Seeing the "Slimetacular" Fun Run, various swimming carnivals, and other events around this week, I was reminded of the importance of having fun.

After a gruelling few years with Covid, including our first outbreaks here in the west.

It could be easy to forget how to have fun.

It is what life is about after all.

Swimming, goofing off—this is why we are here.

And while it's important not to forget the lesson of the Covid era, maybe it's time to bring a smile to our faces once again.

Defensive posture

Central Queensland has the capability to provide vital support for Defence operations while remaining substantially out of range for the most likely enemy long-range weapon systems.

That's the finding of a compelling submission to the Federal Government's Defence Strategic Review which has identified Rockhampton Airport, Shoalwater Bay and Gladstone's port as having a crucial advantage.

The submission by independent defence consultants commissioned by key local government and regional development authorities in Central Queensland.

Regional Development Australia – Central and Western Queensland (RDACWQ) partnered with Rockhampton and Gladstone Regional councils and Livingstone Shire Council to produce the submission.

Key delegates from the partnership are in Canberra this week to meet with ministers and members of parliament responsible for defending the nation to brief them on the critical details of the submission.

Delegates include Grant Cassidy, Chair, Regional Development Australia - Central and Western Queensland; Mayor Tony Williams, Rockhampton Regional Council; Mayor Matt Burnett, Gladstone Regional Council; and Mayor Andy Ireland, Livingstone Shire Council.

RDACWQ Chair Grant Cassidy will tell MPs and senators that the submission identifies crucial advantages Central Queensland provides for Defence planners.

"As the national security landscape changes, Central Queensland can play a decisive role in helping Defence meet global and regional security challenges.

"We are primed to help Defence achieve maximum advantage for minimal investment," he said. "We have geographic, infrastructure and human advantages that can help address challenges the DSR team faces related to readiness, operational reach, resilience, reception and resupply of Australian or allied forces."

"Crucially, the region is also close enough to likely contested areas to receive, prepare, launch and support Australian and allied forces," he said.

Mr Cassidy said the delegation would brief key decision-makers on how Central Queensland's existing facilities and capabilities can be leveraged to help the ADF respond to current and future challenges.

Add to this its excellent road, rail, air and sea access, and Central Queensland is ripe for expansion as a major logistics hub.

Rockhampton Regional Council Mayor Tony Williams said the submission identified Rockhampton Airport as an ideal location for existing and future manned and unmanned aircraft. It also noted the airport's excellent existing facilities and the ability to easily upgrade them for major exercises.

"In addition to our long, 2,628-metre runway, Rockhampton airport also has available land for development plus the opportunity to leverage aviation deep maintenance facilities currently being developed by an Authorised Maintenance Organisation."

Gladstone Regional Council Mayor Matt Burnett said Port Alma and Gladstone Port were positioned well to offer vital support for Defence operations.

"Gladstone's deep-water, dual-lane port is very well suited to naval operations," Mr Burnett said.

"Slightly further north, Port Alma's unsurpassed ability to handle large quantities of Class 1 explosives means it could easily resupply Australian and allied forces in a location that's close to, but not in, potentially contested zones."

Livingston Shire Mayor Andy Ireland said the world-class Shoalwater Bay Training Facility in Livingston Shire is also another key asset in Central Queensland's arsenal.

"The Shoalwater Bay Training Area covers almost 500,000 hectares and is one of the best and most versatile military training areas in the world," Mr Ireland said.

"It's undergoing a $2bn expansion as part of its long-standing relationship with the Singapore Armed Forces, and it's the only facility in Australia where the army, air force, and navy are able to be fully deployed and engage in joint military training exercises."

Over the past 50 years, the Shoalwater Bay Training Facility has hosted large, complex operations across land, air and sea, including the massive biennial Exercise Talisman Sabre with Australian and American troops.

RDACWQ chair Grant Cassidy said Central Queensland had a long and proud history of supporting Defence when it matters most.

"In World War II we hosted tens of thousands of allied and US troops as they prepared to do battle in the Pacific," Mr Cassidy said.

Beyond military engagement, Central Queensland's hard assets also equip the region to contribute to humanitarian assistance and disaster relief nationally and regionally.

"Add the region's attractive climate and lifestyle plus its skilled workforce into the equation, and we think Central Queensland is a highly advantageous location for Defence investment."

Submissions to the Defence Strategic Review closed on 30 October.

Professor Smith and Sir Angus will deliver the Review and its recommendations to Government in early 2023.

IN BRIEF

The Rotary Club of Barcaldine wishes to advise that its planned Town Xmas Party on 3 December 2022 has unfortunately been cancelled.

All indications were that the event would not be well attended due to other private Xmas functions. We couldn't take the risk as the Club needed to pay almost $3000 in event insurance - community markets are not able to be covered by Rotary International insurance arrangements any more.

We sincerely thank all the good people who offered to help us out - we very much appreciate your support. Hopefully that goodwill will extend to our planned Xmas in July event.

The inaugural free outdoor movie event will be held early in the new year.

Barcaldine Rotary remain committed to doing what we can to provide services to the town and Barcaldine.

Council report card

This year's Annual Report has been published by the Longreach Regional Council and has included audited financial statements, revealing progress towards achieving its strategic and operational goals.

The Annual Report details the organisation's results as measured against its 2022 Annual Operational Plan, with each of Council's directorates and work areas represented.

Mayor Tony Rayner said the organisation had performed well against its operational plan, in the face of some challenges.

"When you look back at the past year, it's clear that businesses everywhere have staffing challenges, and Council is no different, carrying increased vacancies during the reporting period. Luckily, our team has done a great job keeping the organisation on track," he said.

"Some strategic actions have been carried forward into the 2022-23 year, which is understandable, but most operational measures have been met or exceeded. "That's an impressive achievement given the pressures placed on our team."

The Mayor said the Annual Report showed that Council was performing well financially, posting a $4.4m positive net result for the year and ending the year with a cash balance of $34m.

"It's great to see us achieving good financial results as well as delivering for the community," he said.

"The work of our Chief Financial Officer has made a real impact on our financial governance and decision-making.

"We finished the financial year with a healthy cash balance and few liabilities, so Council is in a good financial position, although we still rely on federal and state government grants for 54 per cent of our income to meet the community needs."

In addition to statutory measures, the Council's Annual Report also highlights the wide range of services and programs delivered by the organisation.

Included is information about Council's activities in relation to roads, community development, arts and library programs, planning and development, water services, fleet, animal management, visitor services, safety, procurement, and more.

Council is a major employer in the community with $15.7m in employee costs and employs 177 people.

Mayor Rayner said the report was one that staff and the community should be proud of.

"This report is a good read for anyone who wants to understand the work that we do on behalf of our community," he said.

"There's lots of good news in here, from the community services that we've delivered to the encouraging amount of development applications we've processed, to the work of our crews upgrading our roads and water infrastructure.

