outlines Foot and Mouth plan

Foot and mouth disease (FMD) has always been on the radar of the Australian livestock industry but attention this year with confirmation of FMD and lumpy skin disease (LSD) in Indonesia, including the tourist hot spot of Bali.

Meat and Livestock Australia said attention has been on their biosecurity system and preparedness.

According to a statement the MLA issued this week, they have been working to communicate the issue to industry through a range of channels and partnerships, including a series of industry webinars over the last few months.

“One of the common questions that has been asked at these webinars – and face-to-face with the MLA team – is about vaccinating our livestock for FMD,” the press release stated.

“It’s a great question and I would like to outline the steps that MLA and the industry are taking.

“First off, industry has been preparing for the risk of FMD for many years. Australia has been free of this disease for over a century and the scientific modelling shows it is highly likely that Australia will stay free of FMD.

In August the University of Melbourne’s Centre of Excellence for Biosecurity Risk Analysis modelled the current risk at an 11 per cent chance of incursion, up slightly from nine per cent where the risk has been static since 2021. This increase is mostly associated with the diagnosis of FMD in Indonesia.”

The statement continued, “even with this low level of risk, many people are asking the question: why are we not vaccinating livestock now?”

“There are two parts to the answer. The first is that there is no reason to vaccinate animals in Australia in the absence of an outbreak.

“The second is that using vaccines poses a major risk for our export markets when it comes to the disease-free status of our country. Australia is officially recognised as a country which is free from FMD without the use of vaccination, which is the most favourable status.

“However, we have plans for accessing vaccinations quickly through a vaccine bank stored overseas. If we need them, these vaccines can be supplied in bulk to Australia in seven–10 days.

“Even if there is an incursion, this does not mean that vaccination of all livestock is the best solution.

“The decision to vaccinate animals in the event of an outbreak depends on several factors. These include the size of the outbreak, its location and the species that is affected. There would be other considerations too such as the logistical requirements of a vaccination program, the likely spread of the disease and animal welfare considerations.

“Guided by the AUSTVETPLAN, the decision on what approach to take in the event of an outbreak is made by the Consultative Committee on Emergency Animal Disease (CCEAD). The CCEAD is a coordinating body providing the technical link between industry, the Australian Government, and state and territory governments for decision making during animal health emergencies.

“In broad terms the response to an FMD outbreak will have multiple components including movement restrictions; stamping out through destruction disposal and decontamination; and, where appropriate, the strategic use of vaccines.

“It is likely that any outbreak of FMD in Australia would be detected and controlled quickly and the use of vaccines for control of the disease would not be necessary.

“We are also investing in cutting edge science to boost industry’s preparedness, having selected a vaccine for LSD as the first topic for research into mRNA vaccines. We are working with a range of research partners on this initiative.

“The basic premise of an mRNA vaccine is that it uses a small piece of genetic material from the pathogen, the mRNA, to generate the response. This makes the vaccine quick to produce and does not have any possible chance of causing the disease itself.

“It is important to note that a new vaccine would need to go through regulatory approvals.

“In the future, this may be able to expand to investments to do the same for FMD. The use of these vaccines in the event of an outbreak would be considered as part of the national strategic response, overseen by the federal government through the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry.”

Rural Aid for farmers

Rural charity, Rural Aid, is helping farmers across Victoria, New South Wales, and Tasmania as they face devastating, widespread flooding.

Rural Aid’s team of counsellors are conducting welfare checks on Rural Aid’s registered farmers.

Rural Aid CEO John Warlters said the floods were hitting particularly hard in Victoria’s north, while in NSW and Queensland, farmers with crops nearing harvest were increasingly anxious as flood water and continuing rain caused costly downgrading.

“It’s upsetting to hear stories of flooded homes, dead livestock, and flattened crops,” Mr Warlters said.

“Winter crops are approaching harvest, so to see them downgraded or destroyed so close to the finish line is a devastating blow.

“Losing livestock is truly heartbreaking for our farmers, who work so hard to keep their animals alive and healthy.