"Council touches on every aspect of life in our community, and this report clearly demonstrates that."

The Longreach Regional Council 2021-22 Annual Report is now publicly available via the Council website, and at Council libraries and service centres.

Comfort around Covid

A quantitative research survey conducted by Pfizer Australia showed that compared to a year ago, nearly two-thirds (60 per cent) of Australians believe the worst of the Covid-19 pandemic is now over, with a similar number (61 per cent) being less concerned about the impact of Covid-19 in their community. Around half (46 per cent) feel less concerned about their personal risk of serious illness and slightly more than half (57 per cent) think others around them, including family, friends and work colleagues are also less concerned about their personal risk.

Professor Robert Booy, Infectious Diseases Specialist and Paediatrician, University of Sydney, has warned against complacency during the current wave.

"Protection against Covid-19 infection requires several steps, including ensuring your vaccinations are up to date, practicing COVID safe behaviours and ensuring if you do test positive to Covid, you act fast by talking to your GP to learn if anti-viral medicines are right for you," he said.

"Recent Federal Government data has shown Covid-19 still poses a very real risk to the health of our communities as we move into a new wave of infections, specifically to those at higher risk of serious illness.

"The fact that one in three Australians are less likely to test for Covid-19 when they experience symptoms or consult their GP if they test positive compared to a year ago is of concern.

"Testing earlier means people can seek medical advice sooner and can access antiviral medicines faster if they are eligible."

Rude cost of rents

Budgets this Christmas will be tight for many tenants, with a new analysis revealing the soaring cost of rent in regional Queensland over the past year.

The Everybody's Home campaign has analysed the latest SQM Research Weekly Rents Index for combined units and houses.

It found asking rents across regional Queensland have surged between $30 and $185 per week since November 2021.

The Gold Coast, Southern Queensland and Western Queensland have seen the largest dollar increases.

Everybody's Home national spokesperson Maiy Azize said this year's perfect storm of the rising cost of living and stagnant wages has hit renters hard.

"It's been a shocking, challenging year for regional Queensland tenants. Inflation is yet to peak while wages aren't keeping up.

Landlords have passed the cost of interest rate rises onto renters. Floods have had a devastating impact on lives and housing stock, and residential vacancy rates largely remain below one per cent in most regions.

Barcaldine - two-vehicle crash

Paramedics attended a two-vehicle crash reported on Elm Street at 6.39pm on Sunday 27 November.

Five occupants were assessed at scene, with four declining treatment or transport.

A female in her 50's with chest pain was transported in a stable condition to Barcaldine Hospital.

After a busy year that included commemorating the passing of Queen Elizabeth II, the Longreach Scouts finished their year strong with one of their members receiving the Queens Scout Award.

The award has only been given away four times in club history.

"We're going strong here in Longreach—we've increased our numbers, which has been a little bit special compared to some of the scout groups around," Longreach Scouts Leader John Palmer said.

"Particularly, we've increased numbers in the 11-year-old to the 15-year-old section.

"Probably the biggest, exciting thing for us has been the highest award you could ever receive as a youth member ins scouts - the former Queen's scout award - has gone to young Monique Richards.

"It was a perfect spot for us."

Mr Palmer concluded by welcoming anyone willing to join the club next year.

RAPAD celebrates 30 years

The central west governing body RAPAD (Remote Area Planning and Development Board) has celebrated its 30th anniversary at its annual Friends of RAPAD event.

The Remote Area Planning and Development Board resulted from the work of the then 'Remote Area Committee' established in August 1990, under the auspices of the 'Centre for Development of Regional Opportunities'.

Through the work of the Remote Area Committee the "Bush Problems – Bush Solutions" conference was conducted in July 1991 and from that conference, the seeds of RAPAD were sown.

That conference established that there was a need for an innovative, and perhaps unique, organisation to coordinate both private and public planning and development in the Central Western Queensland region.

That conference also suggested the organisation needed to be a grassroots organisation, guided by the people of the region, for the region.

On 2 November 1992, RAPAD was legally established with the shareholders of the company being the then eleven shires of Central Western Queensland and the Great Western Region Opportunities Organisation.

To ensure co-operation and ownership of the new organisation the Board in those early days consisted of local governments, the private sector, government, and community groups.

A bold mission was defined by the newly established Board, and it read: "To serve as a wholly community-based organisation whose sole purpose is to enhance economically, socially, culturally and environmentally the quality of life of the people of Central Western Qld by enabling through its actions the realisation of the full potential inherent in both the human and natural resources of the region".

Back then the Board was chaired by prominent Longreach doctor, Dr Tom Murphy, and in his chairman's report, from the 1995 annual general meeting, he made mention that the then Deputy Premier, the Honourable Tom Burns AO, said in 1992 that: "he'd give the Board three years to prove itself".

Dr Murphy in response to this challenge from the Deputy Premier went onto say: "In my opinion we have certainly done this, and we can feel satisfied with our accomplishment."

Dr Murphy further elaborated: "We have proved what we initially set out to do, and that is, it was possible to create a regional body that would win the support of all shires in the Central West, it would establish a regional perspective, could win credibility from all tiers of government, and acceptance from the community".

He said RAPAD would be a powerful instrument for regional growth and change.

Fast forward and those words from a Board Chair 27 years ago still ring true today.

Since that time of Dr Murphy, RAPAD has been chaired by Dougal Davidson, Joan Moloney, Mike Chuk, Gary Peoples, Ed Warren, Rob Chandler, Andrew Martin and now Tony Rayner.

Rhona Stewart, Janine Waldock, Kristine Arnold and David Arnold.

Rob Chandler, Maree Adshead, Vern Rudwick, Rhona Stewart, Janine Waldock and David Arnold.

While there have been nine Chairs, RAPAD has only had two CEOs. From shortly after inception, through to 2002, Mr Lawrie Cremin was the CEO, and from 2003 our current CEO, David Arnold has been at the helm, taking on the role for what was initially a 12-month position. RAPAD has and will continue to mould to the changing environment, however, while Boards, Chairs, and staff come and go, RAPAD's fundamental reason for remaining steadfast.

Those foundations and principles identified back in 1991-92, hold true today and while we always look forward, it's important to occasionally look back and appreciate where we came from, and why.

Ms Neuendorf said this was a fun way to end off the year with the kids.

"We wanted to end the year on a high note," she said.

New voice on counci

By now you will have no doubt heard that Cr Tony Martin has resigned, effective immediately, triggering a by-election.

Cr Martin has served with distinction for sixand-a-half years and on behalf of Councillors and staff, I thank him for the contribution he's made in that time. He'll be missed, but we respect his decision.

His resignation does, however, offer an opportunity for a new voice to join us on Council, and I'm sure there will be plenty of interest in the vacant position.

It's an exciting opportunity for someone to bring a new perspective to the Council table, and the Councillors and I welcome that opportunity. The by-election will happen quickly, all within the next two months.

So if you or anyone you know is interested in nominating, start preparing now and be ready.

Officers are working closely with the Electoral Commission of Queensland, and more details will be released in due course, so keep an eye out for updates.

Councillors had the opportunity to visit the Galilee Energy pilot at Glenaras recently.

It's a remarkable operation, with potentially big economic impacts for our region.

Councillors and I were very impressed with the scale of the pilot, and if the project realises its production potential, it will be even more

It's important we consider how the project will shape our region in years to come, and we look forward to learning more as the pilot gets closer to production.

I joined my colleagues and counterparts from Western Queensland in Brisbane last week for the AGM of RAPAD, and our annual 'Friends of RAPAD' networking event.

As always it was a great opportunity to promote the work of RAPAD to key policy and decision-makers in Brisbane, showcasing our work on employment, skilling, financial counselling, and housing. While I was in Brisbane I also had the opportunity to meet with key decisionmakers on some of Council's priorities for the Longreach Region.

We're lucky to have good relationships with all levels of government, and they always make time for us when we visit.

Pressure on the spectrum

A parliamentary inquiry will hear how the Australian Communications and Media Authority's (ACMA's) management of radiofrequency spectrum may impact on regional mobile phone coverage.

The House Communications and the Arts Committee will hear how ACMA oversees more than 170,000 commercial, government and individual licensees operating in Australia at a public hearing today (30 November) for its parliamentary inquiry into co-investment in regional mobile carrier infrastructure.

Spectrum is a key input for the delivery of wireless broadband (fixed and mobile), satellite and broadcasting services, according to ACMA.

With relevant spectrum capable of providing national coverage currently licensed to each of the three mobile carriers, ACMA's submission to the inquiry states that spectrum availability and access are not a current barrier to terrestrial mobile network expansion.

Committee Chair, Mr Brian Mitchell MP, outlined the Committee will be seeking ACMA's views on access to spectrum if co-investment looms as the best tool to encourage multiple telecommunications providers in regional areas to invest in and share 'multi-carrier' mobile towers to improve the range and reliability of their services.

Why I don't suffer from arachnophobia

When I first started teaching, I came across a brilliant resource that seemed perfect for the reading level of my students.

It was a learning kit about spiders containing fact sheets, teaching notes and 25 copies of a little book about spiders.

Not only was it very readable, but the information was also scientifically correct and presented at a level easily comprehended by the average Grade 3 or 4 student, which is who I taught at the time.

I saw an opportunity to take advantage of my science background, though I'd studied insects rather than arachnids.

They're all arthropods, right?

I also saw a way of bringing my all-time favourite superhero into the classroom.

No point in guessing who that is.

It also happened to be October and Halloween was coming, so it seemed an ideal lead-in to the upcoming festivities.

So, my first spider unit was born.

You can imagine the reaction of my students when I first introduced the subject.

Turns out native people aren't any more enthusiastic about spiders than other Canadians. And Canada doesn't even have tarantulas, huntsman or anyother spectacular spiders. Fun fact: the two main reasons my family and friends give for not coming to visit me in the outback are spiders and snakes, usually in that order.

Anyway, a funny thing happened during the fortnight we studied spiders.

We all lost our natural aversion to them, me included.

The tipping point came when I found an old NFB (National Film Board of Canada, for the uninitiated) film called 'Spider Takes a Trip' in the school's media catalogue.

Curious, I contacted Thunder Bay and, since nobody had ever actually asked for the film in something like a decade (I wonder why?), they sent it out promptly.

Being a fly-in, fly-out setup, prompt meant it arrived on the next mail plane and I had the reel in my hot little hands before the end of the week.

As it turns out, the movie is delightful, so if you ever get a chance to watch it, I highly recommend it.

It's live-action, not animated, and done like the old Disney nature documentaries I used to watch as a kid, taking actual film footage and putting a matching narrative to the images.

The spider is wandering around the woods, minding his own business when he steps on a leaf and is suddenly washed

The film follows his journey to the end when he calmly walks off the leaf and back onto dry land.

The kids were so charmed, we had to watch it again.

And again.

Because nobody ever ordered it, I was able to keep it through the whole month and showed it again for Halloween itself.

By the end of the month, spiders had become our friends and we were no longer arachnophobic.

An unexpected bonus to a unit that became a staple for every October thereafter.

Impact of doctor shortage

Maranoa patients are struggling to find a general practioner since Labor expanded distribution priority areas (DPAs) for GPs to more metropolitan locations.

Leader of The Nationals and Maranoa MP David Littleproud said international medical graduates previously needed to work in a DPA for at least 10 years to be eligible for Medicare, but Labor's changes meant they could now be recruited in metropolitan areas.

He said as a result, regional electorates like Maranoa were missing out.

"Maranoa is struggling to find the GPs it needs," Mr Littleproud said.

"Labor has abandoned the health needs of Maranoa locals by allowing international GPs to skip the regional towns where they are needed most."

Around Maranoa:

• Chinchilla has no bulk billing GPs available to everyone. Only one GP will offer after hours bulk-billed phone consultations. Goondir Medical service in Chinchilla offers bulk billing for inalgenous patients

- A Dalby GP has a four-week minimum wait. Urgent medical attention requires a fourhour round trip to Toowoomba. There is sporadic attendance only at the Dalby Hospital by a GP for emergency care.
- Kingaroy GPs are at capacity and won't accept new patients. Kingaroy Hospital has received a $92.5 million dollar upgrade but cannot operate at capacity due to staff short-
- Mitchell has been without a permanent GP since September 2022. Two GP positions are advertised but are yet to be filled.

"Since expanding the DPAs, Labor has made it harder for regional and rural areas to attract international GPs.

A festive atmosphere for crowd supporting Winton fete

By Jeff Close, Winton Correspondent The Christmas celebrations are in full swing In Winton, with the annual St Patrick's fete being held last week. Over 400 people attended the fete, with parish and school stalls set up alongside creative locals, other not-for-profit groups and businesses. There were two jumping castles and the usual visit from Santa Claus for the kiddies, 30 'spins of the ham wheel', produce ranging from fresh eggs to jams and preserves and cakes, plants and of course the

Land Court's mine refusal

By Karen Simmons

Friday's Land Court decision against Clive Palmer's Galilee Coal Project may have farreaching consequences for all planned new coal mines in Queensland.

Youth Verdict and the Bimblebox Alliance challenged the project with the assistance of the Environmental Defenders Office on the grounds it would destroy the Bimblebox Nature Refuge would pose an unacceptable risk to the climate, and that human rights of First Nations People would be negatively impacted

They also argued the mine would destroy the Bimblebox Nature Refuge, 30km north of Alpha, which sits on top of the proposed mine site on Wangan and Jagalingou Country.