“Months of hard work and investment has now been written off, alongside people’s homes, fences, sheds and machinery,” Mr Warlters said.

Rural Aid has been on the front foot responding rapidly to the unfolding situation – sharing its dedicated counselling phoneline with the thousands of farmers in impacted regions and, where safe to do so, mobilising its counsellors to offer one-on-one emotional support to producers on-farm.

Rural Aid has counsellors on the ground in Forbes, NSW and in northern Victoria. The entire counselling team has been phoning farmers across the flood-impacted regions.

Registered primary producers are also being offered financial assistance as they deal with the devastating effects of the flood.

More than 70 local government areas (LGAs) across the three states are directly affected, impacting thousands of families.

Wool market report

By Australian Wool Network

The Australian wool market recorded a second successive week of strong gains.

On the first day of selling, from the opening lot in the Eastern centres all the way to the closing lot in the West, buyer sentiment was extremely high, and strong widespread competition helped to push prices higher.

Main buyer interest continued on the better style and spec fleece lots, however all merino fleece types and descriptions posted gains in the rapidly rising market. The individual Micron Price Guides (MPGs) across the country added between 18 and 75 cents for the day.

These rises combined with gains in all other sectors pushed the AWEX Eastern Market Indicator (EMI) up by 31 cents for the day.

Interestingly, this was the largest daily rise in the EMI since the same time last year, when the EMI added 50 cents for the day on 19 October 2021, re-enforcing the view of many in the industry that the market rises at this time of year.

In fact, if we go back a further season the EMI rose by 123 cents on the 20th of October 2020.

On the second selling day buyer activity was as buoyant as the first, with further strong rises felt. The merino fleece MPGs added another 4 and 83 cents.

The EMI rose another 21 cents for the day, adding a total of 52 cents for the week. This was the largest weekly rise in the EMI since 17 June 2021. The EMI closed the week at 1,323 cents.

In the last two weeks, the market has recovered the losses of the previous six weeks, the EMI is now back above where it finished at the end of Week 10 when it closed at 1,319 cents.

Next week quantities rise, due in part to the rising market.

Climate change farmers support budget

Farmers for Climate Action, an organisation representing more than 7000 farmers across Australia, has welcomed many initiatives in the Federal Budget announced tonight.

Farmers for Climate Action CEO Fiona Davis said the budget delivered many investments across climate, agriculture, emissions reduction and rural Australia.

“The budget delivers big investments in regional renewable energy, something Farmers for Climate Action had called for just weeks ago in our Farm Powered report about renewables in the regions,” Dr Davis said.

“It also delivers funding for emissions reductions in Australian agriculture and other funding direct to farmers.

“We’re pleased with the $20 billion in low cost finance delivered in Rewiring the Nation. This will assist with transmission to connect the big renewables projects we know will put downward pressure on energy prices.

“We’re particularly pleased with the $302 million over five years to support the agricultural sector further develop sustainable farming and land management.

“The $224.3 million over four years for 400 community batteries across Australia will help take pressure off the grid, and we know storage will be key to delivering reliable, affordable clean energy.

“Farmers for Climate Action has directly called for investment in helping farmers reduce emissions and more investment into asparagopsis, and the $8 million in asparagopsis commercialisation is welcome.

“We are also pleased to see the $20 million investment to establish an outreach program to help Australian farmers and land managers to participate in carbon markets and integrate low emission technologies and practices.

“The $1.9 billion Powering the Regions Fund to assist industries, regional Australia and communities with the shift to net zero emissions is very welcome and we look forward to working with the government on this.

“The $15 billion National Reconstruction Fund investment names agriculture as one of seven priorities and we look forward to seeing the detail of that investment.

“We welcome the $20.8 million over two years from 2022–23 to support Australia’s readiness to respond to drought events, which are of course driven by climate change.”