"This is a huge sigh of relief for us after the 15 years' nightmare of fighting this mining project," Bimblebox Nature Refuge co-owner Paola Cassoni said.

The Land Court recommended that the Resources Minister and the Department of Environment and Science refuse the Mining Lease and Environmental Authority on environmental, climate and human rights grounds.

In handing down her decision, Land Court President Fleur Kingham said granting permission to mine the coal cannot be logically separated from the coal being used to generate electricity.

"The justification for the mine is to export coal for that purpose," Ms Kingham stated.

"As a matter of law, I have decided I can take the emissions into account in applying the principles of ecologically sustainable development (for the EA application) and in considering whether the applications are in the public interest (on both the ML and the EA applica-generate electricity. Wherever the coal is burnt the emissions will contribute to environmental harm, including in Oueensland.

"I recommend to the Honourable the Minister responsible for the Mineral Resources Act 1989 that MLA 70454 be refused.

"I recommend to the administering authority responsible for the Environmental Protection Act 1994 that EPML 00571313 be refused."

Environmental Advocacy in Central Queensland director Dr Coral Rowston warmly welcomed the decision.

"We hope today's Land Court decision will have far-reaching consequences for new coal mines planned for Queensland," Dr Rowston.

"Land Court President Fleur Kingham was clear in her reasons - coal burnt from Queensland mines is worsening the climate crisis, and Queenslanders are directly suffering as a result.

"The decision also shows how the environmental costs to the Bimblebox Nature Refuge and to first nations communities from burning more coal cannot be outweighed by any perceived economic arguments.

We send huge congratulations to Youth Verdict, the Bimblebox Alliance, the Torres Strait Islander community members who gave evidence, the farmers who have fought this project for more than a decade, and all those who fought alongside them, especially the tremendous lawyers at the Environmental De-

"We call on the Resource Minister and the Department of Environment and Science to swiftly implement the court's recommendation and refuse the approvals for this proposed climate-wrecking mine," said Dr Rowston.

But, while environmental groups rejoiced in the decision on Friday, the Land Court president said her decision was solely made on the merits of Waratah's circumstances and shouldn't be seen as a blanket ruling against the development of any new coal mines in "This case is not about whether any new coal mines should be approved....it is about whether this coal mine should be approved on its merits," she said.

The Galilee Coal Project, formerly known as the China First Coal Project, would consist of two open-cut operations and four underground longwall mining operations, coal handling preparation plants near Alpha and a rail transportation network to Abbot Point and a proposed port facility at Abbot Point.

The project intends to mine 56 Mtpa of run-of-mine (ROM) coal, which will be later processed to produce 40 Mtpa of product coal. The project will initially commence operations with a 10 Mtpa open-cut mine, eventually ramping up to 56 Mtpa several years later.

The Longreach and Central Western Leader contacted Waratah Coal and are still awaiting a response to Friday's land court decision.

Raunchy new SBS comedy Latecomers blows stereotypical depictions of disabled people on-screen out of the water. Disability advocate Hannah Diviney, who plays Sarah, tells

Siobhan Duck about her first acting role

S A kid, Hannah Diviney didn't see an awful lot of people who looked like her on television. And if she did, it was only in moments of extreme triumph or tragedy.

"It's no accident that the two narratives of disability that I grew up with and internalised as a little kid were Paralympics success, which only happen four years, and very much presented as like a triumph over your body," she explains.

"And on the other end of the spectrum, we had road safety ads, which obviously presented someone coming into disability as a form of tragedy and as a consequence of something terrible happening."

It wasn't until the debut of the musical drama Glee that Diviney finally saw a character with a disability whose experiences somewhat mirrored her own.

"There's a character on it called Artie Abrams [played by Kevin McHale] and he's in a wheelchair," she says.

"And I thought that was fantastic because 10-year-old me loved to sing, loved to dance and loved to perform.

"I thought it was great that he was having relationships, making friends and getting to do all this cool stuff."

Her pleasure in seeing that character evolve on screen was marred, however, when Diviney learned McHale was able-bodied.

"Later in the series, Artie had some sort of dream sequence, and he stands up out of his wheelchair and he gets up and begins to dance," she says.

"And that's when it sunk in that the actor playing him was ablebodied and that he was essentially someone playing my lived experience, but was able to cast off his disability like a costume as soon as the director yelled cut."

The eldest of three sisters, Diviney was born with cerebral palsy and has always navigated the world in a wheelchair. Likewise, she has always had a lifelong love of the spotlight, laughing that: "if there was a stage, I was on it."

A passionate disability advocate, Diviney made headlines earlier this year when she called out Lizzo and Beyonce for their ableist lyrics. She also spearheaded a campaign for a Disney princess with a disability.

That's not to say that Diviney believes able-bodied actors should never be able to play people with disabilities on-screen.

"It's a complicated question because I think there are some scenarios where it has to be done that way," she reflects.

"Like, if a character was ablebodied before and came to the disability through some sort of accident [as seen with Naomi Watts' role in Penguin Bloom] or something like that. But obviously, if you want to reflect the person's life before that, then you need them to be able-bodied.

"And the other scenario I can think of is in The Theory of Everything [the Oscar-winning movie starring Eddie Redmayne] about Stephen Hawking. Obviously motor neurone disease is progressive, and so it would be incredibly difficult to cast an actor with motor neurone disease because, depending on where they were at with the progression of the condition, it could impact on the ever find her attractive or if that [a fulfilling sexual relationship] would happen to her, I can absolutely relate to that," she says.

"I think there's so much in Latecomers about trying to accept yourself and trying to rationalise that it's okay to be exactly who you are, that I really relate to as well."

EVEN THOUGH A PERSON MAY HAVE A DISABILITY, THEY STILL HAVE THE SAME WANTS, HOPES, NEEDS, DREAMS AS ANYONE ELSE

things they couldn't do, or ways that they might be able to perform.

"But I think by and large, where you feel it's important to tell a disabled story, you should always look for disabled actors, because -I promise you - we're out there."

While great strides have been made on-screen in recent years to have better representation for people of different races, genders, sexualities and religions, disability remains an area where there is still very little visibility.

It's a source of frustration for Diviney and something she hopes to change through her role in the groundbreaking SBS series. Latecomers

The six-part series premieres on International Day of People with a Disability and follows the lovelorn Frank (Angus Thompson) and Sarah (Diviney) who are awkwardly thrust together when their able-bodied friends hook up at a bar.

Diviney says she identified with her character's anxiety about dating. "So, in terms of [Sarah] wondering whether anyone would

The series - which is Diviney's first professional acting role – is as poignant as it is funny. It also sheds light on a subject not often tackled on screen, sex and relationships for people with a disability.

"Fighting for better representation for disabled people is the cornerstone of all of the work that I do both as an advocate, a writer and performer," she says.

"And it's why, even though I'm not a professionally trained actor - and this is my debut acting role - I feel compelled to kind of take a leap of faith and take on Latecomers."

The series forced the novice actor to really step outside her comfort zone and film emotionally and physically intimate scenes. As a result, she laughs, it might be slightly awkward to watch some of it with her friends and family. But she hopes that they would ultimately be proud of her performance not to mention her efforts to raise awareness about an important subject.

"From my point of view, it was just about increasing the representation of disabled people on-screen, and also doing so in a way that tackles a lot of taboo subjects because obviously, disability and sex, or disability and relationships aren't exactly things that like the average person would connect with in their head," she says.

"I think this is trying to blow some stereotypes out of the water and remind people that even though a person may have a disability, they still have the same wants, hopes, needs, dreams as anyone else."

Diviney hopes that people will enjoy Latecomers enough for it to be commissioned for a second series. She's also hopeful that it will pave the way for more acting roles.

"From a creative standpoint, we're hoping that the people who create TV shows and make movies on Netflix or Amazon will watch this and go: 'Oh, so we can create content that features disabled people acting as well'," she says.

"We've just seen how well representation can work here in Australia on an international level with the success of Heartbreak High. Latecomers continues to blaze the trail that they started and I'm very grateful to me to be coming into the industry at a time when so much creativity and so much diversity is front centre.

"I think when we get to the point where a person's disability doesn't have to be the central point of the story, where they get to explore other things and also happen to have a disability which obviously influences the characters' decisions. then we'll know that we've really made true progress."

Latecomers, Saturday, 8.30pm, SBS Viceland and streaming, SBS On Demand

Movie Guide

PICK OF THE WEEK

BEHIND THE RAINBOW

Sunday JUDY

ABC TV, 8.30pm, M (2019)

Thirty years after she shot to global stardom as Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz, showbiz legend Judy Garland (a barely recognisable Renée Zellweger in an Oscar-winning turn) arrives in London in 1968, to perform a five-week sold-out run of concerts at The Talk of the Town. The shows are a last-ditch attempt by the troubled Garland to save her finances and performing career, but her health is failing, and being separated from her children is taking its toll. Zellweger delivers a touching, multi-dimensional performance as Garland that goes far beyond physical imitation of the iconic star's mannerisms and delves deep into the frail psyche of the powerhouse performer. Jessie Buckley, Finn Wittrock and Rufus Sewell all appear in supporting roles, but the headline act alone is more than worth the price of admission. ****

THE BABADOOK ABC TV Plus, Friday, 8.30pm, M (2014)

Australian director Jennifer Kent's extraordinary debut stands as a testament not only to her talent behind the camera (Kent also wrote the script), but to the world-beating potential of Australian cinema. Widow Amelia (Essie Davis), struggling to raise her outcast son Samuel (Noah Wiseman, pictured with Davis), discovers a supernatural entity is tormenting her child at night and sets out to destroy the monster and the mysterious book it is linked to. Prepare to be terrified. ****

BEACHES 7Flix, Sunday, 6pm, PG (1988)

Bette Midler (pictured) shines in this over-the-top weepie examining the lengthy friendship between two women from very different upbringings. Midler plays pop star CC Bloom who as a child forms an inseparable bond with the well-to-do Hillary Whitney (Barbara Hershey). Director Garry Marshall (Pretty Woman) tells the story in flashback and needs no excuse to amp up the emotion when exploring when their ideas of "friends forever" gets rocked by a heartbreaking diagnosis. **

THE BIG STEAL SBS World Movies, Saturday, 6.35pm, PG (1990)

Ben Mendelsohn (pictured, Animal Kingdom) stars in this sweetly charming and irresistibly funny story as working-class Melbourne teenager Danny who buys a second-hand Jaguar to further his chances with the hottest girl in school (Claudia Karvan). In a supporting role, Steve Bisley leaves his signature as Gordon Farkas, the crooked used car salesman who incurs Danny's wrath. Both he and ex-Split Enz member Phil Judd (composer) won AFI Awards for their efforts.

ZERO DARK THIRTY 7mate, Monday, 10.35pm, M (2012)

In the years after 9/11, the mastermind behind the attack, Osama bin Laden was subject to the biggest manhunt the world has ever seen, and Zero Dark Thirty (which is spy-speak for "half past midnight" – the time the al-Qaeda leader was killed) tells that story. Sounds simple enough and yet the devil is in the detail of this outstanding picture directed by Kathryn Bigelow (The Hurt Locker, Point Break), which chronicles the ruthless pursuit by lone-wolf CIA agent Maya (Jessica Chastain, pictured).

BIRDS OF PREY Nine, Saturday, 9.50pm, MA15+ (2020)

After breaking up with the Joker, chaotic antiheroine Harley Quinn (Margot Robbie, pictured) cuts her hair, adopts a pet hyena and takes up roller derby before realising she is in grave danger without her ex's protection. With a ruthless crime lord (Ewan McGregor) and his hitman (Chris Messina) on her tail, Quinn teams up with three unlikely allies to save pickpocket Cassandra Cain (Ella Jay Basco) and Gotham City itself. Birds of Prey is wicked, unpredictable and so much fun. ***

I NOW PRONOUNCE YOU CHUCK & LARRY 9Go!, Tuesday, 9.40pm, M (2007)

The premise of this brainless comedy (two very straight men enter a gay marriage of convenience for bureaucratic reasons) will be all too familiar to Aussie audiences of Strange Bedfellows. The forgettable farce stars Kevin James and Adam Sandler (both pictured) as New York firefighters masquerading as a gay couple to receive domestic partner benefits. With the help of their hot lawyer (Jessica Biel), the two try to escape the suspicious eye of a fraud investigator (Steve Buscemi).

The Guide

CSI: VEGAS

10, Saturday, 8.30pm

The crime scenes are uniformly disturbing, but one can't help thinking: the writers on CSI must be highly entertained when they dream up their off-the-wall cases. Perhaps it's the same for real-life crims when they hatch their plans, but you can rely on CSI to feature memorable clues and details. In "Burned", there are Big Foot-like footprints found around the house where a gory double-murder is being investigated. Wild, scary creature theories are quickly put to rest, with plastic wrap and an engagement ring offering clues.

HYPOTHETICAL SBS Viceland, Monday, 9.25pm

No idea is too outlandish in this British comedy series helmed by Josh Widdicombe and James Acaster. Each week, the comperes pose implausible scenarios to a panel of comics, who improvise equally ridiculous solutions. The proceedings are constantly derailed by Acaster's absurd asides and put back on track by Widdicombe. In this season four premiere, Richard Ayoade (pictured) and Maisie Adam prove their soccer prowess and Guz Khan shows off his talent for mimicry.