They said other noteworthy investments include: $146 million over five years for ARENA to co-invest in projects to reduce road transport emissions; $89.5 million over 6 years from 2022–23 to fund hydrogen refuelling stations on key freight routes;

$39.8 million over 5 years from 2022–23 to establish a National Electric Vehicle Charging Network to deliver 117 fast charging stations.

Farmers for Climate Action does not support taxpayer investments in new coal and gas developments, which drive climate change.

Visitors come for ‘fours’

This weekend is the Longreach Invitation Fours – the club’s biggest weekend of the year with players coming from all over the state to take part.

Play will start at 9am each day with each team playing five games.

Teams have nominated from all over the state with a splattering of local bowlers thrown into the mix.

It starts with a big calcutta on Friday night that always surprises people. It’ll be a big weekend with some fantastic bowls played, of that I can assure you.

We’ll just have to wait and see who comes out on top.”

This past weekend we had two Championship Finals planned but unfortunately one of those was called off because of a bowler’s other commitments.

BOWLS
BY BONES

TONY EMSLIE

But the Championship game that did go ahead was, as expected, a battle of draw bowls.

We had the new combination of Peter Thurecht (skip), Wayne Lewis (second) and Trent Shillington (lead), up against Brett (Darcy) Browne (skip), Tony (second) and Pete Anderson (lead).

It’s very fair to say the start was great for Peter’s team scoring a four on the first end, but Darcy’s team got the score to four – five after six ends. The seventh end they were holding multiple shots but a great bowl from Wayne Lewis sent the kitty off the rink which killed the end.

Darcy’s team started the replayed end the way they did the end before, with good lead bowls from Pete Anderson that put Trent, Wayne and Peter under pressure again.

They scored three shots on that end and went on a bit of a run winning six out of the next seven ends and skipping out to a handy 16 – 8 lead with eight ends to play.

During the next five ends Peter, Wayne and Trent chipped away at that lead and got it back to 13 – 18, but they were running out of ends.

Darcy, Tony and Pete were not going into the tactic of “protecting a lead” and their consistent pressure of bowls in the head proved too much for Peter, Wayne and Trent to score the multiple shots they needed on each of the last ends.

The score ended up 26 – 13 and that score line didn’t give a true indication of how close the game was.

Surprises, upsets, sweet victory: What makes a world cup?

There are a couple of World Cups on in Australia at the moment with one or two more to follow.

In the current Ruby League and T20 Cricket Cups being conducted, there are favourites.

In League is pretty clear Australia, New Zealand, and maybe England at a pinch will win.

Over at cricket, it’s a bit more even, however it really comes down to five or six nations.

What I really love to see are the pool games with the “minnows” playing.

That is not to put them down, but let us face it, it is hard enough to see a connection between Jamaica and rugby league, as it is to find Namibia on a map.

But every two to four years, these countries get their chance on the big stage.

And they don’t sit around twiddling their thumbs in between, there are qualifiers, in cricket, you have to work your way through six different qualifying levels even to make it to the knockout stages of a World Cup.

It is great to watch their passion and raw game sense that hasn’t had the professional system direct its pathway, and on the odd occasion they get upset, that’s what we watch for.

Ireland knocked out the West Indies, not for the first time, and who could forget the bunch of farmers and professional hunters playing for Zimbabwe who beat England in the 1992 Cup?

This is what we watch for.

Towns' pride on the line

By Michael R Williams

A new rivalry has spawned between Longreach and Barcaldine as schools have begun to duke it out between the two towns over who has the better basketball team.

Our Lady's Catholic School was one school involved - representing Longreach - and Assistant Principal of Religious Education Elise Leahy said it was great to see the schools competing intertown.

"Mr Sheehan from the State School approached us at the end of term 3 to get things ready for an intertown basketball match against the schools in Barcaldine," she said.

"We thought it would be a great opportunity to have some of our kids participate and have a go against the opposing kids, we haven't really had anything like that in a long time.

"We picked eight of our Year 6 students to attend and they played three games.

"One against each of the other teams, won one, just lost one, and then lost another."

Ms Leahy said she believes the students enjoyed the afternoon engaging in sports.