STUFF THE BRITISH STOLE ABC TV, Tuesday, 8pm

Host Marc Fennell (pictured) looks closer to home for the final episode of this globe-trotting six-part series that unravels the mysteries behind artefacts plundered by the British Empire. In 1833, Indigenous Noongar warrior Yagan was a resistance fighter who tirelessly fought against British colonisers in Western Australia. The settlers branded him an outlaw and he was brutally killed. A key part of Yagan's body was sent to be displayed in a Liverpool museum, only to be lost in the UK for decades. But Yagan's determined mob never gave up in their quest to bring him back to country. Fennell says the "fight to bring him home is one of history's wildest detective stories".

THREE PINES Streaming, from Friday, Prime Video

Murder comes to Quebec in a gritty and beguiling drama adapted from Louise Penny's best-selling Chief Inspector Gamache novels.

Set in a seemingly idyllic village called Three Pines, Inspector Gamache (a compassionate yet cerebral performance from Alfred Molina) is tasked with solving a number of mysterious murders. Each case unfolds over two of the series' eight one-hour episodes, allowing the perplexing mysteries plenty of time to unfold and build into satisfying conclusions as viewers put the pieces together alongside Gamache.

As it turns out, the snowy village hides an abundance of dark secrets. Its eccentric residents treat Gamache and his fellow investigators with a sizeable amount of suspicion. The empathetic detective is joined by his trusted team in Sergeant Jean-Guy

Beauvoir (Rossif Sutherland), Sergeant Isabelle Lacoste (Elle-Máíjá Tailfeathers) and rookie agent Yvette Nichol (Sarah Booth).

As the bodies stack up, a common thread begins to emerge, drawing Gamache's cases together to uncover corruption and local police failings in the missing person and murder investigations of Indigenous women.

While Three Pines might be a cosy village, its dark side is positively chilling. Luckily, we have Molina and his warming portrayal of Gamache to soften the blow. - Lauren Mitchell

Leadership awards return

By Rabobank

The annual trans-Tasman Rabobank Leadership Awards is returning – after a three-year Covid-enforced hiatus – with nominations now open for 2023.

And a new award – recognising an outstanding rural community initiative – has been added to the long-standing prestigious business awards program.

Run for more than 20 years by agribusiness banking specialist Rabobank, the peer-nominated awards to recognise outstanding leadership in Australia and New Zealand's food, beverage and agribusiness industries, with two key business leadership accolades.

The Rabobank Leadership Award honours an accomplished senior agribusiness sector leader, while the Rabobank Emerging Leader Award recognises outstanding up-and-coming agri industry talent.

Previous recipients of the Rabobank Leadership Award include Australian and New Zealand food and agri corporate leaders Volker Kuntzsch, David Crombie, Sir Graeme Harrison, John Watson, Max Ould, John McLean, Nick Burton-Taylor, Robert Hill-Smith, Barry Irvin, as well as leading food scientists Dr Bruce Lee and Dr Jim Peacock, and Australian industry representatives Mick Keogh and Jim Geltch

The Rabobank Emerging Leader Award has gone to recipients including fresh leaf herb producer Jan Vydra, South Australian viticulturist Zachary Caudo, Queensland beef producer Bryce Camm and KPMG's Georgie Aley, Woolworth's Anna Speer and New Zealand dairy producer Mat Hocken.

Announcing the opening of nominations for the 2023 Leadership Awards, Rabobank Australia CEO Peter Knoblanche said the bank was delighted to welcome the return of the awards program after Covid restrictions had put a pause on the annual Rabobank awards ceremony after 2019.

"We're thrilled to have this very important initiative back up and running again.

"The Leadership Awards are not only an opportunity to shine a light on those who already make a significant contribution to Australia and New Zealand's food and agribusiness industries but also to foster the next generation of industry leaders who will take the sector forward into the future," he said.

"Our region is home to some of the most dynamic, successful and sustainable food and agribusiness organisations in the world, with huge growth opportunities – but also challenges – ahead in helping to sustainably feed and clothe the world.

The role of strong industry leadership has never been more important in harnessing these opportunities and meeting these challenges in an increasingly complex, volatile and competitive marketplace.

Mr Knoblanche said the bank was also pleased to mark the return of the Rabobank Leadership Awards with the introduction of a new Rabobank Community Leadership Award, with separate Community Leadership Awards to be presented in both Australia and New Zealand each year.

"The Rabobank Community Leadership Awards will go to an outstanding initiative in each country which provides tangible, meaningful benefit to the rural community," he said.

"This new award category aims to highlight community initiatives that align with one or more of the key themes at the centre of work being undertaken by the Rabo Client Councils – groups of the bank's clients in Australia and New Zealand, who work with Rabobank to address industry and community challenges in farming and agribusiness – and the Rabo Community Fund, launched in 2021 to invest in the sustainability and vitality of rural communities.

"These themes include long-term industry capacity and agricultural education, environmental sustainability, the rural/urban divide, rural health and adaptation/disruption in the rural sector."

A grant of $25,000 will be gifted to the winning Rabobank Community Leadership Award initiative in each country in order to help strengthen its impact.

Mr Knoblanche encouraged those involved in the agricultural sector to nominate peers and community organisations and, in doing so, recognise their leadership and positive contribution to the future growth, prosperity and sustainability of Australian and New Zealand food and agribusiness.

The Rabobank Leadership Award recognises an individual who has built an expansive career in management and leadership in Australian or New Zealand agriculture and has, as a senior executive, led sustained growth and commercial success while demonstrating a wider commitment to the broader community.

The Rabobank Emerging Leader Award acknowledges the contribution and role of upand-coming farmers, and those in the wider agribusiness sector, who demonstrate strong leadership potential.

Nominations close on February 17, 2023.

Nomination forms, together with the judging criteria, can be found on the Rabobank Leadership Awards website at www.rabobank.com.au/leadership Award winners will be announced at an event in March 2023.

Choir greets elderly community members

By Michael R Williams

The Pioneers Aged Care Facility were visited by the Longreach State School Mezzo Choir for the first time since Covid this week.

The choir's performance earned a standing ovation.

Music teacher and organiser Tanya Lloyd said it was a jolly time being able to perform Christmas carols for the residents.

"We sang a few classics, Away in a Manger and some upbeat ones like All I Want for Christmas is my Two Front Teeth," she "Pre Covid, we used to go at least twice a year—we tried to make it once a term.

"We like to visit the residents because it's really good for our kids to get out and have a reception and it's nice for the residents to have the kids come along."

The choir had not been since 2020, but now restrictions have eased up, Ms Lloyd believes this will become a more regular occurrence.

"I spoke to them a bit earlier in the term, and they were really happy to have their kids back—we're really glad we made it happen," she said.

"One of the ladies told me about how she was once a teacher and mentioned how important it is for the students to be sharing music.

"The residents loved it and were singing along the whole time.

"At the end, the students and the residents intermingled and sang as a big group."

Ms Lloyd said it was an opportunity for the students to associate with the older generations—something many may not be able to do very often.

"Singing with different people is psychologically beneficial," she said.

"I think it gave them a bit of a buzz."

It was once the most popular tree grown in gardens in Central Queensland but over the last couple of decades, the Poinciana popularity has waned.

But a drive around most Central Queensland towns over the next few weeks will reveal the spectacular cascading floral displays of the Poinciana tree.

While the most common flower colour of the Poinciana is red shades, my favourite is the yellow-flowering form.

Delonix regia var flavida or the Golden Cascade Poinciana as some nurseries have to mar-

This tree will still reward you with beautiful blooms but in gold if you have room for it in your garden and if you can find one at local

The botanical name of Delonix comes from the Greek 'Delos', meaning 'obvious', and this tree will be very obvious when in full bloom!

A native of Madagascar, it is widely regarded throughout the world as one of the most spectacular flowering deciduous trees and has been grown in Central Queensland for many

When the Poinciana tree reaches maturity, it exhibits a beautiful umbrella shape, and when in leaf, can cast good shade.

The spectacular flowers will develop when the tree is almost leafless.

The yellow Poinciana will not grow to as high as its red flowering cousin—expect it to grow 7-8 metres high and almost as wide, though more likely to be smaller in most garden conditions.

After flowering, seed pods are borne in large numbers.

Most of these big, brown and woody pods will fall from the tree fairly soon after darken-

Despite the beautiful flowers, attractive shape at maturity, and rapid growth, Poincianas do have some problems that are worth mentioning.

The drawbacks include a shallow root system which often allows large specimens to topple over, brittle branches which may break under their own weight and high susceptibility to termite, borer and fungal attacks.

A handy hint about the fallen seedpods, save them as they make an excellent BBQ fuel, burning with a hot, smokeless flame.

PAW PAWS

One question that always sparks debate amongst home gardeners is what paw paw or Carica papaya is best for home gardens.

That is growing which sexual varieties i.e. individual male and female plants, or growing bisexual varieties.

Personally, I have no preference and find that both varieties are suitable for home gar-

The bisexual paw paw varieties, which have both male and female characteristics, are quite useful for small gardens.

The attraction of this plant is that one individual paw paw will produce a Summer fruit supply, which is usually a narrow fruit on elongated stems.

With the sexual paw paw varieties, it may take till the first flowering before you can identify if you have a male or female paw paw, so it is always recommended to plant several plants for this reason.

The best way to pick the difference between a male and female paw paw is not by lifting the female's skirt, but by looking at their flowers.

The male will have creamy-green flowers that hang in loose clusters, whereas the female's flowers are much smaller and grow in neat, tight clusters.

The ratio of male to female trees required for pollination is one male tree to nine female trees, to give the best fruit production.

The fruit produced by a female tree that has been fertilised by a male is regarded as being the better-tasting fruit, and this is the characteristic, smooth-skin, large, rounded fruit that is more commonly seen in the shops.

A Handy Hint with your ripening fruit is the fruit tastes best when harvested just before it is fully ripe.

Then softened up the fruit indoors at room temperature. The best-tasting paw paws I have ever tasted were grown in a garden in Longreach. Paw paws will tolerate an occasional light frost. but I would recommend planting them in a more protected position or making some form of frost protection to get the best out of your plant for summer fruiting.

Meg's living her dream life

As a member of the first cohort of Bachelor of Agriculture students at CQUniversity, Meg Mc-Cosker always knew she wanted to pursue a career in agriculture.

She is now living her dream, employed as an Agricultural Workforce Officer for the Central Highlands and Central West Oueensland hosted by CHRRUP, a not-for-profit organisation working to advance rural communities.

"I grew up on a mixed cropping and livestock operation near Emerald and knew I wanted to pursue agriculture as a career," Meg

"I chose to study through CQUni's Emerald Campus as it allowed me to meet lots of people from around the district and also work in the industry during my studies.

"At that stage, I wasn't 100 per cent sure what I specifically wanted to do as a career. I thought studying my Bachelor of Agriculture through CQUniversity would help identify what opportunities were out there.

And she was right. Not only was she provided with opportunities to work in various sectors of the agricultural industry, but the course also introduced her to many people who have helped her along the way, some of whom she still gets the chance to work with.

Meg believes CQUniversity's Bachelor of Agriculture has prepared her well for her ca-cal side of the industry," she said.

"Skills wise, it taught me how to effectively and efficiently write reports which I use in my job almost daily. And Î enjoyed the flexibility of online and on-campus study. My education wasn't impacted by the fact that many of my lecturers were based in Rockhampton – I still had access to excellent lecturers and guest speakers from around Queensland.

"The flexibility in delivery – in-person and online - makes it more accessible for anyone wanting to undertake the degree."

After graduating in 2018, Meg accepted a position with a local independent agronomy consultancy in Emerald.

"I thoroughly enjoyed working as an agronomist and it opened the door to many new opportunities, including my current role.

"That's the beauty of agriculture, in my view. It is so diverse and I didn't realise there were jobs such as agricultural workforce support roles, so I hadn't considered it as a career path.

"My current role has allowed me to combine my love for agriculture and working with producers to help cultivate new opportunities for them to improve their business.

Meg is one of seven AWOs across Oueensland who form the Queensland Agriculture Workforce Network.

Her role is to provide advice on workforce services and initiatives to all Queensland agribusinesses, regardless of commodity or organisation membership.

She has recently been working on a new agricultural training program, LEADAg, which provides high school students with the opportunity to learn and work alongside industry mentors to develop work ready skills to enter the agricultural workforce.

"I love the flexibility to be creative and analyse the shortfalls in the region, in terms of agricultural training, workforce and recruitment, and then collaborating with other stakeholders to develop strategies to overcome the is-

Her advice to others considering a career in agriculture is to "do it!"

"There are so many different career pathways and so many opportunities available across Australia and overseas in agriculture. The people who work in the industry are also incredibly genuine and always willing to help.'

Positive outlook in two-thirds of producers

The joint report was commissioned by Meat & Livestock Australia (MLA) and Australian Wool Innovation (AWI) and released

It surveyed 1,963 sheepmeat and wool producers between 29 September and 4 October 2022.

Producers were initially invited to complete an online survey with the final sample complemented with a smaller number of phone interviews.

MLA Market Analyst Jenny Lim noted that the new format of the survey allowed for a deeper understanding of the breed make-

New South Wales had the strongest saleyard usage with 73 per cent of producers using this channel for sheep and lamb sales.

The survey noted that 46 per cent of producers are looking to increase their flocks in 2023 with 60 per cent hoping to expand operations and 47 per cent expecting favourable conditions in the next 12 months.

Strong growth expectations are being seen in Queensland and New South Wales, with larger producers indicating an intention to increase or maintain their flock num-

Wool halts price drop

By Australian Wool Network

The Australian wool market has managed to halt its downward run, driven by higher prices for merino fleece types.

The national offering was only 114 bales more than the previous week, 33,293 bales were on offer.

This moderate selection received strong support from a wide range of buyers, helping to push prices continu-

On the first day of selling, it was quickly apparent that buyer sentiment was high, resulting in spirited bidding across almost all merino fleece types and descriptions.

By the end of the day the individual Micron Price Guides (MPGs) for merino fleece had added between 4 and 41 cents.

Driven by these increases, after 8 consecutive selling days of losses, the AWEX Eastern Market Indicator (EMI) finally recorded a positive movement of 7 cents for the day.

The second day opened in the East to a very similar tone, which continued unabated all the way to the closing lot in the West, resulting in prices slowly but noticeably rising as the sale progressed.

By day's end the merino fleece MPGs had risen again, this time between 6 and 42 cents. Again, driven by increases in this MPGs, the EMI added a further 17 cents. The EMI closed the week at 1.256 cents, an overall increase of 24 cents, this was the first weekly increase in the EMI in just over a month.

Currency movement had the opposite effect of what occurred in the previ-

A weakening Australian dollar (the AUD fell by 1.27 cents compared to the USD since last week's close) meant that when viewed in USD terms there was no movement in the EMI, which closed unchanged.

The higher prices on offer have enticed more sellers to the market, pushing up next week's offering.

Currently, there is expected to be 38,295 bales on offer in Melbourne, Fremantle and Sydney, which is a designated superfine sale.

Tennis farewells champions

By Michael Lloyd

Tennis wrapped up on Tuesday for junior coaching and the social competition.

For the juniors it has been the first time coaching has run into summer and the kid's improvement has been fantastic.

A big thanks to the Longreach State School for the use of their hall which allowed the younger children to train out of the sun.

Keep an eye out for some coaching camps over the Christmas holidays in Longreach and surrounding towns.

The Club plans to continue the coaching in 2023 with plans to run several junior tourna-

Social Tennis was a sad occasion this week with the Club saving farewell to president Ben Galea his partner Georgia Mae, as well as secretary Anna-Marie Moffat. Anna-Marie has been a long-time player, and volunteer and over the past two years took on the secretary role.

During this time she has re-written the constitution, organised the complicated paperwork for junior coaching, and was successful in several grants which will aid the Club well into the future.

Ben and Georgia are relatively new to town but have thrown themselves into the Club with Ben has been helping with junior coaching and looking after the facility while Georgia is always there on a Tuesday night organising fixtures, even after a severe knee injury.

The Club and all its members would like to thank all three of them and will miss them and all the work they have done.

All members look forward to them coming back to visit.

High School Swimming Carnival: Sticking to their lanes

As regional representative swimming will be held early next year. The 2023 Longreach State Highschool swimming carnival was held early this year. Here are the Age Champions and swimmers in action.

Lloydy's Serve Michael Lloyd

Hang on, wait for me: Passing interest versus passion

Is it OK to jump on the bandwagon? I ask because it's World Cup Soccer time.

Yes Lloydy Jr likes playing the sport and I'm secretary of the Club, but watching a game to me is like watching grass grow.

However, if we somehow manage a win or a draw against Denmark, we'll be into the next round and I'll be holding out my thumb to jump on the Socceroo's fan craze.

Now I don't pretend to be a soccer fan even while taking a seat on the wagon.

I don't start conversations at the pub with "gee Ronaldo leaving Manchester United was pretty shocking" like I've been following the game for the past four years.

But I will dig out the soccer shirt I bought at the second-hand store a decade ago.

Now sports don't mind this.

If every September, the only people who watched the football grand finals were the competing team's fans, you wouldn't fill the stadium.

At State of Origin time, we have all those Queenslanders who don the Maroon, even though they haven't watched a game all year.

So don't pull out your 1980's Parramatta jumper that hasn't faded and pretend you're a long-suffering fan, but by all means, whoever Go Aussies!

People come into your life for a season, a reason or a lifetime, and it's the same with

The Longreach Tennis Club has been around for over 120 years and has seen many volunteers come and go. Now I can only comment on the past five years while I have been around, but it has had some great people inis playing, pick a side and cheer as hard as you the Club for a couple of years.

They were regular players, and junior coaches, who worked on the facility and kept Tuesday night social tennis humming.

Anna-Marie leaves us for a work opportunity in Emerald after a long history with the Club.

She came back to the committee a couple of years ago, providing great experience and historical knowledge when there was a big changeover for the Club.

I think all of these people will tell you the benefits and enjoyment they have got out of helping out at Tennis, we will miss them, and we look forward to their next visit.

Rewald in winning streak

By Andrew Watts, Longreach Jockey Club

Popular Blackall conditional David Rewald had a day out at the Barcaldine Race club on Saturday with a training treble.

It was the last race meeting for the Barcaldine Club for 2022 with around 300 race-goers trackside to enjoy a wonderful day's country racing.

The first of Rewald's winners came in race two the Benchmark 55 Handicap over 1000 metres with Flashphibian getting the nod on the line for jockey Robbie Farr with Mark Oates' and Anna Bakos Mustapha a nose further back and Shenanigan City finished in third.

Rewald's second winner was All Sorted who won the Maiden making it a double to Robbie Faehr.

All Sorted faced the starter for the 21st time on Saturday for its first win and won very impressively over Tuscan Belle and Gold VIP.

And it was a running treble for Riewoldt with a win for Zillitor in the Ray White Rural Longreach and Barcaldine handicap over 1200 matres

In what was a very busy finish, Zilitor, hard up against the inside fence, won by a nose with Sarah Robins in the saddle over Rapids and Kalmar who made up a stack of ground to finish in third.

Astbury Park was back in the winners for Boy Foster and Tim Brummel. It led throughout to beat Love Over Gold and King Coney.

Later on in the day, Typhoon Talaya for Patrick O'Toole and Jason Missen was a very impressive winner settling back in the field, Typhoon Talaya displayed an explosive turn of foot to win by two and a half lengths over Portobel and Run Rampant.

The final race on the program was a very impressive win for the locally trained Grand Palazzo.

The Elders tent.

Grand Palazzo faced the starter for the first time over the mile and relished the distance winning by five and a half lengths in track record time for trainer Tony Schofield and jockey Jason Missen who had a good day in the saddle defeating the favourite Tower Road and tearaway early leader Moriconi who stuck on well for third. Racing this weekend returns to Longreach for their Christmas race day but all eyes will be on Doomben for the Country Cup's Challenge and Country Stampede.

This is a great concept by racing Queensland to allow our country's participants to race for the city's riches.

Good luck to our chargers who are down in Brisbane, the Mark Oats duo of Halcyon House, who will compete in the Stampede and the Julie Egling-owned No Innuendo who will face the starter in the Country Cup's Challenge.

Clinton Austen from Blackall with saddle up Burden in the Challenge and Echo Point, who will be the favourite in the Challenge, is owned by a local contingent of Barcaldine owners.
